THE PACIFIC RAILROAD QUESTIONS.

Severe Strictures on the Lobbyists by Senator Edmunds.

THE CHARGES AGAINST DOORKEEPER POLK.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 3, 1878.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD QUESTION—THE PRO RATA BILL IN THE HOUSE—PROGRESS OF THE DEBATE IN THE SENATE ON THE FUNDING BILL.

The bill compelling all roads which have had government aid to pro rato with others and with each other on fair terms will be reported from the House Committee on Pacific Railroads as soon as that committee is called in the House, probably toward the close of the present week. The bill has been carefully considered and is reported against the wishes of only two members out of the thirteen forming the committee, and it will undoubtedly pass the House and probably the Senate. It creates a committee of three experts to make and supervise proper rules and regulations, compelling these roads to just and equitable conduct and to act on the complaint of any persons who may charge unjust discrimination. The rules they make are to stand unless reversed by a United States Circuit Court or the Supreme Court, and the bill authorizes the courts to compel obedience from the roads by summary proceedings. The three commissioners named in the bill are Charles Francis Adams, Jr., Judge Cooley and Mr. Fink. The first two are well known. Mr. Fink is the umpire for the Eastern trunk lines, and, of course, also an expert in all the matters which will come before the commission.

The debate over the Senate Judiciary Committee's bill concerning the Pacific railroads grows warmer every day, but it is now generally believed that the bill, with two amendments, of which Messrs. Thurman and Edmunds yesterday gave notice, will pass. If it does it will undoubtedly get a favorable report to the House from the Pacific Railroad Committee there, and will probably pass in the House. The debate continues to-morrow. The amendment of which Senator Edmunds gave notice provides that the present bill, when it becomes a law, shall be a finality so long as the companies continue to comply in good faith with its provisions. It is understood that he proposed it because some of the opponents of the bill claimed that the bill was really no settlement of the matter in dispute, but was liable to change by any future Congress. It is in these words:—

But so long as said Central Pacific and Union Pacific railway companies shall faithfully comply with the provisions of the said acts of 1862 and 1864 and of this act relating to payments to the United States on account of bonds advanced and of the sinking fund to be established as aforesaid, such compliance shall be deemed and taken as sufficient to meet the obligations of said companies on account of such bonds prior to the maturity thereof.

The severe language in which Mr. Edmunds spoke of the lobby created a good deal of excitement to day, and what he said makes probable what is very desirable—that a committee of investigation will look into the dealings of the lobby before the present session closes. Mr. Edmunds said:—

I have seen the officers of the companies in this very Senate Chamber on the day a bill was to be up distributing their passes with an ostentatious impudence that was amazing. I hope it did not affect any Senator. I suppose it did not. I have seen fifty cents a line paid to affect legislation in the editorials of newspapers. That is a very small price now; that was in old times. I suppose the present editorials are paid for at rather higher prices. But we shall find out by and by, by an inquiry, if the two houses are willing to direct it, and perhaps the present government directors may be able to look after it a little and ascertain how much money has been paid by these companies "to protect their rights," as they call it, at this present session of Congress. Not to any Senator or member of Congress; I beg everybody not to misunderstand me. But to pursue everybody to his house and appeal to his personal friendship for this director or that director, to appeal to his interest in protecting his constituent, who sold some bonds or some other thing to excite his prejudice, to mislead his judgment—everything that goes to make unjust influence upon legislation—may have taken place to a greater or less degree.

Evidently Mr. Edmunds will be a valuable and interesting witness before the committee if he will tell in detail what he has seen.

THE CHARGES AGAINST DOORKEEPER POLK—INJUDICIOUS COURSE OF HIS FRINDS.

The debate over Doorkeeper Polk is not yet done. He owes it to his injudicious friends that to-day two damaging speeches were made by Mr. Frye and General Cox, showing up his mismanagement and misconduct. The majority of the committee intended to deal leniently with him, believing with justice that his faults were rather the faults of the members of the House, whose importunities for places for their favorites he was too weak to resist. Hence the majority report, instead of proposing to turn him out in disgrace, offered a general remedy by abolishing the office of doorkeeper and dividing its duties among a number of persons and its responsibilities among several committees. But the course of Mr. Polk's friends has now raised the question whether the doorkeeper, by reason of his patronage, is really the master of the House. It would be thought that the dignity of the House would not long leave this question in doubt, but in fact it is to-night thought very doubtful whether Polk will be able to muster enough supporters among the members to recomit the report and thus secure him at least a respite.

GENERAL GRANT AMONG THE STRONGEST SUPPORTERS OF PRESIDENT HAYES.

A letter received here to-day from a gentleman who has been travelling with General Grant in the East, and who writes from Athens, reports that General Grant watches events at home closely, and is, in all his conversation and discussion, an earnest and emphatic supporter of the present administration. He always speaks of President Hayes in the most friendly manner and with the warmest wishes for his success. A letter received here some time ago from a gentleman who had been with General Grant for some time before he left Europe for the East reported in like manner that the General expressed the most perfect satisfaction with the President's Southern policy as being both wise and necessary. In fact, from all that is certainly known here it would appear that General Grant must be counted among the strongest supporters of President Hayes.

MONTGOMERY BLAIR LOBBYING FOR DUDLEY FIELD'S BILL—A COLD SHOULDER AND A STRONG ARGUMENT FROM THE DEMOCRATS.

Mr. Blair has been urging democrats in the House to support the bill which Mr. Dudley Field has prepared, giving the Supreme Court power to reopen the Presidential question. He has generally got the cold shoulder, the reply made to him being that under the constitution the declaration of the Presidential vote rests with Congress; that Congress did not depute this power to the Electoral Commission, but only charged that body with the duty of inquiring into certain specified matters and making a report to Congress, whereupon the two houses, acting under their constitutional power, proceeded to decide the main question—who was elected President—and that the proof that the houses did not delegate any power or authority in the matter to any one else is found in the fact that both houses voted upon the electoral vote of every State, and there was a division in both houses upon all disputed cases. Mr. Blair was told that the Supreme Court under the constitution has nothing to do with deciding who shall or shall not be President, and that the Court would probably so declare, but that in any case Maryland had no legal standing before the Court in the matter, as it is a question of title, and in such cases the complainant must be the person who claims title. In this case Mr. Tilden is the person.

It is understood to-night that the joint resolution of the Maryland Legislature, if it is signed by the Governor, will be presented in the House by a member from Maryland, and thereupon, and as an answer to its prayer, Mr. Fields' bill will be introduced. Some Maryland men here assert that under the practice in that State the joint resolution does not need the Governor's signature.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 3, 1878.

HOW MONTGOMERY BLAIR PROPOSES TO TURN PRESIDENT HAYES OUT—THE LESSON TO BE TAUGHT AND THE HALCYON DAYS TO FOLLOW.

Mr. Montgomery Blair was asked to-night in what way he expected to make his resolution effective as contesting the title of President Hayes. He said:—

"The resolution of the Legislature of Maryland presents the case in the most practical form, and in the only way becoming so great a subject. It would not be at all in accordance with the dignity of the subject for an individual to sue out a writ of quo warranto and seek the office. The only becoming and proper way is that the States, or any one of them, which has conferred the office should step into the arena to vindicate the popular right, and hence Mr. Tilden has taken no part in this matter that I know of, directly or indirectly, and has left it to the public which is really concerned in it. You see it is the States that vote in the Electoral College, and therefore it is proper, and only proper, that a State should come forward to vindicate its rights and the rights of the States. Although the Southern question is forever at rest, having been put at rest by the election itself, still, with a view to avoid any appearance of reviving it, it was better that a Union State, a State that was loyal throughout the war, should move in the matter, and Maryland being of that class of States, having abolished slavery on her own motion and for the sake of the Union, was eminently a proper State to come to the front to vindicate the rights of all the States and to preserve society by putting down fraud in the election as a controlling element in Presidential contests. Moreover, Maryland is a conservative State in its business and financial views, and its people feel the necessity of carrying into effect the financial policy which was decreed by the election of 1876 and which the fraud has effectually arrested. The business of the country continues prostrate; no capitalist has any confidence in any enterprise for business purpose; people are investing their money in four per cent bonds, because the situation is such as to give no confidence in any business enterprise. All this comes from the prostration of the popular will in the conduct of the government and the total inability of those who have been thrust into political position to exercise the power which belongs to such position for the want of the support of the people in it and which alone clothes it with any practical power."

"The essential features of our government and of the English government are the same, and in neither can any healthful or vigorous policy be carried out by an administration which does not represent the people, and it is because the present administration is without following that it is absolutely necessary that it should be supported by one chosen by the people, reflecting their will, and therefore capable of carrying into effect a fixed and determined policy, upon which business men may safely make their calculations, and which will insure the immediate revival of industry and prosperity. Hence the question involved in the movement by the State of Maryland is not merely the assertion of an abstract right, but includes the restoration of the material prosperity of the nation; and being a measure entirely peaceful in its nature and to be entered upon only with the sanction of both houses of Congress and to be carried into effect by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States it will be devoid of all partisanship and the change of the Executive power from the hands of the present incumbent to the duly elected representative of the people cannot be attended by any disturbance whatever and can only be productive of beneficial results."

There could not be conceived a greater triumph for republican institutions than such a transaction. It will show that fraud will not be tolerated in the attainment of the Presidential office, and that while it may have, owing to peculiar circumstances, a temporary success, yet such are the resources of our government for the redress of wrong that such a usurpation can be put down peaceably by judicial proceedings sustained by the public opinion which is at last the real effective government of the country. It will be an instructive lesson for our children to the latest generation not to despair of the Republic when for the moment there may seem to be a triumph of the worst elements of society over the best, but to rely upon appeals to healthful public opinion and the forms of law to right the wrong. Being myself convinced, having inherited this philosophy, I have never despaired and I have not the least doubt that the proceedings which are to be instituted will result in an exposure of the fraud, the disgrace of those who participated in it, a more healthful public sentiment, a sound, economical government in putting down the great monopolies by which the fraud has been engineered, and through whose influence alone it has been suffered to subsist for an hour. This will give labor its rights, prevent the government from being any longer the mere instrument to aggrandize the few at the expense of the many, allow industry to fall into its natural channels and to follow those pursuits to which the condition of the country most invites it, put down all social strife and any division between labor and capital; in other words to renew the halcyon days of the old Jackson democracy, when Communism and strikes were unknown in the land. There is no remedy under the local or common law at all adequate to the case. Congress, of course, might legislate so as to authorize the writ of quo warranto to be sued out. Mr. Fields' bill, which was introduced in the last Congress, was of that kind, and it may be that such a provision may be now made; but that would be attended with delay, because, of course, there would be an appeal allowed in such a case."

"The resolution requires the Governor's signature to make it effective, and I hear that there are some efforts being made to prevent him from signing it, but I hardly think that he will accede to any such proposition. I am certain that he will have made a very sudden change of his mind if he does since I left Annapolis."

THE CHINESE CONSULATE SCANDALS—FACTS DEVELOPED BY THE COMMITTEE ON EXPENDITURES IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

The Committee on Expenditures of the State Department took some further testimony to-day in the matter of the charges against Minister Seward and Consul General Bradford. The committee proceeded to the Fifth Auditor's office and there examined Richard Phœnix on the subject of certain marshals' fees paid to Bradford, the vouchers for which were on file in the office. Phœnix testified that he had signed the vouchers, but that he had never received the money. The Chief of the Consular Bureau produced the accounts of the Chinese consulates and demonstrated that they were made up in such a manner that a difference of about five per cent between gold and Mexican silver dollars, the latter the standard of values in China, had been paid and lost by the United States government and had inured to the advantage of somebody in the consulates. Among these papers was also produced a bill or voucher for the furnishing of the Consulate at Pekin, the items including such articles as wine, glass decanters and the like. The State Department refused its endorsement of the bill, which was then ordered charged to the Consulate in question.

THE ARKANSAS MAIL CONTRACTS—SENATOR DORSEY BEFORE THE HOUSE POST OFFICE COMMITTEE.

Senator Dorsey appeared before the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads this morning and asked the privilege of making a statement in regard to evidence that had been elicited by that committee in the pending investigation of mail contracts in which his name has been used. The Senator stated that ever since he has been in Congress he has, in every legitimate way, assisted his constituents in obtaining contracts for transporting mails when he knew them to be honest men and competent to perform the service required of them. He considered this a legitimate duty of a member of Congress. In the cases of Peck, Miner and others, now being investigated by the committee, Senator Dorsey says that they were bidders for mail contracts and that he knew they were good men and that their bids were considerably lower than the amounts now being paid by the government for the same service. They were, however, embarrassed in procuring bonds and requested his assistance, which he cheerfully rendered. He asked his friends to become their bondsmen, and his friends complied as a personal favor to him. He indorsed their notes. He wrote to Postmaster Hadley at Little Rock, asking his assistance in procuring Peck's, Miner's and others' bonds there, and was glad to know that Hadley had been of service to them. These bidders in a great many cases were the lowest, and in giving them the contract the government saved in one instance $160,000, and in another instance $130,000.

In thus encouraging competition and aiding competent bidders to perform the necessary legal action in connection with their bids, Senator Dorsey said he supposed he was performing the government a service which should be commended instead of condemned, and it never occurred to him that he was deserving of criticism for the interest he had taken until the newspapers began to attack him about it; but he had done nothing that was not perfectly lawful and proper, and he should do it again whenever occasion offered. He denied that he had any pecuniary interest, near or remote, contingent or possible, in any mail contracts or any other contracts under the government, or that the service he had performed for these contractors was done for any reward, or with expectation of any reward. He pronounced all newspaper reports to the contrary malicious falsehoods, circulated for the purpose of injuring him for revenge. His only motive of action has been to assist his constituents and friends, and to secure for them proper consideration by the departments.

NOMINATIONS BY THE PRESIDENT.

The President sent the following nominations to the Senate to-day:—

Charles H. Eddy to be Postmaster at Toledo, Ohio.

Edward C. Dean to be Commissioner of Police for the District of Columbia.

A FASHIONABLE WEDDING.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 3, 1878.

One of the most elegant weddings ever celebrated in this city took place to-day in the marriage of Miss Emily Herron, one of the young ladies who assisted Mrs. President Hayes during the first few months of her residence in the White House, to Mr. Gustavus S. Parsons, of Columbus. Mrs. President Hayes and her two sons, Burchard and Webb, were among the guests, while Mr. Alfred Morgan, grandson of ex-Governor Morgan, of New York, was an attendant. Over seven hundred invitations were issued, and the Seventh Presbyterian Church, where the ceremony took place, was crowded with the best society of the city and State. The church had been decorated for the occasion, and in addition to the chandeliers two calcium lights were placed in the organ loft, from which a flood of light was turned on as the bridal party marched up the aisle. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. A. Hoge, of Zanesville, with the ritual of the Presbyterian Church. Afterward the wedding reception was given at the house of the bride, on Pike street, to which all the more intimate friends of both families were invited.

THE WEDDED PAIR.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. John W. Herron, one of the prominent lawyers of this city and a former law partner of President Hayes. When the President (then Governor Hayes) went on to Washington a little more than a year ago quite a number of his Ohio friends and those of his wife accompanied them, among the number the bride of to-day, who remained as the guest of Mrs. Hayes for several months. She is tall and slender, with dark hair and eyes and a very attractive and even handsome face. She was dressed in white brocade silk, with sleeves of Duchess and point lace, and wore the regulation veil, with a profusion of flowers.

The groom, Mr. Gustavus Swan Parsons, is the son of George M. Parsons, of Columbus, a wealthy banker of that city. He is a brother of the Miss Parsons who created a sensation in social circles hereabouts some years ago by marrying the Prince de Lynar, a representative in Paris of one of the German principalities. He is a tall and rather distingué young man of twenty-three, who has lived abroad a good deal of his time, though now the cashier of his father's bank at Columbus.

ASSISTANTS AT THE CEREMONY.

The "best man" was Mr. Alta Morgan, of New York, a grandson of ex-Governor E. D. Morgan. The bridesmaids, six in number, were selected from among the bride's most intimate friends, as follows:—Miss Jennie Parsons, sister of the groom; Miss Nellie Herron, sister of the bride, and Misses Carrie Collins, Florence Fletcher, Clara West and Eva James.

The bridal party, accompanied by Mrs. Hayes and her son, Burchard Hayes, will leave for the East tomorrow morning. After stopping in New York a week they will go to Washington, where they will be guests at the Presidential mansion.

REAL ESTATE LIENS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

ALBANY, April 3, 1878.

Two circumstances have conspired to-day to prove that things are not what they seem, to add to the perplexity which must at all times afflict a student of New York State and city politics, and to deter newspaper correspondents from drawing even the most tempting inferences from raw and deceptive facts. These circumstances consist in the singular alliances developed in the Assembly debate on the Finance bill, and in the testimony given before the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Assembly in the case of Mr. Fish versus a New York newspaper reporter this evening. At the close of the Smyth trial it was inferred from certain events and stated by the reporter that a bargain had been entered into between the republicans of the Legislature and Tammany Hall by which the bill pending in the Committee on Cities to make Comptroller Kelly's office elective was to be smothered in exchange for the vote of the Tammany Senators who helped to acquit Mr. Smyth. Numerous incidents suggested this ingenious theory, and a kind of cumulative series of votes on New York measures in which Tammany democrats and influential republican members have since been associated appeared to credulous spectators to support it. This afternoon, when Dr. Hayes proposed his first amendment to his bill providing "that no ordinance or resolution which involves any liability or requires the expenditure, outlay or payment of money shall be valid unless passed by a vote of two-thirds (instead of four-fifths) of all the members" of the Common Council, he was severely rebuked by Mr. Daly and others on the ground that this amendment would remove the strongest barrier between the interests of the taxpayers and the disposition toward excessive expenditure on the part of the local authorities.

AN ELUCIDATION.

Mr. Fish at first sustained this objection, but the amendment was supported with great vigor by Messrs. Alvord, Brooks and Grady, the latter being ranked as a sound Tammany democrat. The main object of the amendment was explained to be to place the power of the majority in the New York City Council on a level with the power of the majority of every other city council in the State. And not only on this proposition, but on another more striking one which sprung up in the course of the discussion—namely, to remind the government of the metropolis in all respects to its own citizens and re-establish there the home rule which has so long been usurped by the Legislature at Albany. The two foremost republicans and two of the most conspicuous democrats of the Assembly ranged themselves side by side. Here was further apparent testimony to a "bargain" to the unsuspecting and easily convinced; but to-night, in response to subpœnas from the Privileges and Elections Committee, up came from New York Mr. A. B. Cornell, Postmaster James and United Marshal Payne, and in came Mr. Fish, Superintendent Smyth and others to testify not only to a lack of political affiliation but also to a lack of personal intercourse and even acquaintance between the leaders of the republican party and the controlling spirits of Tammany Hall, which was both amusing and amazing to most of the audience. All the witnesses said they knew nothing whatever about any bargain or agreement or understanding in respect to the Smyth trial or any bill before the Legislature or any political or other interest.

THE COMPTROLLER PRESENT.

Mr. Kelly, sitting within four feet of Mr. Smyth, swore that he had never seen him in his life, and did not known him; he also swore that he had not seen Mr. Fish for a year past; that no communications had passed between them except in writing, and that those communications were confined to letters addressed to him by Mr. Fish, in the latter's capacity as chairman of the Committee on Cities, asking information from him in his capacity as Comptroller and to his official answers to the same. He also swore that he never held any conversation with republican Senators in reference to the Smyth trial, or any conversation with Tammany Senators on that subject, except with Senator Wagstaff, to whom he casually remarked one day that if he were in his place at the trial he would try to sit as a judge and vote strictly according to the evidence.

MR. SMYTH DID NOT KNOW.

Mr. Smyth swore that he never had any communications with Mr. Fish in regard to his trial or in regard to the bill to make the office of Comptroller of New York elective, of which bill he had never heard until this evening. Neither had he been a party to nor had he been informed of the least agreement or understanding with Tammany or republican Senators concerning his recent trial. The testimony from every quarter, under oath, was so direct and explicit as to embrace the rumored agency of go-betweens in the general denial, and leave the doubts, suspicious rumors and allegations of a current conspiracy between republicans and Tammany chiefs stranded on a rock. Political wiseacres at Albany are asking each other late to-night whether it is not, after all, judicious to ascribe the occasional correspondence of opinion between republicans and democrats in either house of the Legislature to something more honorable and promising for the public welfare than political coquetry.

YE ANCIENT MERCHANTMEN.

A bill which recalls the origin of the most solid and influential corporation in New York city or indeed in the United States was presented in the Assembly this morning by Mr. Brooks, referred to the Committee on Cities and reported from that committee without amendment before the close of the session. The bill relates to the New York Chamber of Commerce, whose first charter, granted March 13, 1770, by George III., runs in part as follows:—

A ROYAL CHARTER.

"George III., by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith and so forth. To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:—

"Whereas a great number of merchants in our city of New York, in America, have, by voluntary agreement, associated themselves for the laudable purposes of promoting the trade and commerce of our said province; and whereas John Cruger, Esq., the present president of the said society, to our trusty and well beloved Cadwallader Colden, Esq., our Lieutenant Governor and Commander-in-Chief of our said province of New York and the territories depending thereon in America, &c., have most humbly prayed our said Lieutenant Governor to incorporate them into a body politic, &c.; therefore,

"Know ye, that of our special grace, certain knowledge and mere motion we have willed, ordained, &c., that the present members of the said society—that is to say, John Cruger, Elias Desbrosses, James Jauncey, Jacob Walton, Robert Murray, Hugh Wallace, George Folliot, William Walton, John Alsop, Henry White, Philip Livingston, Samuel Verplanck, Theophylact Bach, Thomas White, Miles Sherbrook, Walter Franklin, Robert Ross Waddell, Acherson Thompson, Lawrence Kortwright, Thomas Randall, Anthony Van Dam, Jacob Van Zandt, Levinus Clarkson, Nicholas Gouverneur, Richard Yates, Gabriel H. Ludlow, Peter Kettletas (and others), all of our city of New York, in our said province of New York, merchants, and their successors, to be elected by virtue of this our present charter, shall forever hereafter be one body corporate and politic in deed, fact and name, by the name and style, 'The Corporation of the Chamber of Commerce in the City of New York in America,' and that they and their successors by the same name shall be forever hereafter persons capable and able in the law to purchase, take, receive, hold and enjoy to them and their successors any messuages, tenements, houses and real estates whatsoever, and all other hereditaments of whatsoever nature, kind and quality they may be, in fee simple, for term of life or lives, or in any other manner howsoever, and also any goods, chattels or personal estate whatsoever.

"Provided always the clear yearly value of the said real estate doth not at any time exceed the sum of £3,000 sterling, lawful money of our Kingdom of Great Britain."

In April, 1784, after the Revolutionary War and the independence of the United States, this charter was confirmed by the State Legislature. It was variously amended in January, 1854; in April, 1861; in April, 1865, and again in 1874. None of the amendments, however, revoked or modified the restriction in the original Colonial charter of the value of real estate which the Chamber of Commerce might be at any time possessed of. The value remained and still remains fixed at £3,000, or about $15,000.

MR. BROOKS' BILL.

The bill introduced by Mr. Brooks authorizes the Chamber to acquire real estate in any amount, the annual income from which shall not exceed $100,000, and to elect six trustees to take charge of and administer the property. It is understood that the Chamber intends to purchase the old Post Office building, on Nassau street, and some adjacent land, and erect there a new and magnificent edifice.

ANOTHER STREET CLEANING MEASURE.

A bill very carefully drawn and containing some entirely new provisions in respect to the cleaning of the streets of New York city was also introduced by Mr. Brooks. It invests the Board of Police with full power and authority to clean the streets and keep the leading thoroughfares clear of snow in winter, at a yearly cost of not more than $600,000. The Board may let the job by contract, either to a single contractor or to several contractors, or it may appoint superintendents and other officers and hire laborers and carts to do the work under its own immediate supervision. In either case the Board is held to the strictest responsibility and accountability for the thoroughness of the service, being required to receive and act upon daily reports from policemen of the condition of the streets in all quarters of the city. In cases of contracts each contract is to be submitted to the Mayor and Comptroller for their approval within ten days.

DUMPING SNOW AND GARBAGE.

The Board is permitted by the bill to dump snow into the rivers on both sides of the city from wharves and pier heads which the Department of Docks is required to set apart at the proper season for the use of the Board's contractors or employés. All the previous restraints upon the deposit of garbage are kept in force by this bill except in one particular locality. The shore lines of Ward's and Randall's islands are to be extended within certain limits, where, the bill provides, street garbage may be thrown and accumulated up to high water mark, considerably enlarging the area of the two islands and connecting them together. But it is specified that wherever and as soon as the fillings of garbage shall have obtained to the water level, they shall at once be overlaid by a healthy material three feet in thickness as a sanitary precaution; and it is further provided that the extended shore lines thus gradually formed shall be protected by substantial crib-work or stone riprap. The Board of Charities and Correction is obliged by the bill to furnish, without charge, from among the prisoners on the islands a sufficient number to do the work of levelling, grading, &c. It is thus designed to utilize all the garbage which cannot be sold in making new land, which is needed for the institutions named, and the title of which is to be vested in the city.

WATCH BUILDERS AND CONTRACTORS.

Two bills, introduced in the Senate to-day by Mr. Purdy, are intended to amend all the laws which relate to the construction and safety of buildings in the city of New York. The first bill endows an officer, to be appointed by the Mayor, and to be called the Superintendent of Buildings, with extraordinary powers. This officer, whose salary is fixed at $4,000, is to be a practical architect and engineer of ten years' actual experience in the city. He is allowed to appoint a deputy superintendent and a number of inspectors, all of whom must be practical engineers and mechanics of ten years' experience, and also clerks for office work, provided the aggregate yearly expense of his bureau shall not exceed the sum of $50,000. The Superintendent will, under this bill, have full power to determine the manner of construction or repair of any and every building of every kind, even to the arrangement of its halls, stairways, ceilings, cellars, flues, fireplaces, heaters, doors and fire alarms. In the instances of unsafe buildings he is authorized to direct a survey, to be conducted by himself or one of his inspectors, together with a practical builder or architect, and if these two do not agree a third person is to decide their difference. Should the decision be against the safety of the building a trial before a court of record is provided for, whose decision will determine whether the building is to stand or be taken down. The bill sets forth certain arbitrary rules of construction.

WALLS OF DWELLINGS.

The outside walls of dwellings not more than fifty-five feet high must be twelve inches thick. Dwellings from fifty-five to eighty feet high must have walls sixteen inches thick up to the second story beams. The walls of dwellings higher than eighty feet must have four inches additional thickness to every fifteen feet of height. No party wall in a dwelling house shall be of a less thickness than the outside walls.

The outside walls of buildings other than dwelling houses, if forty-five feet high, shall be twelve inches thick and the party walls sixteen inches thick. If fifty-five feet high, the outside and party walls must all be sixteen inches thick. If seventy-five feet high, the outside walls must be twenty inches thick to the second story beams and sixteen inches thick above them. Of buildings over seventy-five feet high, both the outside and party walls are to be increased in thickness four inches for every ten feet of height. If situated on a street corner, the bearing wall—the wall sustaining the floor beams—shall be in each case four inches thicker than above specified.

Every building more than thirty feet wide, except churches, theatres, school houses and other public buildings, shall have a brick partition, or be bound together by iron girders supported on iron columns, so that there shall not be a space more than twenty-five feet wide between the partitions or columns, and the outside walls. All columns, beams, lintels or girders used in buildings must have been thoroughly tested before being put in use, and plainly registered with the weight they are capable of sustaining and with the name of the maker or manufacturer.

CONSTRUCTION OF FLOORS.

The floors of dwellings must be capable of sustaining 75 pounds on each superficial square foot, those of public buildings 125 pounds and those of storehouses or manufactories from 150 to 500 pounds and upward. All except thoroughly fireproof buildings must be provided with fire alarms, and the bill takes pains to specify faults in chimney construction and in the supports of hearths which are to be avoided. As an exterior protection from fire, it says that "all side or party and front walls not corniced, and where no gutter is required, on any building over twenty feet in height shall be built up and extended at least twenty inches in height above the roof and shall be coped with stone or iron. Whenever partition walls are carried up to the under side of the roof planking the planking of the roof must in all such cases have a space of at least four inches left, extending the entire length of the wall, between the ends or sides of said planking, and the space must be filled up to the top of said planking with good mortar, and the slating or other roofing material may then be carried over the same. Whenever French or Mansard roofs are placed upon any building, except a wooden building, over three stories in height, exclusive of the Mansard story, the said roofs shall be constructed fireproof throughout."

FIXING RESPONSIBILITY.

Finally the bill makes both the architect of a building and the manufacturer of materials used in its construction responsible for defects and breakages and provides for their fine or imprisonment, or both.

PROTECTION FROM FIRE.

Mr. Purdy's second bill is directed principally to the protection of buildings from fire. It compels fireproof shutters to be placed on nearly all buildings, except dwelling houses, save on street fronts more than thirty feet wide. It minutely defines the arrangement of flues, steam pipes, smoke pipes, furnace pipes and registers, gas and water pipes, fire escapes and railings and trapdoors for the protection of wellholes.

Both these bills have been referred to the Committee on Cities.

FIRES IN THEATRES.

The earnest desire, after the terrible lesson given by the Brooklyn Theatre fire, for greater protection in playhouses, found expression in a bill introduced in the Senate last year by Senator Gerard. The Senate failed to come to any agreement regarding the propositions of the measure and so nothing came of it. Senator Wagstaff this morning reintroduced the same measure.

A LITTLE "SALARY BILL."

Senator Pierce, of Kings, introduced a bill this morning which insures the salary of the Corporation Counsel of Brooklyn from the operation of the salaries bill recently passed in the Assembly. The bill declares that his salary shall remain at $10,000.

IMPORTANT TO MORTGAGORS AND MORTGAGEES.

Probably the most important measure yet passed by the Senate is that for the relief of taxpayers owning real estate, which was introduced by Senator Sessions. It is a measure which interests every mortgagor and mortgagee in the State. The bill provides that:—

Any person owning real estate on which there is a lien by mortgage, given for the purchase money or for any debt created or incurred for said purchase money, which the owner of said real estate is liable to pay, shall have the amount of said lien deducted from the actual value of said real estate whenever any assessment is made on said real estate. In case any person owning such real estate shall overst to the amount of said lien, or procure the exemption of any mortgage given for any other debt than hereinbefore specified, with intent to deceive the person assessing the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be liable to fine or imprisonment, or both. The assessors at the time of making their assessment shall ascertain the value and assess all mortgages on real estate in a separate column provided for that purpose, to the person owning the same, and if the tax on the same shall not be paid within thirty days after the tax roll shall have been put into the collector's hands, the person owning said real estate thus mortgaged shall pay the tax, and the said tax so paid shall be deducted from the interest or principal of said mortgage when the same shall become due and payable. Any person owning said mortgage thus assessed, and residing in this State, shall have the said mortgage so assessed deducted from the amount of his personal property assessed at his place of residence, upon furnishing to the assessor or assessors where he resides a sworn statement of the assessor or assessors where the land is situated and the mortgage assessed, that the said mortgage has been assessed by them and the amount of such assessment. It shall be lawful for the parties to any mortgage described in the first section of this act to make and enter therein an agreement to the effect that the mortgagor will pay all taxes assessed upon such mortgage in the town where the mortgaged premises are situated, and in all cases in which a mortgage shall contain such agreement the provisions of this act shall not apply to the real estate so mortgaged nor to such mortgage. None of the provisions of the bill shall apply to corporations.

A NEW HARBOR MASTER.

The Governor sent the name of Mr. John McGrourty, of Brooklyn, to the Senate this morning for confirmation as Harbor Master, instead of H. W. Johnson.

THE HEALTH OFFICER.

It is expected that the Governor will in a few days go ahead with his nominations thus opened. A committee of New York pilots waited on the Governor to-day and urged the nomination of Dr. Jacob S. Mosher, who was Deputy Health Officer under Swinburne and Vanderpoel. This is one of a dozen delegations that have waited on the Governor on the same subject.

MOLLER'S WHISKEY BELL PUNCH.

The Assembly Committee on Cities will give a hearing upon Mr. Moller's bill to provide a system of registers similar to the Moffett bell-punch system for the liquor saloons in New York city on Tuesday next.

DISCUSSING THE FINANCE BILL.

This evening the House went into Committee of the Whole on the bill to secure a better administration of local government for the city of New York, being the bill introduced by I. I. Hayes, known as the "Finance bill," which passed both houses last year and was vetoed by the Governor. It is understood that it will pass this year with the assent of the Tammany democrats, it having been modified somewhat to meet their views. I. I. Hayes moved to amend by requiring a two-thirds instead of four-fifths vote of the Common Council to make valid a resolution involving any liability or expenditure. He briefly explained the object of the bill, which was mainly to secure uniformity of action in the matter of contracting indebtedness and the expenditure of public moneys. He said the bill had the approval of the city authorities of New York.

OPPOSED TO THE AMENDMENT.

Mr. Fish said he would rather see the bill killed outright than to see the amendment incorporated in it. If adopted, the bill would not be in the interests of economy, but would open the floodgates for extravagance and wastefulness. Mr. Daly said the gentleman from Putnam (Mr. Fish) had stolen his thunder. He did not think this amendment in the interest of economy and the taxpayers; it proposed to break down the only safeguard the people had. Mr. Grady explained the manner in which the Board of Aldermen is constituted to show that the minority was guaranteed a representation, and asked how there could be any danger to the interests of the people or to economical management in requiring a two-thirds instead of a four-fifths vote, as proposed in the amendment. Mr. Brooks asked where in the State outside of New York is a four-fifths vote required of the Common Council before it can pass such resolutions or ordinances as are referred to. There was no city in the State where this is required, and he asked why it was that such a discrimination is made against the city of New York. Mr. Alvord argued that a two-thirds vote was sufficient, there being other concurrent checks and guards.

The amendment was adopted by a vote of 57 to 16.

AN ANNUAL STATEMENT.

Mr. Hayes moved another amendment requiring the Comptroller to publish annually a financial statement in the City Record. Mr. Brooks suggested that it should be published in pamphlet form also. Mr. Hayes accepted Mr. Brooks' suggestion and the amendment was adopted.

NEW SECTIONS.

Mr. Hayes moved a new section providing that all balances of appropriations made in and prior to 1876 shall lapse, except such amounts as shall be required to pay proper claims. Adopted. Mr. Alvord also moved an additional section providing that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment shall appoint three commissioners to revise and codify all laws relating to the city of New York, the commissioners to report to the next Legislature, and they shall be paid such sum as the Board of Estimate and Apportionment may allow in the manner other expenses of the city are paid. In support of the amendment he read from messages of the government on the subject of the chaotic state of the laws relative to the city, and also from a message of the Mayor on the same subject. Mr. Fish moved to give the appointment to the Mayor as being altogether more appropriate. Mr. Alvord insisted that the Board named was the most appropriate. The Mayor was a member of the Board, and there were three other good men with him. Mr. Daly moved as an amendment that the Mayor be directed to request the Corporation Counsel to appoint these commissioners.

Without taking any action on the question the committee rose and reported progress.

DUTCH HARMON IN JAIL.

CAPTURE OF THE DESPERATE THIEF FOR ROBBING A FREIGHT CAR ON THE HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD—A LONG CAREER OF CRIME.

POUGHKEEPSIE, April 3, 1878.

A desperate fight occurred with car thieves on the Hudson River Railroad at Cold Spring at one o'clock this morning, resulting, after a stout resistance, in the capture of the most desperate character known to the New York police and the leader of a gang of cutthroats and thieves who have their headquarters and rendezvous on Tenth avenue, New York, and are known as the "Tenth Avenue Gang." For years this gang has been the terror of the Hudson River Railroad authorities and of summer residents on the Hudson as far north as Cold Spring. They are in fact the highland brigands, and they do not hesitate to kill if necessary to carry out their plans. The desperado captured this morning is none other than "Harmon Littendorff," alias "Dutch Harmon," whose very name indicates robbery, theft and possibly murder. It is believed that he it was who murdered the watchman of the Hudson River Railroad Company at the Thirtieth street station several years ago; in fact the detectives have strong circumstantial evidence that such is the case. He has led masked burglars into elegantly furnished residences time and again and bucked and gagged inmates and cleaned the houses of their treasures. He is also known as a river pirate and has robbed vessels of every description at the docks or while lying at anchor in the stream. Since the death of Tracey, the notorious burglar who was killed a month ago at Inwood while trying to escape from the officers, the railroad detectives have made it their special duty to track "Harmon," having obtained important information in regard to him. They followed him night and day for weeks and he was never out of their sight long enough to escape their vigilance. Finally it came to them that last night he and his gang were to rob a freight train while it was under way.

THE PURSUIT.

The officers left Thirtieth street depot at nine o'clock last night and rode to Break Neck Tunnel, at the northern end of the Highlands, a water station being located there. While waiting there another freight train came along from the south, and the officers discovered men on top of the cars putting on brakes and saw them jump from the train. This was at one A. M., and they shadowed them to Cold Spring and saw them enter a house formerly occupied by Isaac Levy. The officers surrounded the house and forced the front door just as a man was coming down stairs barefooted. The hall was dark, and the man clinched the forward officer, who was Detective Scanlan, and a long tussle ensued. Just then Officers Pike and Lawrence and Detective Gillespie closed up and in a second "Dutch Harmon," for it was he, was ironed. But he had to be clubbed before he would give in, and to-day one eye is almost closed and his head is fearfully swollen. They found household goods and wearing apparel in his possession and then followed the train and overhauling it in Rensselaer county found a car had been broken open and robbed, and the goods found on Harmon were the goods stolen. Another burglar was with Harmon, but he managed to get away. He will, however, be captured.

Harmon was taken to Troy jail, and, at court, waived examination, and was sent back to await the action of the Grand Jury. His criminal record is among the worst in the country.

HARMON'S HISTORY.

In 1870 he was arrested in New York by Captain McCollough, after a desperate struggle, and was taken to the Twentieth precinct station. While his pedigree was being taken he escaped through a window, taking sash and all with him and falling a distance of thirty feet. He was afterward arrested by Officer Gillespie and sent on the Island, and headed a revolt and again made an escape. In March, 1871, he escaped from Officers Scanlon and Gillespie at Dobb's Ferry, in a car robbery, after having exchanged shots with the officers. It was then that Bryan Cavanagh, a burglar, lost his life. In 1873 Harmon was captured in the Fourth ward in New York for a silk robbery in New Jersey. While escaping from a hack in Centre street, which contained the stolen goods, he had a desperate struggle with several officers, but managed to elude their grasp and ran into Baxter street, where he slipped and, falling, broke his leg. Then he was taken to Bellevue, where a plot was laid to rescue him. The Jersey officers hearing of it took him away the same day, and he was tried and sentenced to five years at Trenton. He escaped from there, and soon after a watchman was killed at the Thirtieth street station, Hudson River Railroad. The police in New York went to capture him at a house in Thirtieth street, and while doing so one officer fired through the door and killed the man who held it, and Harmon escaped. He was afterward arrested in Tenth avenue by an officer from the Twenty-ninth precinct, but Harmon, while walking along, tripped the officer and threw him, and took his revolver and shot at the prostrate man, but did not hit him. The report of the pistol brought other officers to the spot, and he was again captured and sent to Blackwell's Island. Then he got false keys and let a large number of prisoners out, himself among the number, but, while he was swimming, the river guard shot at him and he surrendered. He then served his time and was taken back to Trenton to serve unexpired time there, which he did, and was released in August last. Since then he has been "working" the North River and docks about New York as a river thief and pirate. He was with Tracey when the latter was killed at Inwood. The Grand Jury will consider his case on Monday next. He says if he ever gets out of this he will live on ten cents a day but what he will be an honest man. He looks very shabby, having a dilapidated and destitute appearance. His resistance in last night's encounter brought blows upon him of such a character as to take all the fight out of him. He had broken the seal on the car door and threw the goods off as the train passed Cold Spring station, and the evidence against him is conclusive.

O'CONNOR, THE BOATMAN.

Coroner Woltman held an ante-mortem examination yesterday in the case of Patrick O'Connor, of No. 13 Pearl street, a boatman, who was shot in the shoulder the 21st inst., while in the act of conveying sailors' baggage on shore belonging to the crew of the ship D. R. Eaton. The injured man deposed as follows:—

On March 21 I went in my own boat from the Battery, New York, to the ship D. R. Eaton, lying in the stream, and went aboard and asked the captain if he wished a man to run the lines. The captain said if he wanted a boat to run his lines he would employ me to go to Hoboken. I went there, tied my boat under the bow of the ship and went on board and was asked by the runners to wait until the crew were ready to leave; waited there half an hour; got down in my boat, and the runners directed me to take some of the luggage of the crew in my boat to New York. I had six men's baggage in my boat and was just about leaving when the first and second mates jumped on the rail with pistols in their hands. The first mate was named Henry Smith, I think. He cried out, "Give me those things." I said I would give them to him on the dock. He then said, "If you push that boat another inch I will kill you." I was then shot by some one whom I did not see in the right shoulder and in the left arm. The mate saw me removing the luggage, but said nothing. John Fitzpatrick, of the Battery, was with me in the boat; Richard Bartes, runner for Thomas Melville; Patrick Madden (both of the Seventh ward) and John Millett, runner for Brown, of No. 4 Carlisle street. These men directed me to remove the baggage from the ship. They were on the dock at the time. It was about half-past ten o'clock when I was shot.

Deputy Coroner Miller described the wounds which the injured man received. There was a large pistol shot wound about the middle of the right shoulder blade and one on the right arm. A verdict was rendered that O'Connor had been shot by an unknown party, supposed to be Henry Smith, first mate of the ship D. R. Eaton.

The Hoboken authorities were notified.

TREATY OF SAN STEFANO.

Servia, Montenegro and Roumania Guaranteed Absolute Independence.

BULGARIA OF THE FUTURE.

Severe Conditions Imposed Upon Turkey by the Conquerors.

The Journal de St. Pétersbourg and the Official Journal published on March 21 the following full text of the Treaty of San Stefano, under the title of the "Peace Preliminaries." After the usual preface, explaining the desire of both Sovereigns to put an end to the war and the appointment of their respective plenipotentiaries, the articles follow:—

1. In order to put an end to the perpetual conflicts between Turkey and Montenegro, the front or dividing both countries will be rectified in the following way:—From the Jobrosdiza Mountain the frontier will follow the line indicated at the Constantinople Conference to Korito, through Bilek, thence will go to Gatzko, Metochia, Gatzko belonging to Montenegro, toward the confluence of the Piva and Tara, rejoining the Drina northward to its confluence with the Lim. The Oriental frontier will follow the last named river to Drijepolie and through Roskai and Soukhaplanina, leaving to Montenegro, Bihor, Roshai, taking in Rugowo, Slava and Gusinje along the mountain ridge, through Shlieb, Saklen, along the north frontiers by the mountain tops of Koprivnik, Babavico, Borvin, to the highest summit of Prokled; then by the summit of the Biskoschik Scalt to Lake Tjicenitiod, dividing it from Tjicenikastrati, it will cross the lake of Scutari and join the Boyana, whose course it will follow to the sea. Niksitch, Gatzko, Spuz, Podgoritza, Zabiiak and Antivari remain to Montenegro. A European commission, in which the Porte and Montenegro will be represented, will have to fix the definitive limits of the principality, modifying the general outline when found necessary and equitable for the respective interests and tranquillity of both countries, the necessary equivalents being agreed to. The navigation of the Boyana, which always provoked contests between the Porte and Montenegro, will be the object of special regulation by the same European commission.

MONTENEGRO INDEPENDENT.

2. The Sublime Porte definitely recognizes the independence of Montenegro. An agreement between the governments of Russia and Turkey and Montenegro will ultimately determine the character and form of the relations between the Porte and Montenegro respecting the agents of Montenegro in Constantinople and other localities of the Ottoman Empire where necessary. The Montenegrins will submit to the Ottoman laws and authorities whenever travelling in Turkey, according to international law and uses. A convention shall be concluded between the Porte and Montenegro regulating the relation of the inhabitants on the confines of both countries, and the military works on the confines at points where an understanding would be impossible will be decided by Russian and Austrian arbitration. Should disputes or conflicts arise except respecting territorial claims, the Porte and Montenegro will leave the settlement to the common arbitration of Russia and Austria. The Montenegrin troops will evacuate the territory not included in the above mentioned delimitation in ten days after the peace preliminaries have been signed.

SERVIA FREE FROM TURKEY'S YOKE.

3. Servia is recognized as independent. The frontier marked on the annexed map will follow the course of the Drina, leaving Little Zvornik and Zakar to Servia, along the ancient boundary to Decevas, near Stoinac, thence along to the river Raska, and along it to Novi Bazar; thence across the villages Mekinje, Trgoviste, to the source of the river, the line will go by Bazar Planita, in the Ibar valley, and follow the rivulet which flows into the river at Ribanic, whence it will follow the rivers Ibar, Pinitza and Lab and the rivulet Batutza, to its source on the Grapachtitza Planix, thence by the summits separating the rivers Kriva and Veternitza it will rejoin by the shortest route the last named river at Mivratzkas, will ascend it, cross the Miovitza Planix and descend toward the Morava, near the village of Calimanci, thence descend the Morava to the river Vlossina, near the village of Staikovotzi, remounting the river Linberzda and the rivulet Koukavitza, crossing the Sukhaplanina, following the rivulet Vryls to Nihava, and so on to the village of Kroupiatz, whence the line will join by the shortest route the ancient Servian frontier southeast of Karaaulbare and follow it to the Danube. Adakala will be evacuated and razed. A Turkish and Servian commission, assisted by a Russian commissary, will establish on the spot the definitive line of the frontier in the course of three months, and definitively regulate the questions of the Drina Islands. When the commission discusses the question of the Servian and Bulgarian frontiers a Bulgarian delegate will be admitted.

RIGHTS OF PROPERTY.

4. Mussulmans possessing property in the territories annexed to Servia and wishing to settle out of the principality will be allowed to hold such property according to the existing tenure. A Turco-Servian commission, assisted by a Russian commissary, will have to decide the question of sovereignty. In all matters respecting immovable property involving Mussulman interests the same commission will have to regulate, within three years, the mode of alienation of goods belonging to estates or vakoufs, and questions of private interests, until the conclusion of a direct treaty between Turkey and Servia determining the character and form of their common relations. Servian subjects travelling or living in Turkey will be bound by international law. The Servian troops will have to evacuate within fifteen days from the signature of the peace preliminaries the territory above mentioned.

ROUMANIA'S INDEPENDENCE.

5. The Sublime Porte recognizes the independence of Roumania, which will present its claim to an indemnity to be discussed between both parties. Until the conclusion of a treaty between Roumania and Turkey Roumanian subjects will enjoy in Turkey all the rights guaranteed to the subjects of the other European Powers.

THE NEW BULGARIA.

6. Bulgaria is constituted as a tributary Ottoman principality, with a Christian government and a national militia. The definitive boundaries of the principality will be determined by a special Russo-Turkish commission. Before the evacuation of Roumelia by the Russian Imperial army it will take notice of all modifications introduced on the spot in the general draft, the nationality of the majority of the inhabitants, the topographical necessities and practical interests of the local populations. The territorial extension of Bulgaria is fixed in general sketches on a map, which will serve as the basis for the definitive delimitation. From the new Servian frontier the line will follow the occidental boundary of Vranja to the Karadagh ridge. Turning westward it will follow the occidental boundaries of Cazis, Koumanovo, Mocnani and Kaldanelk to Mount Karab, thence from the river Velestchitza to its junction with the Bianck Alix, southward by the Drina and occidental limits of Catia Ochride toward Mount Linas, and along the occidental limits of Cazas Gortcha and Starovo to Grammos, and thence by the Kostona Lake it will rejoin the river Mogienitza, follow it, pass southward to Yanitza, continue by Wardars Mouth and Galiko toward Perga and Sarakeui, thence across the middle lake to Chisguel Snoumas and Karasson, and by the sea coast to Buruguel. Northwestward toward Tchaltepe it will ascend by the Rhodope ridge to Ouschovo, ascend the Kara Balkans, Eschekkoulagi, Tchepellon, Karakolas and Tschikiar to the river Adla. Thence the frontier will go in the direction of the town of Tchirmen, and, leaving Adrianople southward, will go through the villages of Sugutbod, Karahamze, Arnaoutkeui, Akardji, Eadnjie, to the river Tekederessi, following the Tekederessi and Tcholloundéressi rivers to Louie Bourgas, and by the river to the village of Sergueu will follow through the mountains forward Hakimtabiessi to the Black Sea. It will leave the sea coast near Mangolia, pass along by Toultcha, down to the Danube above Rassova.

THE PRINCE OF THE TERRITORY.

7. The Prince of Bulgaria will be freely elected by the population and confirmed by the Porte with the assent of the European Powers. No member of the reigning dynasties of the Great Powers can be elected Prince of Bulgaria. In case of a vacancy the election of a new prince will take place under the same conditions and with the same forms. An assembly of Bulgarian notables will meet in Philippopolis or Tirnova and draw up before the election of the Prince, under the supervision of a Russian commissary in presence of a Turkish commissary, the organization of the future administration. In localities where there are Bulgarians, Turks, Wallachians, Greeks and others, account will be taken of the rights and interests of each population. The introduction of new regulations and the supervision of their execution will be intrusted for two years to an Imperial Russian commissary. At the end of the first year after the introduction of the new regulations, and if an understanding between the cabinets be obtained, delegates, if found necessary, will be associated with the Imperial Russian Commissary.

TURKISH ARMY MUST LEAVE.

8. The Ottoman army shall no longer remain in Bulgaria. All the old fortresses shall be razed at the expense of the local government. The Sublime Porte shall have the right to dispose as it pleases of the war material and other articles belonging to the Ottoman government which may remain in the Danubian fortresses already evacuated by virtue of the armistice of the 31st January, as well as of any which may be in the fortified towns of Shumia and Varna, until the complete formation of an indigenous militia, sufficient to preserve order, security and tranquillity, the number of which shall be fixed subsequently by agreement between the Ottoman government and the Russian Imperial Cabinet. The Russian troops will occupy the country and lend armed intervention to the commissary in case of need. This occupation will also be limited to an approximate period of two years. The Russian effective army of occupation, consisting of six divisions of infantry and two of cavalry, which will remain in Bulgaria after the evacuation of Turkey by the imperial army, will not exceed fifty thousand men, and shall be maintained at the expense of the country occupied. The Russian troops in Bulgaria will preserve communications with Russia, not only via Roumania, but also through ports on the Black Sea, Varna and Burghas, where the necessary depots may be organized for the duration of the occupation.

AMOUNT OF THE TRIBUTE.

9. The amount of the annual tribute which Bulgaria shall pay to the Suzerain Court, through the agency of a bank which shall subsequently be designated by the Sublime Porte, will be determined by an agreement between the Russian government and the Ottoman and other cabinets. At the end of the first year a new organization of the tribute will be established, based upon the mean revenue of the whole of the territory forming part of the principality. Bulgaria will be substituted for the Ottoman government in its charges and obligations toward the Rustchuk and Varna Railway Company after an understanding between the Sublime Porte, the government of the principality and the administration of this company. A regulation relative to the other railways passing through the principality is also reserved for an agreement between the Sublime Porte, the government of Bulgaria and the administration of the companies interested.

NO BASHI-BAZOUKS NEED APPLY.

10. The Sublime Porte shall have the right to make use of the Bulgarian route for the transport by roads to be determined, of its troops, ammunition and commissariat in the provinces situated beyond the principality and vice versâ. In order to avoid difficulties and misunderstanding in the exercise of this right, while guaranteeing the military necessities of the Sublime Porte a special regulation will establish the conditions within the space of three months after the ratification of the present document. By an understanding between the Sublime Porte and the Bulgarian administration it is well understood that this right will extend only to the Ottoman regular troops, and that the irregulars—bashi-bazouks and Circassians—will be absolutely excluded from it. The Porte reserves also the right to send through the principalities its mails, and there to keep up a fixed line of communication. The two points will be likewise regulated in the manner and at the time above indicated.

RIGHTS OF LANDOWNERS.

11. The Mussulman landowners or others who may fix their personal residence outside the principality will be able to preserve their landed property by causing it to be administered by others. Turco-Bulgarian commissaries will sit in the principal centres of population, under the superintendence of Russian commissioners, to administer as the supreme power, for the period of two years, in all questions relative to the verifying of claims to landed property in which the interests of Mussulmans or others shall be involved. Analogous commissions will be intrusted to regulate during two years all affairs relative to the mode of alienation and management, or for the use on account of the Sublime Porte of the lands of the State and of the Vacoufs. At the expiration of two years all lands which shall not have been claimed will be sold by auction, and the product will be devoted to the support of the widows and orphans, both of Mussulmans and Christians, the sufferers by the late events. Inhabitants of the Bulgarian principality who may travel or remain in other parts of the Ottoman Empire will be subject to the Ottoman laws and authorities.

END OF THE DANUBIAN FORTRESSES.

12. All the fortresses of the Danube shall be razed. There shall henceforth be no more fortified towns upon the banks of this river nor ships of war in the waters of the principalities of Roumania, Servia and Bulgaria, save guard boats and light vessels intended for the river police and coast guard services. The rights, obligations and prerogatives of the International Commission of the Lower Danube are maintained intact.

THE RIVER NAVIGATION.

13. The Sublime Porte undertakes the re-establishment of the navigation of the passage of Sulina and the compensation of the private individuals whose property may have suffered on account of the war, and from the interruption of navigation of the Danube, assigning for the purposes of this double expense the sum of 500,000l. out of the moneys due to them by the Danubian Commission.

THE AUSTRO-RUSSIAN UNDERSTANDING.

14. The European proposals communicated to the Ottoman Plenipotentiaries in the first sitting of the Conference at Constantinople, with the modifications which shall be determined upon by common agreement between the Porte and the governments of Russia, Austria and Hungary, shall be immediately introduced into Bosnia and Herzegovina. The arrears of payment will not be exacted, and the current revenues of these provinces up to the 1st March, 1880, shall be exclusively employed to indemnify the families of refugees and sufferers by recent events, without distinction of race or religion, according to the local needs. The sum which will annually revert afterward to the central government will be subsequently fixed by a special understanding between Turkey, Russia, Austria and Hungary.

THE ISLAND OF CRETE.

15. The Sublime Porte undertakes scrupulously to apply in the Island of Crete the regulation put in force in 1868, while paying regard to the wishes expressed by the indigenous population. An analogous ordinance adapted to the needs of the localities will be also introduced into Epirus, Thessaly and other portions of Turkey in Europe, for which there will be a special organization not within the purview of the present document. Special commissions, in which the indigenous element shall largely participate, shall be commissioned in each province to elaborate the details of the new ordinance. The result of these labors shall be submitted to the examination of the Sublime Porte, which will consult the Russian government before putting them in execution.

TURKISH REFORMS IN ARMENIA.

16. As the evacuation by the Russian troops of the territories in Armenia which are to be restored to Turkey might give rise to conflicts and prejudicial complications in the relations of the two countries, the Porte undertakes to effect without further delay the ameliorations and reforms called for by local requirements in the provinces inhabited by Armenians, and to guarantee their security against Kurds and Circassians.

AMNESTY TO ALL.

17. A full amnesty shall be extended to Ottoman subjects compromised in recent events, and all persons now incarcerated by reason of these or sent into exile shall be immediately restored to liberty.

CONCESSIONS.

18 and 19. The Sublime Porte shall take into serious consideration the opinion pronounced by the Commissioners of the mediating Powers with regard to the possession of the town of Khotour, and undertakes to cause the execution of the work of definitive demarcation of the Turco-Persian frontier. The indemnities for the war and the losses entailed upon Russia, which the Emperor of Russia claims and which the Sublime Porte has undertaken to reimburse, consist of:—A. Nine hundred millions of roubles for the expenses of the war. B. Four hundred millions of roubles for damage caused to the southern seacoast of the country, to its commerce, exports, industry and railways. C. A hundred millions of roubles for damage caused to the Caucasus by invasion. D. Ten millions of roubles for damage (with interest) caused to Russian subjects and institutions in Turkey; total, 1,410,000,000 of roubles. Taking into consideration the financial embarrassments of Turkey and in accordance with the desire of the Sultan, the Emperor of Russia consents to exchange the payment of the greater portion of the sums enumerated in the preceding paragraph for the following territorial concessions:—A. The Sandjak of Tultscha—that is, the districts of Kilia, Sulina Mahumdie, Isakitscha, Tultscha Matshin, Baba Dagh, Hirsova Kustendje and Medjidje, as well as the islands of the Danube Delta and the Isle of Serpents. Russia, not desiring to annex this territory or the islands of the Danube Delta, reserves the power to exchange it for the portion of Bessarabia alienated by the treaty of 1856, and bounded on the south by the arm of the Kilia and the mouth of the Stary Stamboul. The question of the partition of the waters and fisheries shall be regulated by a Russo-Roumanian commission within the space of a year after the ratification of the treaty of peace. B. Ardahan, Kars, Batoum, Bayazid and the territory as far as the Soghanli Dagh. Roughly speaking, the frontier, starting from the Black Sea, will follow the ridges of mountains which separate the affluents of the River Hopa from those of the Tchorisk and the chain of mountains by the town of Artvin to the river Tchoruk, near the villages of Ailat and Bechagesini; then the frontier will run along the summits of Mounts Derenik, Gnexi, Horisheyar and Bedigindagh, by the ridge separating the affluents of the Rivers Tortum, Tchai and Tchoruk, and over the heights near Yari Vihim, coming out at the village of Vihim Kilissa on the river Tortum Tchai; thence it will follow the Sirridagh chain to the pass of the same name, passing south of the village of Norman. It will then turn southeast and go to Zewin, whence, passing west of the road leading from Zewin to the village of Ardost and Khorassau, it will proceed south over the Saganlough chain as far as the village of Gilitchman: then by the ridge of Sharian Dagh it will reach a point ten versts south of Hamaour, in the defile of Mourad Tchai; it will then follow the ridge of the Ala Dagh and the summits of the Hori and Tan Dur, and passing south of the valley of Bayazid, will rejoin the old Turco-Persian frontier south of Lake Gaz i Gol. The definitive limits of the territory annexed to Russia, indicated upon the map annexed, shall be fixed by a commission composed of Russian and Ottoman delegates. This commission will take into account in its labors connected with the topography of the locality considerations for good administration and proper conditions for assuring the tranquillity of the country. C. The territories mentioned in paragraphs A and B are ceded to Russia as an equivalent for the sum of 1,100,000,000 of roubles. As for the rest of the indemnity, with the exception of 10,000,000 of roubles due to Russian interests and institutions in Turkey, or 300,000,000 roubles, the mode of payment of this sum and the guarantee to be given for it are regulated by agreement between the imperial government of Russia and that of His Majesty the Sultan. D. Ten millions of roubles claimed as an indemnity for Russian subjects and institutions in Turkey shall be paid by degrees, as the claims of the persons interested shall have been examined by the Russian Embassy at Constantinople and transmitted to the Sublime Porte.

MATTERS OF LAW.

20. The Sublime Porte shall take efficacious measures for the amicable settlement of all the lawsuits of Russian subjects pending for several years, compensate the latter if there be occasion, and cause the judgments delivered to be executed without delay.

RIGHTS OF NON-RESIDENTS.

21. Those of the inhabitants of the localities ceded to Russia who may desire to establish their residence outside those territories will be at liberty to depart, selling their landed property. Three years delay, dating from the ratification of the present document, are granted to them for this purpose. Beyond that period those inhabitants who shall not have left the country or sold their lands will be Russian subjects. Landed property belonging to the State, or pious establishments situated outside the aforesaid localities, are to be sold within the same period of three years by means which shall be determined by a Russo-Turkish special commission. The same commission shall be intrusted to determine the mode of the withdrawal by the Ottoman government of the war material, ammunition, provisions and other articles belonging to the State, which may be in the towns, cities and localities ceded to Russia and not occupied at present by the Russian troops.

PROTECTION TO RELIGIOUS SECTS.

22. Russian clergymen, pilgrims and monks travelling or staying in European and Asiatic Turkey shall enjoy the same rights, advantages and privileges as foreign clergymen belonging to other nationalities. The right of official protection of the imperial embassy and Russian consuls in Turkey is recognized both with regard to the persons aforementioned and to their possessions. Religious and philanthropic establishments and others, at holy places and elsewhere, of the monks of Mount Athos, of Russian origin, shall be maintained in their former possessions and privileges, and shall continue to enjoy in the three convents which belong to them and in their dependencies the same rights and prerogatives as those assured to the other religious establishments and the Mount Athos convents.

RESTORATION OF THE TREATIES.

23. All treaties, conventions and undertakings previously concluded between the two high contracting parties relative to the commerce, jurisdiction and position of Russian subjects in Turkey, which have been suppressed by the war, shall be put in force again, excepting those clauses which will be affected by the present document. The two governments will be reinstated as regards their mutual relations, for all their undertakings, commercial and otherwise, in the same situation in which they were placed before the declaration of war.

THE STRAITS.

24. The Bosphorus and Dardanelles will remain open in time of war as in time of peace to the merchant vessels of neutral States arriving from Russian ports or proceeding to those ports. The Sublime Porte undertakes in consequence not to establish henceforth in the ports of the Black Sea and the Sea of Azoff a fictitious blockade which shall depart from the spirit of the Declaration of Paris of 1856.

WHEN THE EVACUATION SHALL OCCUR.

25. The complete evacuation by the Russian army of European Turkey, with the exception of Bulgaria, shall take place within a period of three months from the definitive conclusion of peace between His Majesty the Emperor of Russia and His Majesty the Sultan. In order to save time, and to avoid the prolonged maintenance of Russian troops in Turkey and Roumania, a portion of the imperial army may proceed to the ports of the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmora for embarkation in vessels belonging to the Russian government, or freighted for the occasion. The evacuation of Asiatic Turkey shall be effected within the space of six months, dating from the definitive conclusion of peace, and the Russian troops shall be at liberty to embark at Trebizond to return by the Caucasus or by the Crimea. The operations for the evacuation shall commence immediately after the exchange of the ratifications.

HOW LONG MAY THIS LAST?

26. As long as the Russian troops remain in the localities which, according to the present document, will be restored to the Sublime Porte, the administration and order of things shall remain in the same state as since the occupation. The Sublime Porte shall take no part in it during this time, and until the entire departure no Ottoman troops shall enter the localities restored to the Sublime Porte. The latter shall not commence to exercise its authority there until, as each town and province shall have been evacuated by the Russian troops, the commander of those troops shall have given information to the officer appointed for this purpose by the Sublime Porte.

RUSSIAN SYMPATHIZERS.

27. The Sublime Porte undertakes not to treat rigorously in any way or allow to be so treated Ottoman subjects who have been compromised by their relations with the Russian army during the war. In case any persons may wish to depart with their families by following the Russian troops the Ottoman authorities shall not oppose their departure.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

28. Immediately after the ratification of the preliminaries of peace the prisoners of war shall be reciprocally restored through the agency of special commissioners named on each side, who shall proceed for that purpose to Odessa and Sebastopol. The Ottoman government shall pay all the expenses of the support of the restored prisoners in eighteen equal instalments within the period of six years according to the accounts which shall be substantiated by the above mentioned commissioners. The exchange of prisoners between the Ottoman government and the governments of Roumania, Servia and Montenegro shall take place upon the same bases, deducting, however, from the account to be drawn up the number of prisoners restored by the Ottoman government from the number of prisoners which they will receive in return.

BINDING UPON BOTH.

29. The present document will be ratified by their Majesties, the Emperor of Russia and the Emperor of the Ottomans, and ratifications will be exchanged in fifteen days, or sooner, if possible, at St. Petersburg, or both place and time may be agreed upon at which the stipulations of the present document may be invested with the solemn forms used in treaties of peace. It remains well understood, however, that the high contracting parties consider themselves formally bound by the present document from the moment of its ratification, in faith of which the respective plenipotentiaries have put their hand and seal to the present document.

GERMANY AND THE NETHERLANDS.

COMMENTS OF THE EUROPEAN PRESS ON THE HERALD EXPOSURES—THE BERLIN NORDDEUTSCHE ZEITUNG, THE CRACOW CZAS AND THE PARIS PRESSE—DENIAL FROM BERLIN, INDORSEMENT FROM PARIS AND CRACOW.

[From the Norddeutsche Zeitung, March 19.]

The Czas of Cracow publishes a letter addressed to it from Potsdam which reopens the subject of the pretended danger of Holland from German ambition. The writer even includes Belgium as being menaced by this danger. Many years ago we had occasion to demonstrate the unreality of the phantom, with the aid of which it is sought to arouse the apprehensions of the Dutch and the suspicions of other nations. We shall confine ourselves at present to recapitulating the principal points of our argument. At the time when the annexationist designs of Louis Napoleon upon Luxemburg were foiled his Prime Minister declared in the Chamber of Deputies that if Prussia attempted to advance in the direction of the Zuyder Zee France would oppose her. In a confidential communication he himself declared afterward that these were mere empty words, intended to reassure the French people on account of the failure of the Luxemburg scheme, and intimated that the French did not know where the Zuyder Zee was.

Since that time, however, the report to which we referred was circulated from salon to salon by a lady of high position, who is now dead, and no opportunity has been let pass of giving it publicity in the press. Recently the NEW YORK HERALD has, through the instrumentality of a special agent whom it sent to Belgium, gathered together all these imputations against German policy into one long article, of which a large number of copies have been widely circulated in Belgium. It is this mine which the Potsdam correspondent of the Czas has dug out, and he will doubtless continue to work for some time yet the statements he has found to hand, in the belief that a large number of the readers of the Czas understand only the Polish language and that they can therefore be supplied with news of the most absurd nature.

WEAKNESS OF THE GERMAN ARGUMENTS—THE STATEMENTS CORROBORATED.

[From the Paris Presse, March 20.]

A telegram from Berlin says:—

The Norddeutsche Zeitung publishes a letter said to have been addressed to the Czas of Cracow from Potsdam. This letter treats of the subject, so often discussed, of the dangers threatening Holland from Russian (?) ambition. The Norddeutsche Zeitung takes up the history of these accusations, by means of which it is sought to arouse the suspicions of other nations; it makes allusion to an article in which a clever correspondent of the NEW YORK HERALD who was sent to Belgium has collected all the flying rumors sent round through hostility to German policy. It is from this fruitful source that the Czas and other journals have derived their information.

We can say here, like the Marquis in the "Misanthrope" of Molière:—

"This is addressed to without any vanity."

In fact, the Presse came after the NEW YORK HERALD and before the Czas in denouncing the intrigues of Prussia in Holland and Belgium. It was the NEW YORK HERALD which first revealed the influence exercised on the King of the Belgians by the German proposals; it was the Presse which stated the precise nature of these offers, and the Czas, no doubt, brings forward some new facts in support of it. We will procure a copy of the letter in question which was published by the Cracow journal and we will publish at least the substance of it, if not a full translation.

But without going any further we may say at once that the arguments used by the Norddeutsche Zeitung in order to show that the allegations of the Czas are false appear to us to be very weak. They reduce themselves simply to an accusation that the Czas and the Presse have stolen the facts from the NEW YORK HERALD. Now, not one of the statements we made were published in the NEW YORK HERALD; but, for all that, the Norddeutsche Zeitung is itself moved by them, as is evidenced by the fact that it calls us hard names.

HELP FOR THE PANAMA SUFFERERS.

CONSULATE OF THE UNITED STATES OF COLOMBIA, NEW YORK, April 3, 1878.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I have been directed by the President of the State of Panama, in the United States of Colombia, South America, to appeal to the well known liberality and philanthropy of the people of the United States of America on behalf of the sufferers of the fire which occurred at Panama the 6th of March ult. According to the reports I have received by the last mail, many families are now homeless and absolutely destitute, needing everything for their daily life and support, and this at a time when the means of the local government and of private individual interests for their relief are nearly exhausted. I take, consequently, the liberty of addressing the charitable people of these States, through your columns, asking them to contribute anything they may be disposed to for this purpose. Messrs. Munoz and Espriella, of No. 61 Liberty street, and Mr. M. Camacho Roldaro, of No. 55 Pine street, have kindly agreed to receive and forward to Panama the contributions that may be sent to them. For my part I beg to recommend to your kindness the insertion in your valuable paper of these lines, hoping you will, and by so doing contribute to this charitable work. Yours respectfully, MIGUEL SALGAZ.

OPPOSITION TO A RAILROAD.

An adjourned meeting of the commissioners appointed to select a route and appraise lands for the Sheepshead Bay and Coney Island Railroad was held yesterday in the Kings County Court House. Samuel McElroy, civil engineer, testified as an expert that the route proposed would materially interfere with the proposed Surf avenue, which had already been surveyed. After a number of other witnesses had been examined, a document signed by all the hotel proprietors on the west end of Coney Island, except two, protesting against the road, was handed to the commissioners.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

Progress of the Work in the American Department.

DETAILS OF ORNAMENTATION.

Sketch of the More Interesting Features of the Exhibition.

HOTEL AND RESTAURANT CHARGES.

PARIS, March 20, 1878.

I visited the Exhibition again yesterday to ascertain what progress had been made in the American department. I found things there in pretty much the same condition as on the occasion of my previous visit. Ostensibly no progress has been made. The only evidence of preparation that I observed was confined to the sluggish operations of a couple of masons who were employed in laying down a brick foundation for the façade. As those of the other departments are already well advanced toward completion and offer to the eye a line of very beautiful and interesting, if not imposing, architectural constructions, I naturally felt anxious to know what prospects there were of our speedily filling up the blank left in this range of artistic and charmingly varied frontages. Fortunately I chanced to meet with Mr. Rufus M. Smith, the director of the works of installation, and in a few words he quieted my apprehensions. The façade, he said, was being prepared elsewhere in separate parts and would be set up and completed in about three weeks. As regarded the internal arrangements the space had all been assigned at New York, and the showcases, which had also been prepared at the other side, were all ready and were now on their way over with the goods. As soon as they arrived a numerous and well organized body of workmen would take them in hand, and he felt confident that by the time the Exhibition opened the American department would be found in as forward a state as that of any other nationality. These assurances are, of course, very satisfactory, but they require for their fulfilment equal energy on the part of the exhibitors themselves. There will, no doubt, be found among them laggards, as is always the case, but as the great majority of those exhibiting will probably forward the same goods and the same cases which they sent to the Philadelphia Exposition, there is no reason to apprehend that our people will be among the most prominent in that line.

AN OFFICIAL VISIT.

Last week the American Minister, following the example of the Prince of Wales and the Marshal, made a sort of official visit to the Exhibition works and was treated with the utmost attention and courtesy by the functionaries in charge. As the works progress the beauty and harmony of the whole design fast develop themselves. The details of ornamentation which now constitute almost the only portion of the general plan remaining to be completed are being rapidly carried out and the visitor is thus enabled to form a pretty correct idea of what the entire effect will be. The unequalled advantages of the site of course count for much in the impression made upon him, but the manner in which the general outlines are filled up offers another evidence of the astonishing results to which high artistic cultivation may attain in the elaboration of a colossal undertaking of this kind.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING.

The distribution and planting of the grounds are sufficiently advanced to give a clear notion of the part which these features are likely to play in the present work of decoration. Up to a comparatively recent period the French had made little progress in landscape gardening. To the second Empire in this, as in many other branches of art, its unmistakable progress is due. The taste for rigid geometrical lines has entirely given place to the graceful undulatory forms and sudden surprises of the gardening of the English school. It is in this style that the grounds of the Exhibition are being laid out. The area at the disposal of the gardeners is unfortunately too small to produce all the effect that could be desired; but, limited as it is, advantage has been taken of every inch of space to render the framework of the industrial tableau worthy of it.

THE ALGERIAN PALACE.

The pavilions belonging to the different nationalities are also rapidly going forward. The Algerian palace, which is being constructed under the superintendence of the Algerian Commissioners, is completed, all except the decorative portions of the interior, which will be very elaborate. The general effect is very imposing. General Chanzy, Governor General of Algeria, paid a visit to the building yesterday, and was received by the functionaries designed for this special service as well as by the Arab personnel. His Excellency expressed himself as much satisfied with the progress of the work. The foundations of the Egyptian pavilion are only just being laid. It is situated close to the Persian building, and will, it is said, be one of the most interesting of these special national edifices. The Khedive will spare no expense upon it. He never does whenever the gratification of his whims or vanity is concerned. The only money which it is difficult for him to find is that destined to the payment of the unfortunate holders of Egyptian securities.

SLOW PROGRESS.

One of the slowest portions of the general work and one which causes the greatest inconvenience, inasmuch as it forms the only direct medium of communication between the Trocadero and the Champs de Mars, is the enlargement and recovering of the Pont de Jena. The iron joists and balustrades are all laid, but the wooden flooring is not as yet commenced and only adventurous people attempt to cross on the single planks laid for the workmen. I was silly enough to make the experiment and paid for my foolhardiness by a fall amid the stones and iron work, from the effect of which I suffered for several days. Notwithstanding the risk attending the venture ladies and children are daily to be seen clamoring for permission to be allowed to cross. The police very properly refuse to permit any but men to confront the danger, and this is needless, seeing that there are ferryboats for passengers crossing the river every five minutes.

"AMERICAN LIBERTY."

It is decided that the bust of the colossal statue of the Union Americaine by the sculptor Bartholdi, which is destined for New York harbor, and which is all of the figure that is completed, will be placed midway between the buildings on the Champs de Mars and the Seine, with the face turned toward the Trocadero. It is a pity that the entire figure could not be exhibited. A correct idea could then be formed of its colossal proportions and importance. I have no doubt if this were done a large amount could be raised in aid of the work from the visitors to the Exhibition—if not through regard for America, from the influence of pure wonder and admiration.

THE AMERICAN COLONY.

The members of the American colony are making preparations for the reception of the large influx of our compatriots which is anticipated. A great many, I understand, will forego their usual summer trip in order to welcome their friends and acquaintances. Matinées and fêtes champêtres will be, perforce, the general style of entertainment. Those who have suburban residences will of course be in a position to give popularity and éclat to them. I know one of our residents who has already given an order for the construction of a marquee for the accommodation of 800 persons. The crème de la crème of the American colony—that is to say, that small and exclusive portion of it which has married its daughters to the pauper cadets of the impoverished French noblesse—will of course quit the city, to avoid contact with the crowd of hardfisted but wealthy manufacturers from New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, who will count for the next seven or eight months among the most notable and important of our visitors.

GERMANY'S TARDY FRIENDSHIP.

Nothing has occurred in connection with the Exhibition which has created a more general feeling of satisfaction than the announcement that the Emperor of Germany has consented to the participation of the German artists in the Exhibition. The manner in which all co-operation had been refused by the imperial government at the outset had left upon the public mind here a very uneasy and anxious feeling. It seemed as if only a decent pretext were sought for to renew hostilities between the two countries. That was a bad omen for a fête which was intended to emulate the general friendly disposition of other nations and to indicate the desire of France to cultivate the closest relations with all. The prompt and gracious manner in which the Emperor met the advances of the Count de St. Vallier, and consented to allow the German artists to contribute to the Exhibition has removed all cause for apprehension and proved to the world that the only motive for the previous interdiction was furnished by the clerical tendencies of the De Broglie government. That fruitful source of danger removed no further drawback to the success of the Exhibition is to be apprehended, except, perhaps, that furnished by the Eastern question, which most people here believe will be peaceably settled when the collective wisdom of the representatives of the Powers interested gets fairly to work upon it.

AMERICAN ARTISTS.

The American artists resident here are busily at work for the Salon and the great exhibition, nearly all contributing one or more pictures to each. I am happy to be able to announce to you that the unusual inducements held out to their ambition this year have had for result the production of a number of works of considerable merit, foremost among which I may mention a "Sardanapalus Practising Archery," by F. A. Bridgman, treated with his usual archaeological conscientiousness; a "Commodus at the Head of the Successful Gladiators," by Edwin H. Blashfield, a picture exhibiting commendable progress; a "Cromwell at the Bedside of His Daughter," by Milne Ramsay, a work fine in sentiment and admirably handled, and a Scriptural piece by Miss Gardner, forming a pendant to her "Ruth and Naomi" of last year and which is a notable advance on the merits of that excellent picture.

LODGING AND PRICES.

There is another matter connected with the Exhibition respecting which, though of minor importance, I feel satisfied that many of your readers will be anxiously looking for information. I allude to the preparations for the lodging and feeding of the vast crowds which it will bring to Paris from all parts of the world. Although the hotel and lodging house keepers have been proclaiming that they will keep down their charges as low as possible, I am afraid that strangers will not only find great paucity of accommodation, but a disposition on the part of those people to make the most of the situation. The apartments in Paris are constructed with such a strict relation to the wants of families that unless in the houses of rich people such a thing as a "spare room" is unknown. This being the case, the number of postulants who on such occasion usually find hospitality in other cities in the houses of their friends, will be compelled to resort to hotels and lodging houses, thus diminishing by so many heads the accommodation that would be open to foreigners. It is anticipated that the difficulty of providing for the latter will be so great that they will be compelled to accept almost any kind of shelter. Speculators are accordingly hiring all the empty unfurnished apartments they can find and fitting them up with sleeping accommodations merely.

A GLOOMY OUTLOOK.

The degree of comfort which their inmates may find there constitutes only the smallest part of their preoccupations, for they calculate that endurance will stand any strain that may be put upon it. But this will not be the only vexation to which foreigners will have to submit. They must not imagine that the proverbial excellence and moderateness of the Paris restaurants will compensate them for the discomfort of their lodgings. All the indications go to show that the prices of these establishments will undergo a sudden revolution as soon as the Exhibition opens. Already the prices of meats and vegetables are enormously high, and families of small means find it difficult to live. Those that can get away into the country can, of course, find a palliation for the evil, but the proportion of persons thus situated to the general population is so small that their absence will in no way affect the rates of living. I know it will be said, in answer to all this, that, as at Vienna, the hotel keepers and restaurateurs will overshoot the mark, and that a reaction in favor of economical charges will speedily set in. But Paris is not like Vienna, or, in fact, like any other city. While it has few means of expansion it has the largest floating population of any of the European capitals. How, then, is it to provide for such an enormous increase to its usual exigencies in the way of living accommodations? Evidently only by inconveniencing and discomforting some and heavily taxing others.

THE FISHERIES.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF THE ROW IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., March 25, 1878.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Until very recently there was not probably another colony under the Crown where Americans were more popular than in this old-fashioned island, and it is only natural that we should have a leaning toward you. We traded with you long before you flaunted the Stars and Stripes; our fishermen bought your flour and drank your New England rum two centuries ago; trade, too, had run toward the United States more than to Canada. Much was due to old association and something to your geographical position. In this friendly mood we accepted the Washington Treaty; we believed it would be a substitution for the old Reciprocity Treaty, and it was all but unanimously adopted. In dealing with a great and enlightened country like the United States we anticipated that, from our peculiar character, not only we should be treated honorably, but, not being rivals in any way in trade like Canada, we should be liberally dealt with in every respect. We trusted the United States; we trusted them in spite of the fact that here the gift enterprise man has found a new and virgin field for his operations; that the pedler with a worthless book, the patent medicine man, the agent for the flour sifter and other swindlers long played out in your country here have ample room and verge enough. All these have been forcibly impressing on the colonists for some years past that the Americans were a smart people. We trusted you because our commercial intercourse was close and was honorably conducted; the pedler did not disturb our general faith in the nation.

The first thing that dispelled our illusion was the exclusion of our staple article, seal oil, admitted free under the Reciprocity Treaty. Then came the celebrated decree about taxing the package, though the fish was free, and lastly, in direct violation of the terms of the treaty, you put a tax of forty per cent on our cod liver oil. No doubt the eminent statesmen at Washington who gave these decisions against us thought it was smart, but the unsophisticated colonists look upon it simply as a mean, dirty, Yankee trick, worthy of a low pettifogging lawyer, but utterly discreditable to a civilized government. We feel thankful that we have no other articles on which we can be swindled.

Respecting the award of the Halifax Commission our people have gone through three stages of feeling:—First, a pretty general belief that you would pay and a feeling that though we had made a bad bargain we would honorably fulfil the compact. Second, we pretty considerably reckoned you won't pay, and this has aroused a feeling of indignation and hostility against your fishermen which will not be easily obliterated. Your government has been piling the agony too high on us. Now the universal feeling among us is the hope that somehow the treaty may be put an end to, and they consider if you won't pay the award that the imperial government will put an end to the treaty. All our harbors were crowded with American craft last summer and the summer before getting bait and ice. So much bait was taken as in many cases to leave our own fishermen idle, but though the exercise of your treaty rights are found most detrimental to our interests in this and in many other respects we considered that a solemn compact had been made, and we must only submit to let things take their legitimate course to the bitter end, however serious the loss might be to us. The course, however, pursued by the American government has been so unfair and so unjust toward us that we have now determined to allow you no more fishing privileges than are given by the strict terms of the treaty, and for this purpose a committee of the Legislature is now considering how the subject can be best effected. All the best informed testimony shows that the immense quantities of bait required by your fishermen tends so to lessen the supply that our own fishermen are often left idle for want of bait and serious alarm is felt lest our coast fisheries should be altogether ruined from this cause. Long as I have lived in the colony I have never known so complete a revulsion of feeling as has taken place here on the Washington Treaty. The circumstances about the Long Harbor affair are very simple. The American schooners were violating the law in three distinct ways:—

First—They were seining at an illegal time.

Second—They were "inbarring"—that is, having the ends of the nets fastened to the shore, and thus enclosing the herrings in a kind of pound. This is illegal.

Third—They were seining in this manner by inbarring on Sunday, which is prohibited by law. There is very little doubt but our own people were also breaking the law, but they would not fish on Sunday, and when they would not do it themselves it was only natural that they should not allow strangers to violate the law before their eyes. They gave the American captains full notice to take up their seines. All did it but one, and this seine, as it was hauled ashore by the Newfoundland fishermen, was torn by a few boys that were present. It was a rotten old seine, and worth somewhat less than $40,000.

NEWFOUNDLANDER.

WAYLAID AND ROBBED.

MR. HAMMER, OF PASSAIC, ALMOST SLAIN BY THREE FOOTPADS ON A RAILROAD TRACK.

From Passaic City, N. J., Mr. John Hammer went to Paterson on Saturday evening. Returning home he, having missed the train, walked back along the railway. When he arrived at Lakeview station he was confronted by three men, who came from behind the building. He stepped aside to let them pass and then a thousand lights danced before his eyes for a moment and he fell struck by some one on the head. His senses failed him, and when they returned he found himself stretched upon the track, his head and arms upon one of the rails and himself unable to rise. Sharp pains shot through his head and limbs and he laid still trying to recollect where he was and what he was about when the mishap befell him.

He got on his feet and staggered along the track. Some distance down he noticed a house standing a little way off from the road. Making his way to the place he rapped, and in reply to a man who thrust his head out of an upper window he begged for assistance. This was the residence of a Mr. John Crooks, who came down and let him in. Mr. Hammer related his adventure and learned to his surprise that it was nearly three o'clock in the morning. He must have been lying insensible across the railway track for more than two hours. The murderous ruffians who had waylaid, robbed (for it was discovered that a thorough search had been made of his pockets) and nearly killed him, had left him for dead. His body had been so placed that the cars would crush out all traces of their crime. It so happened, however, that the train which Hammer missed is the last one over the road on Sunday morning until the Atlantic express passes Lakeview at twenty-one minutes past six.

Mr. Crooks assisted the injured man to his own home. Mr. Hammer lost consciousness several times before he reached his residence, where he arrived at four A. M. A surgeon was sent for, and found that Mr. Hammer's skull had been fractured, and grave doubts are entertained of his recovery.

There are no traces of the parties who attacked him and who were doubtless tramps, who make the railroad routes their great highways, because of the opportunities they are afforded of stealing on board freight trains.

EMIGRANT TRANSPORTATION.

At a regular meeting of the Commissioners of Emigration yesterday the application of the New Jersey Central and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad companies for the admission of their agents to Castle Garden was denied. The Commissioners stated that the agents of the Erie, New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads, who were permitted to enter, could offer every advantage to the emigrants and they did not think it advisable under the circumstances to admit more.

THE RESTELL SUICIDE.

SENSATIONAL RUMOR IN REGARD TO A BOGUS CORPSE—WHAT CORONER WOLTMAN SAYS—THE REMAINS IDENTIFIED ONLY BY RELATIVES.

In connection with the recent suicide of Mme. Restell a sensational rumor obtained wide circulation in the city yesterday. This was, in effect, that the person above named was not dead, but that she and her friends had substituted the body of another woman for the purpose of evading the criminal suit brought against her, while she, herself, had proceeded, by way of Canada, on a pleasure trip to Europe. In support of these assumptions were alleged, among other things, the seeming disinclination of the members of the household at No. 657 Fifth avenue to enter into the particulars of the manner in which the late mistress of the mansion met her death, and the persistent reticence of her immediate relatives in regard to her business affairs. While the principal grounds on which the rumor is based are not altogether untenable an investigation conducted by a HERALD reporter in regard to the sensational allegation indicated was attended by results which leave little room to doubt that the last report relating to the tragedy is purely imaginary. At the same time it may be stated that neither Coroner Woltman nor any member of the jury who sat in the case are willing to say positively that the corpse which they viewed on the occasion was that of Mme. Restell, as none of them had known her sufficiently well during her lifetime to attest the identity of the corpse.

INTERVIEW WITH THE CORONER.

Coroner Woltman, in reply to inquiries by the writer, said:—I think the body that I saw at No. 657 Fifth avenue on Monday was that of Mme. Restell. Of my personal knowledge I do not know whether it was hers or not. I have seen her on several occasions driving in the Central Park, but I was not sufficiently familiar with her features to recognize the corpse as hers. I did not think it strange that no blood was found on the floor of the bathroom, as the deceased had inflicted the wound on that side of her neck nearest to the wall. When I saw the body in the bathtub at a quarter past ten o'clock it lay with the head to the east and the knees drawn up so that it was almost in a sitting posture. Now if the blood had spurted forcibly on the artery being severed it must necessarily have struck the wood work encasing the wall, and this we examined carefully without finding any trace of blood; there was a little blood on the south side of the bathtub, evidently caused by the deceased having placed her left hand on the edge of the bath after cutting her throat; in the bottom of the bathtub there was coagulated blood, and also on the knife near the handle. Dr. Cushman and myself were both satisfied that it was a plain case of suicide. I examined all the windows of the house carefully before coming to that conclusion. There was nothing unusual in sewing up the wound in the throat before the jury saw the body. It was done in the cause of common decency. I didn't know that the undertaker was going to sew the wounds, as I merely left an order to wash the body and lay it out. I was accidentally called to officiate in the case, and knowing that the deceased had a somewhat notorious reputation, I proceeded in it with more than usual caution; for instance, when I saw three diamond rings on the fingers, I called Mr. Stewart into the bath room before taking them off.

I have seen some three thousand bodies during my term of office, and out of that number I could only swear to the identity of a very few. The rumor that some other corpse had been substituted for that of Mme. Restell must have originated in some wild brain, and has been prompted by malicious motives or some other kindred feeling. I have no doubt whatever that the body I saw was that of Mme. Restell, and to confirm this belief Mr. Sherwood, one of the jurors, told me he had seen her in life and was satisfied that the body was hers.

WHAT THE JURYMEN SAY.

Mr. John H. Sherwood, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank, who acted as foreman of the jury, said:—I cannot say with certainty that the body was that of Mrs. Lohman. I had frequently seen her on the street, and she called on me some years ago in regard to the purchase of real estate which I owned; she did not get it, however. I have also seen her several times in the office of the Mutual Insurance Company, of which I am a trustee, but I had never spoken to her at the latter place. I cannot say, however, that I was sufficiently familiar with her features to assert that such a thing as the substituting of another body might not have been successfully done. I saw the body and examined the wounds in the throat, but I am not positive that the remains were those of Mrs. Lohman. I recollect now that the face of the corpse looked shorter than hers, as she had in life rather long features, and again, the forehead looked fuller than hers; there was, apparently, more development of the brain than her head appeared to possess in life; I was a little surprised that a large, healthy woman, as she was, should die without a struggle that would have thrown some blood on the carpet; there was not a particle of blood to be seen anywhere. I have always thought that when the jugular vein is severed in that way the blood would spurt with such force as to throw it beyond the limits of the bath tub in which the body was found. My impression of the features of Mrs. Lohman are not such as would prevent a subterfuge of the kind that is rumored as having been played upon me."

Mr. George Hanft, another member of the Coroner's jury, said:—"Well, I don't know whether it was the body of Mme. Restell or not, having never seen her in her lifetime. I saw the face; it was that of a woman. The Coroner or his deputy held up the head to let the jury see the wounds in the neck, but the wounds had been sewed up then. The servant girl who found the body in the bathroom swore it was Mme. Restell, and the Coroner told us it was, and that is all I know about it. I thought, however, that it was unusual to sew up the wounds before the jury saw the body."

Mr. William C. Ford, a juryman, said:—"I cannot tell whether or not it was the body of Mme. Restell that we saw at No. 657 Fifth avenue; I never saw her during life and, of course, did not know her. Whoever the dead woman was it was evident from the testimony that it was a clear case of suicide. I saw the wound in the neck, but did not notice whether it had been sewed up or not. I place no reliance on the rumor that the body was not that of Mme. Restell, although of my own knowledge I don't know whether it was or not. We were in the room where the remains lay but a short time when the Coroner took us up stairs."

Mr. John Arrell, another juror, said:—"The body was represented to be that of Mme. Restell. I don't know whether it was or not, as I had never seen her in life. The family and servants swore that the remains were those of Mme. Restell. The Coroner showed us the wounds on the neck. They had then been sewn up. I did not think this was strange, although I would rather have seen the wounds before they were sewed up. I have no idea that the body was any other than that of Mme. Restell."

Mr. Louis Sommer, a juror, said:—"All I know is that we were informed that it was the body of Mme. Restell. I had never seen her in life. The wounds in the neck looked as if they had been washed and closed. Do not know if they were sewn. I expected to see a horrible sight, but was agreeably disappointed in the appearance of the corpse."

Mr. W. P. Baker, also a juror, said:—"I don't know whose corpse it was: it was the face of a woman I saw. I noticed a certain resemblance between the corpse and an oil painting of a female hanging in the room. The features of the deceased also resembled pictures of Mme. Restell that I have seen in the illustrated papers. I did not scrutinize the features of the corpse, and for anything I know to the contrary the corpse might have been that of some other woman."

AT THE SUICIDE'S MANSION.

The late residence of the suicide on Fifth avenue is now more than ever the object of curiosity, and four out of five passers-by stare undisguisedly at it. No emblem of mourning has been displayed, and the windows are no more carefully shaded than they always have been. Two stalwart policemen stood a little distance away as the HERALD reporter approached, and when asked if they could throw any light on the subject of the rumor that the alleged suicide was a hoax they laughed. "Indade," said one of them, "it was the 1st of April. It might have been a hoax, bedad, an' if it was it was the Coroner an' not the police was fooled." Further inquiry being made he said that a policeman was sent to the house as soon as the matter was known, but the Coroner also went immediately and took charge of the case.

A ring at the door was answered after a long pause by a fashionably dressed young man, who at first affected ignorance of the report that Mme. Restell had fled from the country, but afterward spoke of hearing it merely as a rumor. He hesitated when asked if he was a member of the family, and then said he was not and would not give his name. He spoke, however, for the family, and said that he thought it needlessly cruel to circulate such a rumor, as there was no question about the identity of the suicide and absolutely no foundation for the report. The story that the representatives of the press had been excluded from the inquest was also, he said, untrue, and he could not, nor could any of the family, imagine how the rumor had been started. However it was, he said emphatically again, it was cruel to harrow the feelings of a family plunged in trouble by so unreasonable a rumor.

THE WILL.

The office of the Surrogate was thronged yesterday by inquirers as to whether the relatives of Mrs. Lohman had applied for the opening of her will. To all these a reply in the negative was given.

The will is said to be a lengthy document, though its provisions may be briefly stated. Mrs. Lohman leaves nearly all her property, both real and personal, to her two grandchildren. There is a bequest to the daughter, but it is of an inconsiderable amount. The property consists mainly of real estate and bonds. The will was executed early in 1877, and was drawn by the firm of Barlow, Larocque, Shipman & McFarland.

RAPID TRANSIT IN BROOKLYN.

A meeting of the five commissioners appointed by Mayor Howell, of Brooklyn, to select a route for the construction of a rapid transit railway in that city, was held at No. 213 Montague street last evening. Mr. Felix Campbell was elected permanent president, Colonel Culyer secretary and Mr. Clements treasurer of the commission. It was resolved that Messrs. Clements and Lowery should see that the bonds of the commissioners had been properly filed, and that copies of the law under which they were acting should be furnished to each member of the commission at the next meeting. It was also resolved that the commission should be known as the "Board of Commissioners of Rapid Transit for the City of Brooklyn." The meeting was adjourned until next Friday.

THE COURTS.

Liabilities of Trustees in Respect to Government Taxes.

COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

In the United States District Court Judge Blatchford rendered a decision yesterday in a suit brought by the United States against the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company. It has reference to the obligations of trustees, executors and administrators to render a schedule of their trusts to the national revenue assessor and to pay the tax of one per cent as provided by the act of June 30, 1874. The suit was brought to recover one per cent on $281,593 deposited with the defendants by the trustees of the estate of the late Frederick Brown. The money was to be paid on the son of Mr. Brown reaching twenty-five years, but the trustees refused to pay the tax. Judge Blatchford, after reciting at length the facts of the case, decides that the United States have no valid claim to recover this tax. He then proceeds to consider the claims of the three other taxes, and concludes his opinion as follows:—"In the present case, the clear value of the beneficial interest of the son in the one-third of the personal estate of the testator was, under the will, at most, the value of the estate for life of the son in such one-third; according to the statement of facts agreed on at the trial it included all the property which passed to the defendant in trust under the will. Such one-third was, as appears by the will, to be one-third of both real and personal estate. One-third of the personal estate, according to the inventory, was $351,593. One-third of that given in trust to the defendant for the son was $117,197 67. On the evidence the United States received, in receiving the $8,559 15, a tax of one per cent on the clear value at the time of the death of the testator of an estate for the life of the son in all the personal property which passed to the defendant under the will in trust for the son. This includes a tax on the value at the same time of an estate for seven years, or of an annuity for seven years in or on such personal property, and includes the tax now claimed. Such tax has therefore been paid. It results, therefore, that there must be judgment for the defendant."

MEMENTO OF EDWARD S. STOKES.

In the suit brought by Frederick A. Xenni against Edward S. Stokes and Nancy Stokes, his mother, growing out of business transactions connected with the Sterling Oil Works, the facts of which have been published, the defendants, as will be remembered, gave a joint bond in $6,000 as security for costs. A final judgment in the Court of Appeals having been given against the defendants, an effort is being made to enforce the payment of the bond. E. S. Stokes now resists the payment of the bond, and in an affidavit submitted yesterday to Judge Lawrence, states that during 1874 and up to November, 1876, he was confined at Sing Sing State Prison; that he has no recollection of the papers to the suit, which was commenced during his imprisonment, having been served upon him, and that certainly no papers have since been served on him. He also raises the point that the bond being given jointly his mother cannot be held liable as she was a married woman, and that he cannot be held liable, the bond being a joint one. An opposing affidavit sets up that the papers were served on Stokes while in prison. The motion to come in and defend made on behalf of Stokes was granted by Judge Lawrence, on payment of costs, and the case set down for trial on the 15th inst.

INTERNAL REVENUE COLLECTORS.

Judge Blatchford rendered a decision yesterday in the suit of the United States against Oliver H. P. Archer. The Collector of Internal Revenue issued his summons to Mr. Archer asking him to appear before him with his books to give evidence respecting his income from certain specified sources. Mr. Archer failed to comply with the summons, and a motion was made before Judge Blatchford for an attachment, in order to test the question whether the Collector's authority to examine persons under oath was limited to cases where assessments might be made, or might be employed generally in aid of actions in court to recover taxes after the time of assessment had expired. Judge Blatchford decides that the sections under which these proceedings were held furnish the machinery for information in aid of the Collector and are limited to cases where the assessment may be made. In this case no assessment could be made on any tax which might be declared by that investigation. Judge Blatchford denied the motion for the attachment.

SUIT AGAINST BOUCICAULT.

In Supreme Court, Circuit, held by Judge Donohue, there was called to trial yesterday the suit brought by Robert McWade against Dion Boucicault to recover $16,000 damages he claims to have sustained through the publication in the HERALD on February 18, 1875, of a letter written by Mr. Boucicault. Mr. McWade, who says he is a dramatic author, claims that the passage in the letter in question, in which Mr. Boucicault says that he is resolved "to pursue and exterminate these impudent pirates and audacious thieves, who prowl around the purlieus of the drama to seize on every success," has greatly injured him. Mr. William F. Howe, who appeared for the plaintiff, expressed his readiness to go on with the trial, but it was adjourned until next week.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

Johanna Kruger has commenced suit for divorce against her husband, Charles Kruger, to whom she was married on the 19th of April, 1865, at Halberstadt, Germany. No answer or demurrer having been put in to the complaint Chief Justice Daly yesterday ordered a reference to Thomas Nolan.

William Kennedy and Charles Reilly yesterday pleaded guilty to burglary and were sentenced each to five years in the State Prison. Charles Evans, for larceny, was sent to the same institution for two years by Judge Gildersleeve, he pleading guilty. Francis Van Rensseller was found guilty of highway robbery and sentenced by Judge Sutherland to State Prison for eight years. John Bogardus, for a similar offence, was sent to State Prison for one year.

John H. Cheever, assignee of Andrew McKinney, submitted yesterday to Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, a petition asking the assignment to him of the claim of the New York, Boston and Montreal Railroad Company against the Gilbert Elevated Railroad Company, which claim now amounts to $11,850 87. Judge Donohue ordered a reference to ascertain the facts of the case.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday, before Judge Daniels, there was arraigned for trial Andrew Moore, a boy fourteen years of age, charged with stabbing a playmate in Fourth street. On application of Mr. William F. Howe, his counsel, the trial was postponed until next Monday. The trial of Valentine Brumbaum, indicted for the murder of Philip Koch by crushing his skull with a stone match box, was also, on application of Mr. Howe, adjourned until next week.

In the case of Signor Aggriga de Charlatta, the actor, arrested on charges of false pretences, Mr. Henry C. Denison, his counsel, obtained from Judge Donohue two writs—one a writ of certiorari, directed to Police Justice Smith, commanding him to certify the cause of detention of Charlatta, and the other, a writ of habeas corpus, commanding the keeper of the Fifty-seventh Street Jail to produce him before the Court of Oyer and Terminer on the 8th inst.

Some time ago, the Harmony Mutual Coal Company being in difficulty, the bondholders made an arrangement by which the property was conveyed to George C. Genet and the late Thomas C. T. Buckley. Since the death of the latter his interest was transferred by several mesne conveyances to Frederick Schuschardt, who was largely interested in the company. Mr. Schuschardt failed, making Mr. Charles A. Frye, his assignee. Certificates were issued to the bondholders by the trustees for their various interests. Mr. Frye asked to have the company wound up and the assets distributed. Mr. James W. Gerard opposes this application, claiming that it would be productive of great injury to take this course at present. Judge Van Brunt yesterday ordered a reference in the matter.

Before Chief Justice Curtis there was commenced yesterday the trial of a suit brought by John P. Gruber, through his counsel, Messrs. Brown and Ruhe, against John Howard, to recover $10,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution in issuing an attachment against him without probable cause. Under this attachment a large number of diamond scales and other property, valued at about $6,000, were seized, and the same were sold under an execution, on a judgment which plaintiff claims was obtained without his knowledge. Mr. Denis A. Spellissy, on behalf of the defendant, interposes a general denial. The case is not yet concluded.

AN OLD OFFENCE.

INSPECTOR MURRAY CAPTURES A SUPPOSED ACCOMPLICE IN THE ALLING TRUNK ROBBERY.

Almost a year ago the firm of Alling & Co., No. 112 Broadway, lost a trunk of jewelry, valued at many thousands of dollars. The history of the robbery is one of the most peculiar in the records of later day crime. On the 11th of May the agent of Alling & Co., in Worcester, Mass., who had made large purchases of jewelry there for the concern, left that town to bring them to Hartford, Conn. He had packed them in a trunk, which he had checked to the latter city and gone on with it there. A train from Worcester reached the Grand Central Depot in this city on Saturday, May 12, and a man presented a check which was found to correspond with one upon a bulky trunk. The latter was, of course, given to him, and he summoned a hackman named Collins, who conveyed it to the Putnam House. There a room was engaged and the trunk deposited. About an hour after another hackman went to the hotel with an order for the trunk from the presumptive owner, who had meanwhile left the hotel. His bill for the room had been paid in advance and consequently the hotel people at once relinquished the property. On the book the guest's name had been registered as Charles H. Brewster, of Providence, R. I. Outside of that and the meagre description which the coachman, Collins, furnished of him there existed no clew to his identity.

HUNTING UP THE THIEVES.

Meantime the agent of Alling & Co., on presenting his check at the depot in Hartford, received a valise containing some salt and a number of oranges. He compared the checks and found they were duplicates, and then, as the railroad officials could throw no light upon the matter, he notified his employers, who acquainted the police with the robbery, and the latter at once set about investigating it. Detectives Dunn and Von Gerichten succeeded in tracing the trunk to the Adams Express Company and then to the railroad depot, whence they learned that three trunks, similar in appearance, had been at the same time sent away. One was checked for Baltimore and the two others for Philadelphia. In the former city Detective Dunn discovered the trunk of Alling & Co., but without jewelry or valuables of any kind left in it. This discovery left the case in an almost hopeless condition, and after making inquiries which were unrewarded in Baltimore and Philadelphia the detectives returned to this city.

It was learned that at the Worcester depot a person had appeared with the valise received by the agent of Alling in Hartford, who left it in the baggage room for a while. Then under the pretence of getting a collar it contained, he was admitted by the railroad officials and left alone in the baggage room for a couple of minutes. During that time it was supposed he changed the checks on the trunk and valise by which he caused the former to go to New York and the latter to Hartford.

After the fruitless quest of the detectives the case was intrusted to Inspector Murray, who began gathering evidence touching the robbery which in time became so perfect that he was able to locate every place to which the stolen jewels had been taken from the time of the theft in the Grand Central Depot to their return to this city. On the 23d of October last he made a descent upon the house No. 123 East Twenty-ninth street and arrested a man named Tim O'Leary, alias George K. Briggs, who was none other than the trunk robber, and in whose possession was found many of the valuables it had contained. On November 20 Briggs was arraigned before Judge Sutherland and sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

BRIGGS' SUPPOSED ACCOMPLICE.

The inspector then set to work reviewing the case and gathering information regarding the person who had changed the checks in the railroad depot at Worcester. In time he became convinced that Briggs and this man were not identical, and further information which he gleaned furnished him with a clew to the unknown. The suspected person, however, was not in this city, and for a long time no trace of his whereabouts could be found. At length word reached here concerning his movements, and Inspector Murray at once prepared to watch for his appearance and took measures to secure his arrest. On Tuesday he succeeded in effecting his purpose, and, with Acting Sergeant Wm. Meakin, took into custody Augustus Raymond, alias Arthur L. Barry, whom he feels confident of proving to be Briggs' accomplice. Yesterday the prisoner was brought before Judge Flammer and remanded until to-day, when a number of witnesses are expected to testify concerning his identity. A notification has also been sent to the Governor of Massachusetts, asking for a requisition on which the prisoner may be forwarded to the place where his alleged offence was committed.

JEFFERSON MARKET PRISON.

The new Jefferson Market Prison was yesterday opened and gave accommodation to such prisoners as were admitted through the day. Early in the morning Deputy Warden Mark Finley appeared with a small troop of male and female employés, who are henceforward to look after the cleanliness of the place and the wellbeing of the inmates. Edward Hagan, who has been appointed chief keeper, and George La Fay, who fills the rôle of prison clerk, were also in attendance, and at once entered on the discharge of their respective functions.

The new prison is a spacious structurre, well aired and heated and with accommodations for its inmates much superior to those in most kindred institutions. There are two departments—one for males, the other for females. The former occupies the upper portion of the building and consists of four tiers running through its entire length. Each cell opens upon a wide corridor, which receives light and air from a row of tall and spacious windows. The bars and bolts are made on improved principles and seem calculated to baffle the most ingenious arts of the jail breaker. The compartments are provided with neat iron bedsteads and wash basins. The pipes of the steam heaters make the circuit of the building, and at the end of each corridor a bathroom is located. On the first floor are two rooms, provided with benches and inclined platforms, whereon the intoxicated may repose during their hours of imprisonment. The other portions of the building are to be occupied by the warden, clerk and keepers. When the doors were opened yesterday the first prisoner, John Rogers, fourteen years old, accused of stealing a pair of shoes, was led in and consigned to durance.

IN DEFENCE OF A BOY.

Patrick Ahearn assaulted a boy named Michael Steinmetz, who resides at No. 160 Worth street. Subsequently William Burke upbraided Ahearn for beating such a small boy, saying that if he did it again he (Ahearn) would get his nose pulled. Thereupon the latter rushed upon Burke and struck him several blows on the head with the sharp teeth of a saw. Burke picked up a board from the street and dealt Ahearn a blow on the head. The latter was severely injured and removed to Bellevue Hospital, where he died. Coroner Ellinger held an inquest yesterday, and, after hearing all the testimony, the jury agreed that the deceased died from injuries received by a blow on the head, and that said blow was inflicted by the hands of one William Burke, who acted in perfect self-defence. The prisoner was committed to the Tombs, in default of $500 bail, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

THEN AND NOW.

MONEY LOANED FOUR YEARS AGO BY THE UNION DIME SAVINGS BANK AND THE RECENT TRANSFERS OF PROPERTY—RECTIFYING THE ERRORS OF THE PAST.

A large number of transfers of real estate, conveyed by James M. Fiske, referee, to the Union Dime Savings Bank, having been recorded on Tuesday in the Register's office, a reporter of the HERALD yesterday called upon Mr. Britton, president of the Union Dime, in relation thereto and ascertained from that gentleman that the bank was getting rid as fast as it could of whatever the old administration had left behind in the shape of doubtful investments. The entire transaction, to which particular allusion was made, referred to sixteen houses on East Forty-seventh street and Lexington avenue, on which the bank under its old administration had loaned from time to time various sums of money, amounting in the aggregate to about $350,000. Mr. Best, when examining the bank, had valued the property on which this money had been loaned at about $218,000. The bank had been compelled from time to time to assist in repairing these houses so as to place the property in an attractive and salable condition. The suits which had been instituted for non-payment of interest on the mortgages had been pending for some time when he (Mr. Britton) took charge, and by advice of counsel and of the Board of Trustees it was thought best to bring them to a final issue. The result was that out of the sixteen houses ten had been sold at foreclosure, and the remainder would have to undergo the same process, with the exception of one or two, which could be disposed of without taking these extreme measures. Mr. Britton considered that in this entire transaction the bank had been virtually robbed, if not with malice aforethought, then by parties who had not the least interest in its financial success. Their calculation to-day was that the bank, after realizing on all these houses, would come out of this transaction cash in hand, better than even Mr. Best has figured out.

A SUSCEPTIBLE PUBLIC.

"Nevertheless," he added, "you cannot understand how foolish the people are in their predictions. When we recently assigned a number of mortgages in order to clear the long line of mortgages—a line longer than the law allowed—some of our depositors became frightened. One lady in deep mourning rushed in here demanding in great excitement her $200, and when she, once inside the banking house, noticed that there was no rush at all, she quietly turned to the teller and said, 'I guess I won't take it to-day.' So also with these transfers you allude to. Let the people understand that we are engaged in rectifying the mistakes of our predecessors, that we are daily engaged in placing this bank on the firmest and safest footing possible."

Mr. Britton then referred the reporter to Mr. William H. Arnoux, counsel of the bank, for further facts regarding these real estate transactions. Mr. Arnoux detailed one of his clerks to give full data and particulars in regard to the transfers of the Lexington avenue property recorded on Tuesday. It was then found that loans on said property were made at first in July, 1873, by the Union Dime Savings Bank to Edward S. Inness, who furnished as bondsmen Anson B. Birdsall and Catherine A. Birdsall; that some portion of this property had been foreclosed, other parts were in course of foreclosure, and the bank had already sold two of the houses and were negotiating for the sale of two more. Comparing the amount loaned in 1873, as furnished at Mr. Arnoux's office, and the amount at which the property was retransferred to the bank, in accordance with the records at the Register's office, the showing will be as follows:—

	Amount Loaned 1873.	Amount Sold for 1878.
Lexington av., s. e. corner 47th st., 20x85	$20,000	$16,000
Lexington av., e. s., 20.5 ft. s. of 47th st., 20x85	17,000	13,000
Lexington av., e. s., 60.5 ft. s. of 47th st., 20x85	17,000	14,000
47th st., s. s., 85 ft. e. of Lexington av., 20x100.5	17,000	13,000
47th st., s. s., 183 ft. e. of Lexington av., 18x100.5	13,500	11,000
47th st., s. s., 201 ft. e. of Lexington av., 18x100.5	13,500	11,000
47th st., s. s., 219 ft. e. of Lexington av., 18x100.5	13,000	11,000
47th st., s. s., 237 ft. e. of Lexington av., 17x100.5	13,000	10,500
The following is now in course of foreclosure:—
47th st., s. s., 105 ft. e. of Lexington av., 20x100.5	17,000	To be sold.
Lexington av., 80.5 ft. s. of 47th st., 20x85	20,000	To be sold.
Lexington av., e. s., 40.5 ft. s. of 47th st., 20x85	17,000	To be sold.
The following has since been sold, but not yet recorded:—
47th st., s. s., 125 ft. e. of Lexington av., 20x100.5	17,000	12,500

This accounts for twelve out of the sixteen houses on which in 1873 the bank loaned an aggregate of $350,000, and which are now reverting to the bank at figures given as above. The reporter's attention was called to the fact that these foreclosure sales must not be taken as a criterion of the value of the property; that the bank, having become repossessed of said houses, might sell them, and very likely would, at a higher figure. He was also informed that suits had already been instituted, and still more would be instituted, to guard the bank against any ultimate loss that might arise from these transactions.

SIXPENNY SAVINGS BANK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

It appears that some of the trustees of the Sixpenny Savings Bank are willing to come forward and endeavor to save that institution by a subscription. Now, it appears to me that the depositors should at least meet them half way. Let the depositors agree to a scaling or deduction on the amount of their deposits of say five per cent. This, on $2,000,000 of deposits, would give $100,000, and if the trustees can raise $50,000, which seems from Mr. Adams' statement to be quite likely, the bank would be at once in a solvent condition, and could either go on or be wound up by a committee appointed by the depositors, as might be hereafter determined on. If the securities of the bank are forced on the market the depositors cannot expect to receive over fifty cents on the dollar. A receiver and ruin are almost synonymous terms. I trust that in view of the very large number of poor girls and boys who will suffer by this failure that some effort will be made to keep the matter out of a receiver's hands. Let some influential depositor at the next meeting submit the proposal I have suggested above, and then, if necessary, petition Judge Westbrook to recall his appointment of a receiver or take such other legal steps as may be necessary.

A DEPOSITOR.

SAMUEL WOOD'S WILL.

The first hearing on the application to admit to probate the will of the late Samuel Wood will take place before Surrogate Calvin at two o'clock this afternoon. The will, which devotes a large portion of the estate of the deceased to public uses, the particulars of which have already appeared in the HERALD, will be contested by Samuel A. Wood, claiming as an heir and legatee under a former will, and by Edward T. Schenck, one of the executors named in the body of the will. The contest of Samuel A. Wood is made on the ground that under a former will of the deceased he would become residuary legatee upon the death of the deceased. This former will was made in 1866, at the same time that a brother of the deceased, Abraham, also made a will. Each of the brothers in those wills bequeathed the property for life to his surviving brother and the remainder over to Samuel A. Wood. Since the death of Abraham his brother Samuel made the present will, which cut off Samuel A. as remainder man. This, Samuel A. claims, he had no right to do, insisting that the will of 1866 was a mutual will between the brothers which could not be changed by the survivor and that it remains valid while the present will is void. The other contestant, Edward T. Schenck, contests only the codicil to the will, from which he is omitted as executor, but admits the validity of the body of the will in which he is named as such. Samuel A. Wood, the principal contestant, has generally passed as the nephew of the deceased, but it will be claimed by the executors, proponents of the will, through their counsel, Messrs. Chatfields and Ransom, that he is only a second cousin, he being the son of Miles Wood, a son of the testator's father's brother. The executors and their counsel seem to entertain no doubt that the will will be sustained and that the Musical College and other public institutions therein named will reap the results of the bequests of the deceased, but as the amount involved is large the contest will, it is expected, be proportionately earnest and long on the part of the contestants.

SALE OF STEREOTYPE PLATES.

A collection of stereotype and electrotype plates, engravings on steel and wood, copyrights and remainders of editions, all belonging to Hurd & Houghton and J. R. Osgood & Co. (now Houghton, Osgood & Co.), were sold by the Messrs. Leavitt, yesterday morning and afternoon. The plates of a number of works were sold for much less than their value. Among the noteworthy prices were the following:—New Testament, with notes by Jacob and John Astor, $57 50; Edwin Booth's dramatic characters, $165; C. P. Cranch's "The Bird and the Bell," $7; F. O. C. Darley's "Way Pictures," $26, and "Sketches Abroad," $50; Dickens' "Child's Dream of a Star," $45; Eltings's "History of Independence Hall," $105; Dr. Hayes' "Open Polar Sea," $80; Robinson's edition of Calmet's "Bible Dictionary," $161; Palgrave's "Essays on Art," $26; Thackeray's Ballads, $42; R. H. Stoddard's "Little Red Riding Hood," $16; F. H. Ludlow's "Heart of the Continent," $65.

HEAVY SEIZURE OF CIGARS.

On board the steamer City of New York, from Havana, no less than three different seizures of cigars were made yesterday. The first was of 3,400 cigars and 444 bundles of cigarettes. The second, of 1,550 cigars and 260 bundles of cigarettes, and the third, 450 cigars. Altogether there were turned into the seizure room 5,400 cigars and over 700 bundles of cigarettes of the finest brands.

METHODIST CONFERENCES.

SESSIONS IN THIS CITY AND ELSEWHERE—PERTINENT QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO THE DOGMA OF FUTURE PUNISHMENT.

The eighty-eighth annual session of the New York Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was commenced yesterday morning in St. Luke's Church, West Forty-first street, Bishop Andrews presiding. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises by the Rev. Drs. A. M. Osbon and C. H. Ferguson. The Conference chose the Rev. A. McLean secretary, and elected the Rev. Dr. Osbon to deliver the semi-centennial sermon at the Conference next year.

Rev. Dr. M. D. C. Crawford, Presiding Elder of the New York district, reported that the church debts of his district had decreased during the past year. Efforts that had been made in some quarters to introduce ritualistic services had been successfully frustrated. He recommended a change in the present system of church music.

Rev. Dr. Delos Lull, Presiding Elder of the Poughkeepsie district, reported a large reduction in church debts in that section.

Rev. Dr. J. E. Gorse, of the old Prattsville district, reported that the condition of the churches in his district was very flourishing.

Rev. Dr. Goodman, president of the Methodist Episcopal Colored Orphans' Home, of Louisiana, addressed the meeting briefly in behalf of that institution.

The morning session then adjourned.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session opened at half-past two o'clock. Rev. Dr. Paul R. Brown then delivered the anniversary sermon. In his preliminary remarks he gave many incidents of his career as an itinerant preacher, and then, quoting from Kings viii., 57; Psalm lxxi., 18, and Psalm xxvii., 9, showed that the omnipresence of God with the Church was its power, its strength and its joy. Without God nothing could be done. There was too much talk nowadays of making the Church of God more attractive. The theological schools, too, he said, were so much afraid of running in ruts that they would not follow grooves which were made by the Holy Ghost; so afraid of following old paths that they refused to walk in the footsteps of Christ. The real glory of the Church was the manifest presence of God.

At a quarter before eight P. M. the Conference reassembled and services were opened by prayers and hymns, after which the Rev. Dr. John Miley, of the Drew Theological Seminary, delivered the Conference sermon, choosing "Moral Deeds" as the subject of his discourse. Moral deeds, said he, deeds which would be in a moral sense good or bad, were the products of man's highest acts. Good deeds were above all the exploits of heroes and the deeds usually called great in the world. All moral deeds, good or bad, were alike imperishable and unchangeable. They forever belonged to him who had committed them, and in the judgment day the bad deeds would be his accusers and the good his defenders. If men had true repentance God would veil their bad deeds from sight and reward their good ones.

After the sermon some of Dr. Goodman's colored singers entertained the congregation for a short time, and the services closed with the usual invocation.

NEW YORK EAST CONFERENCE.

The New York East Conference met yesterday at nine A. M., Bishop Foster presiding. The Rev. D. A. Goodsell was elected secretary and Revs. W. H. Simonson, D. O. Ferris and C. Backman, assistants.

The Rev. A. S. Hunt, D. D., secretary elect of the American Bible Society, addressed the Conference, giving instances of the desire of the Russian soldiers in the Levant to procure copies of the Bible. The Doctor also gave illustrations of a similar desire in Japan and other countries.

Bishop Foster briefly addressed the Conference, requesting the brethren not to hamper him with suggestions or importunities to make appointments on the ground of personal friendship.

Father Henson presented to the Bishop and Conference the following questions bearing upon the Methodist doctrine of future punishment:—Is a minister at liberty to teach as a doctrine of the Church that man is simply organized matter; that at death he is annihilated; that punishment is not of endless duration; that it is merely temporary and for purification? Father Henson said there are men in the Methodist Episcopal Church who say they are at liberty to believe, preach and teach whatever they please, because the discipline of the Church is silent on this matter.

In the afternoon the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society held its anniversary and was addressed by Mrs. Skidmore, of New York, and Mrs. Dr. O. B. Gause, of Philadelphia. In the evening the Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. B. M. Adams, D. D.

NEWARK METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The Methodist Conference, which has been a week in session at St. Paul's Church, Newark, and which has been largely attended throughout, and in its proceedings notable for harmony and spirit, came to a close yesterday. Resolutions were introduced condemning colored camp meetings. Rev. Drs. Day, Dunn and Boyce were appointed a committee to consider and report at the next Conference the subject of assessing preachers who receive large salaries for the benefit of those who receive small ones. Finally Bishop Simpson made a closing address, saying that in making up the list of appointments he had done his best to give satisfaction. He urged all to try and approve his work, and then read the appointments, and the Conference adjourned sine die.

PASTOR AND TRUSTEES.

DR. TALMAGE'S VIEWS OF MR. PEARSALL'S STATEMENT—THE FORMER DEFENDS MR. MORGAN.

The open letter from the resigning Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, together with the supplementary epistle of Mr. Thomas E. Pearsall accusing Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, the pastor, of falsehood, has created a good deal of excitement among the churches of Brooklyn. Mr. Talmage, when asked yesterday whether he would reply to the charges, said he thought there was no necessity for any rejoinder. "The letters will injure me," he said, "with nobody that knows me; on others and on those who would like to say ill of me their effect is of no concern. I feel that any pastor who reads those letters will congratulate me as a pastor that they are letters of resignation."

In regard to the statements that he was consulted before going South about reducing the salary of Mr. Morgan, the organist, and "put in no demur;" that Mr. Morgan was dismissed at the joint Board meeting on the pastor's return without any dissent; that the pastor promised to say to the people that he was responsible for refusing to let Mr. Morgan give his concert in the Tabernacle, and that he told a falsehood in saying Mr. Morgan's habits were faultless so far as he knew—Mr. Talmage said that not a word was said to him before going South about removing Mr. Morgan or reducing his salary. "I knew nothing of the matter," continued Mr. Talmage, "until I got back, and in a sense Mr. Morgan was mistaken when he wrote, 'I have promised Dr. Talmage to consult with him before deciding.' On my return I found a letter from him making that promise. That letter arrived after I left, but he thought it had reached me before I started."

About the joint Board meeting and the dismissal of the organist Mr. Talmage said:—"The resolution of the trustees to request the Session to get another organist gave the session custody of the matter. I vehemently opposed requesting the Session to do anything of the kind. The Session refused the request and reappointed Mr. Morgan. I did promise to tell the Session that I was responsible for Mr. Morgan's not getting the Tabernacle for his concert. The promise was made to four trustees, down stairs, in my house, and I at once went up stairs where the Session was holding a meeting and fulfilled my promise. I never promised to say so from the pulpit, and there was no reason why I should. I am now and always have been opposed to having entertainments in the Tabernacle for other purposes than to directly help the church."

GEORGE MORGAN DEFENDED.

"As to my statement in regard to Mr. Morgan's character it was correct. Mr. Morgan has been our organist for eight years. During that time he has never been one minute behind time in his engagements. He has never come under my criticism but once, and that in regard to a service the last Sabbath of June, 1876. He seemed incompetent for that occasion, but afterward explained that it was the intense heat of the night, the thermometer being over one hundred degrees in the church, and he having been over two nights in a rail car, and, from a long journey, was sick and exhausted. I think the effort made in various directions to represent Mr. Morgan as an intemperate man at this time is most unfair and unchristianlike. I believe him to be a sober and upright man. In regard to not allowing Mr. Morgan the Tabernacle for his concert I have to say that we are perpetually flooded with applications for the use of our building, and a resolution had been passed, saying that the church should only be used for positively religious services, and it was in that respect that I favored the action of the trustees, and think they were right."

THE PEARSALL LETTER.

"Mr. Pearsall has written a personal letter to you, Mr. Talmage, in which he raises a question of veracity," said the reporter.

"As his letter was not couched in respectful terms I have no answer to make. I will, however, call your attention to the fact that between the time that I, in concert with the Board of Trustees, criticised Mr. Morgan's playing in June, 1876, and the time when I wrote my last letter in regard to Mr. Morgan's habits, a year and a half had transpired. My letter of last week I now reaffirm, and pronounce it a great injustice to attempt to go back into the past years of a man's life to find something against him. When some one asked Christ whether we should forgive seven times, Christ responded, 'I say not unto thee seven times, but until seventy times seven.'"

In conclusion Mr. Talmage said he felt in respect to the resignation of the trustees as grateful and happy as a man who had just been relieved of aching teeth.

Major B. R. Corwin, of the Tabernacle, declined to make any statement concerning the misunderstanding, but he remarked that three of the resigning trustees—Messrs. Geiston, Elmore and Pearson—had not held the position as long as one year, and that three others whose names are affixed to the letter—Messrs. Talmage, Foote and Hobbs—resigned three months ago.

A CLERGYMAN'S ILLNESS.

At a late hour on Tuesday night a rumor, based on what seemed to be reliable authority, was circulated in this city that the Rev. Father Colton, of New Brighton, Staten Island, who has been quite ill for some time past, had died. The rumor, happily, turns out to be without other foundation than that the reverend gentleman was very low during the day, and fears were at one time entertained that he could not live throughout the night.

THE MAGENTA EXPLOSION.

INVESTIGATION BEFORE THE UNITED STATES STEAM BOILER INSPECTORS YESTERDAY.

The investigation into the cause of the accident on board the steamboat Magenta, the boiler of which exploded, on the Hudson River, near Sing Sing, on the 23d ult., was held yesterday before United States Boiler Inspectors Jayne and Matthews.

John McCurdy, a boilermaker, testified that he found the iron at the place of the explosion reduced to one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness; the general condition of the outer shell, as far as the corrosion was concerned, he found pretty evenly reduced, and just at that portion where the explosion took place it was reduced more than in any other portion; the boilers were built five years ago, and the wasting away of the iron was more than usual; he had no theory as to the cause of the accident other than that some boilers prime more than others; these boilers had been priming badly; he had never seen such results where fresh water had been used exclusively.

Mr. Andrew Fletcher, a boilermaker, said that the boilers were put in the boat in the spring of 1873; they were good boilers, and there were no repairs to them until new linings were put in the chimneys in May, 1877; the character of the iron in the chimneys was what is called tensile strength; it is not customary for the shell of steam chimneys to wear out so rapidly; in boilers of their age it is unusual; in his observation and experience he had noticed that steam chimneys, especially on the inside, and occasionally on the outside, corrode rapidly where salt and fresh water were mixed in general use; it seemed to him that the constant wetting and drying of the iron produced the corrosion, and it was his impression that it was the case in this instance.

James H. Stephens, another boilermaker, said that he repaired the steam chimneys of the Magenta last May by putting in new linings; he cut out part of the old linings and replaced them by new, and put in new sockets, besides using part of the old that was good; there were five courses of the chimney and when the repairs were completed the top and bottom courses were slightly oxidized; the three middle courses were partly oxidized; at that time he considered the shells safe enough to warrant the putting in of new lining, considering the way they were braced; he ascribed the eating away of the chimney to the priming; had known in his experience the shells of steam chimneys to last as long as the shells of boilers; he did not think felt on the outside of the chimney at all dangerous; it was good to keep the heat from radiating, but at the same time it prevented the engineer and the inspector from sounding the chimneys to tell whether they were worn out or not.

John Poole, another boilermaker, said that he visited the steamer Magenta when she had her chimneys out in May, 1877; he saw the shells of the chimneys and looked at them closely; he considered the shells as good as when they were new; the only cause he could assign for the accident was corrosion while the vessel was lying still; he had never known a case like this before.

Francis Wilson, engineer, testified to the repairs made on the Magenta in 1876, and to the lining put in in 1877; he examined the shells of the chimneys and found them in good condition.

The inquiry was then adjourned until this morning at eleven o'clock.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

The Coroner's investigation of the calamity on board of the steamer Magenta was continued at Sing Sing yesterday. John C. Rose, of Haverstraw, and John W. Blake, United States Local Inspector of Steam Vessels, testified. The latter said he inspected the Magenta June 5, 1877, at Newark, N. J., and found her in good condition; he, however, made no examination of the steam chimney with a hammer, as he knew that there had been a new lining put in it and that the steamer had not been run subsequently; this information he obtained from Mr. Frank Woolsey, the engineer; the original thickness of the iron of the steam chimney was five-sixteenths of an inch.

Further proceedings of the inquest were adjourned until Monday.

THE WOMEN'S HOTEL.

After the reception of the evening previous the Women's Hotel was opened for business yesterday morning, when the palatial premises presented a remarkable contrast as compared with that of the inspection night. While there everything was hurry and bustle, and the tide of humanity became too large for entrance or exit, and a half hundred policemen were powerless to maintain system amid the overwhelming mass, presto! what a change within twelve hours. Yesterday, beneath a white burgee with a blue border, flung from a flagstaff at the crest of the eighth story, and bearing the legend, "The Women's Hotel," everything was as quiet and serene in and around the hotel as the almost summer sun that bathed it with his genial rays. No visitors were admitted, and peremptory orders were given the clerks to impart no information about the business of the opening day, but to refer all persons seeking such to the managers themselves.

It was ascertained that there are already 150 regular guests at the hotel, and that everything commenced most auspiciously, even exceeding the expectations of Mrs. Stewart, Judge Hilton and Mr. Clare. Among those who have already engaged and occupy apartments are school teachers, artists, saleswomen, newspaper correspondents and writers, and other ladies who are more or less accustomed to the usages of polite and cultivated society. High tone and refinement are everywhere observable. At the first dinner last evening nearly all the guests assembled at the tables and were waited upon by colored waiters trained to serve in fashionable life. The recherché bill of fare was an object of admiration to the ladies, the artists and newspaper correspondents paying their particular devoirs to those viands most conducive to the sustenance of the brain. Trout being in season, and said to possess a powerful brain stimulant, were particular favorites. The ladies were mostly attired in the dinner costume usual at fashionable hotels, and it may be safely said that the first regular dinner at the Women's Hotel gave the utmost satisfaction to all who were present at it.

Many applications for admission have been received and are under consideration.

PARK MANAGEMENT.

Mayor Ely has signed the Aldermanic resolution calling upon the Park Commissioners for a statement of the business transacted in their department during the past five years.

Under direction of the Park Commissioners no dogs are allowed in Central Park. It appears that no restriction exists in this respect as to the other parks. Alderman Morris yesterday received a communication on the subject, which says:—"Some years ago on trees at the entrances to all the city parks was nailed the sign, 'No dogs allowed in the park,' and persons accompanied by dogs were not permitted to pass through. The originators of this ordinance doubtless took the view that if a person desired to indulge in the luxury of a dog, the presence of one of which is entirely inconsistent with the composure of the younger children who visit the parks, he must also enjoy the privilege of a circuitous route. These signs no longer appear, and, as a consequence, our parks are fairly infested with dogs. In Washington square one morning last week the writer counted, as he passed through, fourteen dogs, five of which were owned by one man, who was exercising them, and who seemingly enjoyed the cries of the affrighted children. If this state of things continues the children will be driven out, thoughts of hydrophobia filling the parents' minds as the warm weather approaches. Many parents now ask the question, 'Are the parks a resort for children or an exercising ground for dogs?'"

FOUND GUILTY.

Judge Pitcher Condemned by the Long Branch Commissioners.

THEIR VERDICT.

His Removal from Office Ordered by the Board.

The case of Judge Edward J. Pitcher was continued yesterday before the Long Branch Commissioners. Mr. Lanning, Prosecutor of the Pleas for Monmouth county, and Mr. Allen, ex-Prosecutor of the Pleas, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Nevins, of Red Bank, and Mr. Troutman, of Long Branch, defended Judge Pitcher.

The chairman called on the prosecution to produce their witnesses.

THE FIRST CROSS-FIRE.

Mr. Lanning then called Edward J. Pitcher.

Mr. Nevins—I object to Mr. Pitcher being sworn as a witness. It is contrary to the law of evidence to put the defendant on the stand to convict himself.

Mr. Lanning—We have not come here for another dress parade, but merely ask for certain books and documents that belong to this Board, and wish to swear Mr. Pitcher so that we may know that we have everything that belongs to this Board.

Mr. Nevins—We have not come here for a circus, but I do claim that you have no right to make my client produce his books or swear him as a witness.

Mr. Thomas Murphy then moved that as Judge Pitcher was an employé of the Commissioners he should be called on to give up the books. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

After considerable legal eloquence on both sides, the counsel for the defence allowed Judge Pitcher to give up his books to the Commissioners.

On the request of the counsel for the defence Mr. Lanning was also ordered to deliver any papers he may have in his possession to the Commissioners.

The Chairman then ordered the prosecution to commence with the charges preferred by Mr. Lanning, and the first one read was that in regard to the refusal to furnish a list of witnesses.

THE FIRST WITNESS.

John Lane, sworn, stated.—I was police officer last summer and served papers for Judge Pitcher; I served papers on a Mrs. Grant.

Mr. Nevins—I object to that.

Objection overruled.

Mr. Lane—I returned that warrant and an arrest was made; I furnished a list of two or three witnesses against Kavanagh; they were some men that Kavanagh had not treated right; told me that they would give him away, as they could get rum there week days or Sundays; I gave their names to Judge Pitcher.

Mr. John Hoey was then sworn, and asked if he had been given that list of witnesses. Mr. Hoey answered in the negative.

Mr. Lanning said:—I heard about these witnesses from John Lane and Theodore West; I referred more particularly to the Kavanagh case; I can call the attention of the Board to another case in which Kavanagh was charged with assault and battery, and also to the Grant case, both of which will be found in the docket.

Theodore West, sworn, stated:—I was a police officer last summer and attended Judge Pitcher's court; I have heard complaints made in court against the banco men; nothing was done in the matter.

The second charge was that before the investigation into the cause of a fire was fully completed he caused to be published in a newspaper information concerning the same.

Jacob Stultz, editor of the paper, testified that he received a communication from Judge Pitcher.

The third charge—that since the arrest of Charles Kavanagh Pitcher had visited him in jail and given him certain information, and also that he purposely absented himself with important documents on the day of the trial of an important case—was stated.

John Taylor, the jailer at Freehold, swore that Judge Pitcher saw Kavanagh in his presence, but did not give him any information of the case against him.

Mr. Lanning then stated on oath that they had told Judge Pitcher he should be wanted at Freehold with certain documents so as to rearrest Kavanagh in case he should be discharged on bail before Judge Scudder, but he did not come to that court.

On Mr. Hoey's charges Charles H. Potter was sworn and testified that he resided at Long Branch; made a complaint before Judge Pitcher against a person for keeping a disorderly house; the woman was arrested and then discharged to carry out her business.

A DIRECT ACCUSATION.

John Matthews, of Washington, D. C., swore that last year at the West End Hotel he was arrested on the 15th of August and brought before Judge Pitcher, who told him that he had been arrested on information of Detective Dunn; witness was sent to the cells and brought up next week, and after some examination was sent back again; was then told that bail was fixed at $500, but he could not raise that money; Judge Pitcher finally came down to see him and said he would see the District Attorney and try and get the bail reduced; he came again and said he could get witness out for $100 bail; $100 was given to Judge Pitcher and he gave witness a receipt, who went on to Washington, and he had never been able to get the money back.

MR. HOEY'S STATEMENT.

The clerk read the charge which alleged that the said Edward J. Pitcher connived at gambling and used his official position to protect gamblers during the summer of 1877.

Mr. Hoey then explained that he learned through a lawyer that when the banco men were about to be arrested they engaged as counsel a lawyer named Troutman; he told them that they should see Pitcher, who went down to see them. Mr. Hoey explained the subject of the fourth charge. I had secured Mr. Pitcher to assist me in bringing an incendiary to justice and he promised me all the assistance in his power; I will do him the justice to say that he kept the matter of Kavanagh's arrest secret, but shortly afterward I was told by Mr. Conover that Pitcher had been to Freehold; shortly afterward I heard that Kavanagh was to be bailed and then brought over here; I said to Mr. Pitcher, I would like to have another complaint and warrant, and he said he would have the warrant and go on the morning train and meet Lanning and Conover; I have reason to believe he gave that information to Kavanagh; on information I have received, I understand that, speaking about Kavanagh's case; Pitcher said to Disbrowe that he did not believe Kavanagh was guilty, and he thought it was a put up job between Chamberlain and Hoey to get Kavanagh out of the way; I also can bring Judge Lane to prove that Pitcher made a remark to him that he thought Kavanagh was not guilty, and thought it was a put up job. The counsel for the defence then cross-examined Mr. Hoey, and showed by letters and despatches that Pitcher had arrested Kavanagh and followed his orders, facts which Mr. Hoey did not attempt to deny. In regard to the Matthews case there was not much more to say, as Matthews himself had pretty well explained the whole thing. I have, however, since learned that Mr. Neals, the lawyer in Washington, received a post office order from Mr. Pitcher for $100 on Tuesday, the day after Matthews left for this city. In the other cases it would be better to hear what the witnesses have to say.

Justice Lane, sworn, stated that Pitcher said to him one day shortly after Kavanagh's arrest that he did not think him guilty.

Several other witnesses were heard, among them Messrs. Keating, Lawlor, Murray, Lloyd and Mary McGraw. The Court took a recess.

AFTER RECESS.

After recess Mr. Nevins commenced hearing witnesses for the defence.

Mr. Lanning was called and said he remembered that Judge Pitcher came with Beach, and he (Lanning) told them the complaints were dismissed by the Grand Jury. James Conover said he was security for Baker; he heard that he was not indicted.

IN HIS OWN DEFENCE.

Judge Pitcher sworn said:—I remember the case; Beach deposited $50 and Conover went security for Baker; Matthews deposited $100 with me; I received a postal card from him about it before the Grand Jury met; since then I have received a letter from Mr. Neal, of Washington, asking for the money for Matthews, and I sent it at once; I took some affidavits for Mr. Hoey; I did not show them to anybody before I issued the warrants; I have seen Kavanagh in jail once; he said, "Squire, they are blaming me for not having an examination;" I said, "It would have done you no good, as I should have been forced to make the case as strong as I could against you;" as to the bail, I told a man named Hamilton that he had better not go his bail; Mrs. Kavanagh was trying to get bail, and I went to several men and told them not to get bail for him.

Speaking of the banco case, Judge Pitcher said an Englishman made a complaint but would not wait trial as I told him I would have to bind him to appear to prosecute at Freehold. Judge Pitcher then made a long explanation of his connection with the Kavanaugh case.

Mr. Allen went into quite a long cross-examination of the Matthews case.

Julia Kavanagh was the next witness, she said:—I am the wife of Charles Kavanagh; I told the officer that I had heard Mr. Pitcher had been taking affidavits at Mr. Hoey's the day before we were arrested; I was told this by a painter named Foster, who was working at Mr. Hoey's.

John C. Clark sworn:—I never told Mr. Pitcher anything about Mr. Matthews' address or talked with him on the subject.

THE VERDICT.

After some further testimony the counsel on either side summed up, and the Commissioners went into executive session. After two hours' deliberation the doors were opened, and the board room was quickly filled. The Clerk then announced that Judge Pitcher was found guilty of the second of Mr. Lanning's charges, referring to the article published in the newspaper about the fire, and the second and fifth of Mr. Hoey's charges, which were paying the $10 for counsel for Mrs. Landry and holding the $100 paid by Matthews in the way of bail. The Commissioners then passed the following preamble and resolution:—

Whereas in the judgment of this Board there has been sufficient evidence shown in the charges made against Edward I. Pitcher, police justice, to justify his removal from office; therefore be it

Resolved, That the said Edward I. Pitcher be and he is hereby removed from the office of police justice, and that the District Clerk be directed to serve upon the said E. I. Pitcher a certified copy of this resolution.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.—To insure the proper classification of advertisements it is absolutely necessary that they be handed in before eight o'clock every evening.

The probabilities are that the weather in New York and its vicinity to-day will be warmer and cloudy, with rain and increasing southeasterly winds. To-morrow it will be cooler and clearing, with northwesterly winds.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—The stock market was active and stocks were generally strong. Gold was steady all day at 101⅛. Government bonds were firm, States dull and railroads quiet. Money on call was active all day at 7 per cent and closed at 6 per cent.

REFORM is the order at Long Branch. Judge Pitcher has been found guilty and pitched out of office.

NO DOUBT need be entertained as to the success of the new Jefferson Market Prison, which had its opening yesterday morning.

RHODE ISLAND, at last, is sure for the republican party. Governor Van Zandt was re-elected by an increased majority yesterday.

GENERAL MOTT, the Jersey State Prison keeper, has been exonerated by the Legislature. Only five votes were cast in the negative.

THE WOMEN'S HOTEL, notwithstanding all the gloomy predictions of failure, started out well yesterday with one hundred and fifty names on its register.

MR. TALMAGE sticks to his organist and compares his late trustees to aching teeth, from which he is glad to be relieved. In his opinion they have left no ugly marks behind.

GENERAL GRANT, according to private letters from the East, keeps a close eye on our politics. Like all the other sensible men of his party, he is firmly in favor of the policy of his successor.

A GOOD DEAL of sympathy was wasted last night on the murderous classes by the Medico-Legal Society. Hanging a murderer is the best use to which he can be put in the interests of society.

THE ASSASSINS of the late Earl of Leitrim have thus far succeeded in escaping arrest. The bitter relations between him and his tenantry leave no doubt of the agrarian character of the crime.

THE QUEENS COUNTY HUNT had a first rate meeting yesterday, and a splendid run lasting nearly an hour. The early objections of the farmers seem to have been entirely overcome and the lords of the soil are now as enthusiastic as the huntsmen in regard to the sport.

THE BRUTAL TRAMP has started on his spring travels in New Jersey. In Passaic county the other night a citizen was attacked and left with a fractured skull across a railroad track in an insensible condition. What is to be the solution of the tramp problem this season?

ACCORDING to the letter from Paris, elsewhere printed, the Exposition, and particularly the American branch, is not very far advanced, but French workmen can accomplish marvels in a very few weeks, and we have no doubt the opening will find it as thoroughly equipped as any of its predecessors. The American colony are making extensive preparations for the reception of their countrymen.

OUR ATTENTION has been called to the fact that an advertisement in Monday's HERALD for "a third partner, salary $25," was evidently an April Fool joke. It is, of course, impossible for the HERALD to guard against such practices, but we wish to say that to use the advertising columns of a newspaper for such a purpose is both cruel and silly, there being no joke in it, but a great deal of harm.

THE WEATHER.—The organization of a storm centre from the considerable area of low pressure which overlay the regions east of the Mississippi River yesterday has progressed very regularly west of the Alleghany Mountains, but no important rains have as yet fallen from the lakes to Tennessee. In the East Gulf and South Atlantic States, however, the rains have been very general and quite plentiful, attending the eastern margin of the depression that reached that region early yesterday. It has been difficult to trace the margins of the several areas of lowest barometer on account of the uniformity of the pressures over an extensive region. Strong winds have sprung up around the centres of disturbance, with a general increase of cloudiness and a rise of temperature. As the tendency of the depression is toward our section of the Atlantic coast, we are likely to experience its effects in strong and varying winds, rain and general stormy conditions. The pressure is now highest in the Northwest and West, with a rapid rise taking place in the Southwest. The weather in New York and its vicinity to-day will be warmer and cloudy, with rain and increasing southeasterly winds. To-morrow it will be cooler and clearing, with northwesterly winds.

The Treaty of San Stefano.

In to-day's HERALD we give in full the Treaty of San Stefano—the document which lays down the conditions of peace between Russia and Turkey, and which, to all appearance, as it ends one war may be the cause of another. All the world has heard from those whose interests are opposed to the ratification of this treaty elaborate statements of its deficiencies; of how it crushed the Empire in Europe of that lovely ruler, the Padishah—as if to crush such an empire were equal at once to all the cardinal sins; how it was likely to upset the world by putting that abominable creature, the Christian rayah, in rather advantageous relations to that best of cutthroats, the Moslem gentleman—as if to "put the bottom rail on top" were a hideous crime in Turkey also; and how, finally, it substituted here, there and everywhere the sovereignty of the Czar for the sovereignty of the Sultan. Having heard the objections to it the reader will perhaps have a curiosity to know what is really in it. At one stroke it creates three independent States and liberates forever from the domination of brutal savages the people of Roumania, Servia and Montenegro. With regard to Montenegro the world has rejoiced and will rejoice in this fact, for the heroic people of that country have friends in all lands. Comparatively few will heed the fate of the Servians, while the Roumanians have exhibited so little appreciation of what they have gained in the overthrow of Turkey that one cannot but reflect how much more they would probably have appreciated their independence if they had gained it themselves. For all Christian peoples whom this treaty leaves subject to the Sultan it stipulates that there shall be such reforms in the Ottoman government as will practically better their condition. For certain peoples it suggests that these reforms shall be those indicated by the Conference of Constantinople.

But the treaty does not stipulate a precise time and way in which the reforms shall be initiated and enforced, save as to Bulgaria. That district it declares to be a tributary Ottoman province, with a Christian government and an elective prince, and it lays down the particulars of its boundaries and its future organization, and provides for a Russian occupation of the province pending the initiation of this change. Without such an occupation it is very evident that the guarantee of the treaty would be mere waste paper. It would be an Ottoman promise to create a Christian government in a country within the dominions of the Sultan, and if anybody believes that promise would outweigh a feather in any scale he is ignorant of the story of the many promises of the same sort made by Turkey in other days and always broken. What is the value to the Danes of the promise that Prussia made by the Treaty of Prague to put to the vote of the people in Schleswig-Holstein an option of nationality? If exacted promises have no other guarantee than the honor of those who make them performance never comes, whether the promise be made in Germany or in Turkey. In the Conference at Constantinople this difficulty was comprehended. Every Cabinet in Europe knew that whatever reforms were proposed none would be enforced if action were left to Turkey. Hence the suggestion made at that time that some foreign State should furnish a corps of gendarmerie, which should be the public power of the province and its guarantee under a Christian governor. Russia simply does now, in holding the country, an act the necessity of which was then recognized on every hand, and she does not define the limit of her occupation because it is not practicable to do so.

An important part of the treaty is that which demands a great indemnity and "takes it out in land." Russia demands in all an indemnity of twelve hundred million dollars, or a sum superior by two hundred million to what Germany demanded of France at the end of the war in 1871. But if we count the requisitions made on French cities by German troops during the war Russia's demand is not in excess of that made by Germany; but it is certain that Turkey cannot pay the demand whatever it is, and therefore the determination reached that the greater part of the indemnity demanded shall be covered by the cession of the Dobrudscha and part of Armenia. By the treaty the settlement of the point as to the freedom of the Dardanelles is relegated to an agreement between the Czar and the Sultan. In other words, it is a part of the treaty not given to the world. At least that is the interpretation put upon this section in England—and the demand that the nature of that agreement should be discovered and that the agreement itself should be laid before a congress of the Powers if it exists, with the text of the treaty, provoked the disagreement which defeated the project of a conference. On that difficulty England has rested her case with good judgment as to what constitutes the main point. With this treaty in their hands and the English circular published on Tuesday before them, the portion of the public that studies these subjects closely can judge of the justice that is on either side. We have already declared our opinion that the Russians have not gone beyond what was proper and moderate in the stipulations of the treaty. Russia went to free the Christians—to put an end at once to that relation of subordination by which a great mass of Christian population was subject to a foreign conqueror domiciled among them, as out on the Plains the snake is domiciled in the houses of the prairie dogs, that they may the more conveniently prevent by their appetites a superfluity of puppies. In view of her purpose Russia might have made Bulgaria independent as she has done the other provinces. It is alleged that she should not have taken any territory. But she is entitled to indemnity, and as the Porte has no money what shall she do—give up her claim or take its equivalent? It is idle to point out that there are no nations that make war for ideas only, despite the absurd claims on this head made for France.

England, by her circular, seems to propose as the condition of peace that her interests shall be substituted for the interests of Russia in all places where these are guaranteed by the treaty. In every declaration the burden of her objection to the treaty is that it protects Russia, does not protect England, and sometimes provides for Russian aggrandizement in a way that seems to be to England's detriment. If the conceptions beneath this statement of England's position are those that have governed the course of the British government, it may be supposed that they regarded Russia's obligations so exclusively through British spectacles that they had expected her when Turkey's resistance was overcome to speedily withdraw all her troops and hand the conquered country over to England as a sort of European public administrator, to first help herself from the estate and afterward pass to all hungry claimants the crumbs she might not want. Only in that way, evidently, could Russia's conduct have met with approval from a government that issues this circular. Everybody expects an English government to assert, and to assert distinctly and vigorously, England's views and claims and demands in any case that comes before it; but for an English government to take the position that a great Power forced into war by its relation to an oppressed population shall wage a desperate struggle for half a year, give the lives of eighty thousand soldiers and spend seven hundred millions and then fail to exact by treaty the plain consequences of its victory is to ignore the history of wars in which England has been a conqueror, or to pretend that Russia must be governed by different principles from those that have governed England in such cases, and to pretend, moreover, that Russia's standard of public policy and morality must be higher than England's.

What Revenue Would It Yield?

A tax on malt and alcoholic drinks, to be collected through the agency of a liquor register by all licensed houses, is not only no longer ridiculed, but is approved and demanded in many States. The dealers make no objection to it, believing, no doubt, that it will be paid by the consumer. The temperance advocates should prefer it to any other license system, inasmuch as if it raises the retail price of beer and liquor it will restrict drinking, and if it falls on the liquor dealers it will limit their number. It ought to be acceptable to the people generally in New York because it would yield a revenue large enough to materially decrease taxation, and thus, by relieving real estate, make rents lower and lessen the cost of living. The Society for the Prevention of Crime recently made a careful investigation of the retail liquor business in the city, and estimated the number of places for the sale of ardent spirits, licensed and unlicensed, at over eight thousand, not including saloons where beer alone is sold. The society would naturally adopt extreme figures; but we may safely calculate the total number of liquor and beer establishments at eight thousand. The number of drinks of liquor, wine and beer sold at each place per day would doubtless average at least two hundred, which gives a consumption of one million six hundred thousand drinks daily, or four hundred and eighty million drinks in three hundred days. If we estimate three-fourths of the consumption to be beer we have one hundred and twenty million glasses of liquor and three hundred and sixty million glasses of beer. A tax of two cents per glass on liquors and half a cent on beer, based on these figures, would realize to the city four million two hundred thousand dollars yearly. We have no doubt, however, that this is an under estimate and that the revenue derived in New York from such a tax would be nearly or quite five million dollars annually.

Why should not the experiment of a liquor tax register be tried in New York? It would be the most effective check possible on the unlicensed sale of liquor, and, whether paid by the consumer or the dealer, would benefit the cause of temperance, in the one case by making the consumption more expensive, or in the other by making the sale less profitable. It would certainly be an improvement on the present inoperative law, which practically gives us an unlicensed and unrestricted liquor traffic, offers a premium for corruption and favoritism in the police force and robs our excellent charitable institutions of the greater portion of the aid they have been accustomed to receive from the excise funds.

The Rifle Season.

With the coming of the fine April weather the riflemen begin looking up their shooting traps, that have been put away neat and snug through the winter. Rifles are slung over broad shoulders, ammunition boxes are packed with the nicety of a lady's dressing case, and the crack of the rifle, the whistle of the ball, the thud on the target and the glancing of the white, red and black disks are making things lively on the ranges throughout the country. There is hardly any sport which has attained the same popularity among us as rifle shooting during the past five years. American marksmen have gone on with a uniform success in their contests against all comers which could not fail to produce the best results. It is unfortunate that this year is likely to pass without another brush for the long range championship of the world, but we are glad to see that an American team will be organized all the same, ready to take up the gauntlet if anybody flings it down. As champions of the world we are unfortunately in the position of having to wait for a challenge. All we can do is to keep our keen-sighted boys up to the standard of their past work, with, if possible, a little further improvement, to be prepared for contingencies. Of home contests there will, however, be no lack. The spring meeting of our New York Association at Creedmoor, toward the end of next month, promises a lively opening to the ball. There will be a riflemen's convention held on the grounds on the 24th of May, and it is to be hoped that there will be a full representation and that some means of organizing compactly the various rifle associations throughout the Union will be reached and carried out. There goes the first shot at a thousand yards for the season. "What is it?" "Bull's eye, very high, to the right." "Good! Come down half a point and take off a little wind." There will be lots of that sort of talk for months to come.

Germany and Holland.

On the 26th of December last we published a remarkable communication from our Brussels correspondent regarding the intervention of Germany in the affairs of Belgium. Rumors of this character had been circulating in the embassies for a considerable time previous, and the HERALD, in view of their gravity, despatched a reliable journalist to the Belgian capital to investigate and report upon the facts. This he did in a letter which occupied eight columns of our journal, and which was almost judicial in its character, so thoroughly were all the charges made against Major de Sommerfeld, of the great German Etat-Major and now military attaché to the German Legation in Belgium, investigated. Our correspondent, we think, established beyond the possibility of doubt that the dominant power at the Belgian War Office has been for a considerable time past this German military agent. He is described as a man of "sharp intelligence and very elegant manners," and to these serviceable diplomatic qualities he adds, of course, a thorough knowledge of military administration acquired in the best of all schools—that of which General Moltke has been the creator and director.

The influence which this officer is shown to have acquired in the direction of the affairs of the Belgian War Department would be incredible were it not preceded by the facts developed by the Franco-German war, and which prove that the science of diplomacy and occult intervention is not confined nowadays to the civil service of the Continental Powers. The war departments of Germany and Russia have superseded the old machinery of the chancelleries by systems of propagandism and espionage infinitely more effective and confessedly more expeditious. Owing to the brief interval which they leave between the affirmation of political pretensions and their execution the future policy of the governments of the world bids fair to be entirely controlled by them. There can be no greater evidence of the correctness of this assumption than the success which has thus far attended the coordinate military and diplomatic operations of that twin sister of Germany in cold-blooded arbitrariness and crafty diplomacy—Russia.

It is needless to say that the revelations of our Brussels correspondent in regard to the designs of Germany upon Holland, and the part which Belgium is destined to play in them, as well as against France, have excited a good deal of attention and comment throughout Europe. In Belgium, of course, the government organs are indignant at the exposé, for it is humiliating to have it shown that their statesmen are deficient either in patriotism or sagacity. In France it is regarded with satisfaction, for under its republican régime everything of the kind must benefit it, as showing the broad distinction which exists between policies based on principles of rectitude and greed. The tendency upon the part of some of the Powers to disregard the obligations of solemn treaties and to substitute their own interests and will for the prescriptions of international law will speedily range the European governments into two distinct camps and determine the question of alliances by natural laws.

As an evidence of the correctness of these conclusions we publish in another column a number of extracts from the French and German journals in reference to the statements of our Brussels correspondent. Although, as was to be expected, the former endeavor to parry their effect, it will be seen from the tone of their articles that they are annoyed at these premature developments and would be glad to explain them away, which, it will be observed, they utterly fail to do.

A Hopeful Prospect.

If Mr. Montgomery Blair lacks discretion he can at least boast of hopefulness. Like the chronic lottery dealer he regards it as the easiest and most natural thing in the world to win the highest prize, and is quite confident that the fortunate number will one day turn up in his hands. He draws blank after blank, it is true; but he goes on buying tickets and pays out his money with an abiding faith in the ultimate result—if that can be called an ultimate result which is never reached. Mr. Blair has played his little game in the Maryland Legislature with remarkable persistency, and he is now credited with the belief that Mr. Hayes may be turned out and Mr. Tilden placed in the Presidency in sixty days, without creating any more commotion in the country than would be occasioned by a change in any petty office. Of course it would be as idle to assure Mr. Blair that he is mistaken as it would be to call the attention of the chronic policy player to his threadbare coat and soleless boots. Yet we venture to advise the ex-Postmaster General to purchase a whole ticket in the next "Grand Extraordinary Drawing of the Royal Swindleum Lottery, Capital Prize Ten Million Dollars;" for we predict that he will turn up a winner in this venture just about the same time that he succeeds in his Presidential speculation.

Life Insurance Examinations.

Mr. Brooks has introduced a resolution in the Assembly directing the Committee on Insurance to examine and report to the House whether any amendment to the law of 1873 is required for the protection of the policy holders in life and fire insurance companies, or to secure a more efficient, economical and honest administration of the Insurance Department and of the companies. The law which the present Superintendent of the Department was charged with violating seems to be objectionable in many particulars. It provides that when an examination of a life insurance company takes place the bills of the attorneys and appraisers who may be employed by the department for that purpose shall be sent in items to the department, submitted to the approval of the Superintendent and the subsequent approval and audit of the Comptroller and paid by warrant on the State Treasurer after the amount has been collected from the company examined. It is urged that no capable attorneys and appraisers will consent to submit their charges to be thus questioned and probably cut down, and that the law tends to promote a secret understanding between the examiners and the companies to the danger of the insured. It is desirable that no payment should be made directly to the examiners by the companies; but the objections made to the existing law are not without force. It would be better if the companies were required to pay a regular annual tax, graduated according to their business, to supply an examination fund, instead of being charged for each examination. The fees to be paid to attorneys and appraisers might then be fixed by law, so that their bills could not be disputed, and the money would be ready in the State Treasury to pay them when the work was done. This would be a fair arrangement for all parties, would remove the objectionable features of the present law, prevent exorbitant charges, and at the same time put a stop to any direct money transactions between the companies and the parties making the examinations.

A Roundabout Road to Discipline.

At the meeting of the Princeton alumni, held in this city on Tuesday, the late disgraceful proceedings on the part of some of the students at their Alma Mater were discussed. One gentleman named Butler wanted to have all students on entering the college bound over to keep the peace, like so many uproarious police court prisoners after a spree and a row. This suggestion was not adopted, but it drew from a gentleman named Jackson the delightful idea that a panacea would be found in offering a prize of one hundred dollars to the undergraduates for the best essay, "in the Tom Brown style," on college discipline and college amenities, the essay chosen to be printed and scattered broadcast through the college. This brought a gentleman named Martin to his feet, who was indignant and poohpoohed the recent troubles as of little or no consequence; but he made an important statement to the effect that Dr. McCosh, the president of Princeton, was now writing a magazine article which is expected to stop, squelch and scatter all the yearnings of wicked collegians for things that would offend the sensibilities of the late Dr. Watts. We are not informed whether the learned doctor will write his article "in the Tom Brown style" or not, but we cannot say that we look forward to it in very great hope. It seems rather a roundabout way to get at his boys, even if he does serve up his composition "à la Tom Brown." A little practice in this case would be worth a great deal of theory. We respectfully suggest some to the erudite president before he astonishes the world with his magazine article.

The Atlantic loves monotony. The Spectator says that there are artisan families in India and in Damascus who have worked at the same work day by day for a thousand years, peasant families who have not only tilled the same fields, but have gone into them and left them at the same hour, according to the season, from a period before the birth of Christ. They have no wish for change, no ambition to do better, no inclination to roam, no sense of failure because they are as their forefathers were and as their sons will be.

Spectator:—"Gainsborough or Millais would select some delicate or characteristic type of face, attend carefully to the disposition of hair, whether it be in a net or flowing curls, paint the purple dress and golden bracelet in all importance—we do not say undue importance—notice with the instinct of an ideal habit-maker the 'sit' of the drapery, show us how an ormolu table or much chased secrétaire can be painted without being vulgar, and throw intense energy into the grace of the pose and expression, so as to let us know at once that the young lady is a member of social humanity."

Colonel Coope, who was under Colonel Valentine Baker, and who was captured, thus describes the Grand Duke Nicholas:—"He is tall, strongly built and soldierly in person, but with no indication of capacity, and certainly none of refinement, in his countenance. His forehead is narrow, his glance fierce, but without penetration; his features are altogether rather coarsely and commonly moulded; and, above all, there is in his manner a want of that calmness and (so to say) security which we associate with the possession of supreme rank and unquestioned authority. There is something of what I must call bluster about him. His brusquerie, however, sometimes relaxes. After a sentence pronounced in an almost brutal tone, the next will be courteous and almost caressing. He is at any rate an accomplished linguist."

ITALIAN OPERA—MLLE. ROZE AS AIDA, AT BOOTH'S.

Verdi's latest opera, "Aida," which has been performed several times this season by the Strakosch company, with Miss Kellogg and Signor Frapolli in the leading rôles, was repeated last night to a crowded audience, the part of Aida being assumed by Mlle. Marie Roze and that of Radames by Herr Graff. It may at once be said that in no part yet assumed before a New York audience by the lovely French woman has she both as songstress and actress been so successful. It was in some sense a disadvantage to appear in the character with the pure soprano tones of the American prima donna ringing in the ear of the public; but all that was very soon swept away. When Verdi set out to write an opera for the Khedive of Egypt, he threw into it all the warmth and sensuousness of tone he could command, and built up the masses of sound that he required for his theme by copying with considerable skill the methods of Wagner. Thus his captive African princess has more of the tropical blaze around her than L'Africaine or Meyerbeer, if at the same time of less marked musical originality. As Aida, Mlle. Roze was a beautiful picture in outline and color. The ripe type of her beauty is in keeping with the land of the ripening sun, and the brown skin tints served to give her charms a new richness. In the acting she was warm and impassioned, and on no other occasion in New York has she sung with the same fervor. The music is fairly within her compass, and the high notes which she essayed last night, though wanting in volume, were singularly sweet. In the first act her recitative and aria, "Ritorna Vincitor," was given with fine phrasing and was warmly applauded, but it was in the second act, in the scene with her rival, Amneris, that the beauties of her performance first fairly came out. There could be no finer Amneris than that of Miss Cary, and her magnificent contralto presented to Mlle. Roze the difficulty of keeping up the contrast of quality of tone, for, as we have often intimated, the French prima donna's voice is a mezzo-soprano. The scene ended in a triumph for both artistes. The third act with its solo, "Io tremo," its scene with Amonasro and the passionate interview with Radames, was one succession of pleasures for the audience, leaving it difficult to choose a particular number, but we may mention, with emphasis, the duet with her Egyptian lover, although there was once a partial failure to reach a high note. The closing scene was also powerfully acted and sung.

Herr Graff's voice is in its upper notes of great power, marred by a peculiar stridency, while his lower notes are weak in volume, though something pleasanter in quality. He sings, however, with correctness and is reliable in hard work, of which there is plenty for the tenor in this opera. His "Celeste Aida" gained him favor at the start and he was heard with attention and applauded to the close. Signor Verdi as Amonasro was better than in any of his parts hitherto. Mr. Conly's High Priest and Mr. Gottschalk's King were fair. The chorus was generally fair, but the singing by the concealed females in the last act was terrible, both as to time and tune. "They are at sea," said a cynic in the stalls. "No wonder," replied his friend; "they have lost their Behrens." Bad joke, but good criticism.

MR. FLEMING AND HIS COMPANY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I have remained silent thus far in order to answer all accusations against me at once, and I trust you will now allow me to justify myself before the public. Your editions of April 1 and 2 contain statements regarding my financial relations with the company lately supporting the Count Joannes which are in every particular incorrect. On Saturday last I balanced my books and accounts with the company, most of whom had been in the habit of drawing money from day to day, and paid all the balances after the performance at the Grand Central Theatre, Philadelphia, which ended at ten minutes past ten o'clock that night. They were not kept waiting two hours, as is stated in your article, as in that case they could not possibly have taken the train for New York which left West Philadelphia, fully half an hour's journey from the theatre, at twelve o'clock. My books are at the public service in support of this. There were eleven members of the company. I paid and hold the Mansion House Hotel receipt for $86 board, for which I deducted $7 from each salary, giving them the benefit of the fraction. In addition each member received money from me for the expressage of his or her baggage from Jersey City to their homes in New York. The only bills they were required to pay themselves were car bills contracted at the Mansion House, for which I was certainly not responsible. My company was wretchedly deficient of wardrobe and utterly destitute of properties, with which I was forced to furnish them at very considerable expense to myself. The public can best understand this when I inform them that two trunks comprised the heavy baggage of the entire party. Count Joannes asserts that I left him to settle my bills at the hotel. This is a false statement, as my receipts will prove. He asserts that I am in his debt. I do not owe him one dollar. During the six weeks he has been with me I have paid him $2,593 35 (receipts in hand); added to this Lahouette, the costumer, has received from me $240 for the costumes of the Count and Miss Fairbanks.

During the Count's engagement with me I have certainly paid dearly for the privilege of representing the business department of his Shakespearian burlesques. As I have already stated in public he is captious and unreasonable beyond belief. Since my first connection with him I have never enjoyed a day's peace. If the public will only forgive my share in the heinous offence of inflicting this dramatic plague upon them this once they can rest assured that I will never sin again.

LONDON, April 4, 1878.

Yesterday's news showed little change in the position of the Eastern question. As General Ignatieff only arrived at St. Petersburg from Vienna on Tuesday evening the effect of his communications is yet unknown, but a special despatch to the Vienna Fremdenblatt from Berlin and a despatch from St. Petersburg to the London Times state simultaneously that there are some grounds for expecting a renewal of the Congress negotiations on the basis of the proposal made by Prince Bismarck that the Powers be invited to meet to revise the treaties of 1856 and 1871.

SOME HOPE OF THE CONGRESS.

The identity of this news in time and character from the two capitals where it would certainly be known first has given more hope of its correctness than the form in which the statements are made public. The Times' St. Petersburg despatch gives the news very vaguely, and the Fremdenblatts telegram merely says that such an idea is being ventilated at Berlin. The matter is in itself not improbable.

SPARING RUSSIA'S SUSCEPTIBILITIES.

Such an overture from Germany would spare Russian susceptibilities, and the Congress, instead of examining the successive articles of the Treaty of San Stefano, might take the clauses of the Paris instrument as a starting point of discussion and determine how much thereof may have become obsolete by events and what should be put in its place. Such a course would enable Russia on the discussion on each article of the Treaty of Paris to bring forward the stipulations of the San Stefano Treaty and defend them as the most suitable substitutions for the corresponding clauses of the act of 1856.

RUSSIA WILL NOT PERSUADE MUCH.

There is no authentic information of such a proposal having yet been made from any side, however, and the Agence Russe, on Tuesday, it must be remembered, after stating that General Ignatieff's mission has not failed, as he was simply instructed to give and receive friendly explanations relative to the attitude of England, said:—"Russia cannot do more to facilitate the meeting of the Congress, and her means of persuasion cease at the point where care for her dignity commences."

IMPROBABLE STORIES.

It is improbably that Russia will take any step or come to any decision until General Ignatieff has reported. The stories in a Constantinople despatch to the Vienna Political Correspondence that the Russians have commenced a fresh movement toward Gallipoli, and that the troops to the north of the Balkans are being moved nearer to the Danube, and in a Constantinople despatch to the London Standard of the demands for the abandonment to the Russians of a number of Turkish positions, including the fortifications on both sides of the Upper Bosphorus and Gallipoli and Boulair, are highly improbable. Such action on the part of Russia would not merely precipitate war, but be wanton and unnecessary. There is said to be in Constantinople a regular manufactory of these irritating statements for the purpose of provoking England and Austria against Russia.

RUSSIA STILL PREPARING FOR WAR.

The Times has the following from Berlin:—"We learn from St. Petersburg that the direction of Foreign Affairs has practically passed into the hands of General Ignatieff. Russia continues to purchase large quantities of war material in Germany. Lord Salisbury's note has put an end to the plan for a revival of the congress scheme which Russia momentarily considered."

ENGLAND NOT ISOLATED.

The London correspondent of the Manchester Guardian calls attention to the significance of the Vienna despatch to the Eastern Budget, which was published here on Tuesday simultaneously with the appearance in Vienna of a despatch making a similar statement, which was telegraphed from London to the Political Correspondence. The statement is to the effect that the Austrian government informed General Ignatieff that it required alterations to be made in the peace preliminaries, and that such alterations should be made with the concurrence of the other Powers; there is, therefore, no prospect of England being isolated, and the action of the Vienna Cabinet is calculated to promote the interests of peace. The fact that this statement appeared at the same time in the Eastern Budget and the Political Correspondence, both journals semi-official in character, adds to its significance.

NOT NECESSARILY WAR.

The Vienna Political Correspondence, reviewing Lord Salisbury's circular, considers that in the last resort the attitude of Austria and England will inevitably lead both to the same issue. If the congress does not meet England will take measures for the protection of her interests, which, however, would by no means necessarily cause war.

AUSTRIA AND ENGLAND AT ONE.

The Times of yesterday, in its leading editorial article, said:—"The main fact in the present posture of affairs is that Austria and England are at one in their view of the treaty of San Stefano and of the only means by which, without war, it can be brought into harmony with the just claims of the other Powers. The public opinion of Europe is with them, and, if they act together with firmness and loyalty, Russia may be induced to withdraw from her position, which would then be obviously untenable."

AWAITING RESULTS.

The Daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent hears that Count Andrassy, recognizing the difficulty of assembling the congress, is preparing for common action with England. The consequences of General Ignatieff's report at St. Petersburg on the result of his mission, however, yet remain to be seen.

AUSTRIAN APPROVAL OF SALISBURY.

The Times' Vienna correspondent says:—"Even the unanimous approval of the Austrian papers of Lord Salisbury's circular is but a faint reflex of its effect on public opinion."

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Vienna hears from an official source that M. Tisza, Premier of the Hungarian Ministry, has informed the Emperor and Count Andrassy that he could not answer for the consequences in Hungary if Austria took a decision hostile to or independent of England.

SEEKING ITALY AS AN ALLY.

The Times' Rome despatch says the Fanfulla believes that the English Ambassador is actually urging the Italian government to assume an attitude favorable to England.

CRITICISMS, BUT NO PROPOSALS.

The Agence Russe, of St. Petersburg, says if Lord Salisbury's note is to decline a congress its end is attained; but if it is intended to open discussion, discussion by written communications may last a year, particularly as the note contains criticisms, but no proposals.

SUGGEST ANOTHER SOLUTION.

A correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphs as follows:—"As the text of Lord Salisbury's circular is not yet received Russia has not decided upon an answer, but there is reason to believe she will not regard the circular as having anything of the nature of an ultimatum. As the British government confines itself to purely negative criticism it may possibly be asked to suggest some solution of its own. It is argued that if the English Cabinet really desires to avoid war some pacific solution may still be found. The public regard the circular, however, as a new proof that England has decided upon war, while in the official world it is said, although the circular is not pleasant reading for those who desire peace, it has the advantage of intelligibility."

POINT BY POINT.

A special to the Tagblatt from Berlin says Russia's answer will contest Lord Salisbury's despatch point by point and will declare that the aim of England's policy is plain.

WATCHING EVENTS.

The North German Gazette of Berlin states that Count Stolberg-Wernigerode will not at present assume his duties as Vice President of the Prussian Ministry, as the Eastern negotiations require his presence in Vienna and will probably oblige Prince Bismarck to remain in Berlin for some time to come.

GERMAN INDORSEMENT OF ENGLAND.

The Berlin Post publishes an article, which is believed to be inspired, adopting Lord Salisbury's criticisms of the San Stefano Treaty. It says England will hardly remain alone in the opinion that the Treaty of Paris, until amended, is the law of Europe. Russia, therefore, has no choice between war or parting with the Treaty of San Stefano, as she would have to do if she entered a congress.

SIR HENRY ELLIOT'S AUTHORITY.

In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon Mr. Robert Bourke, Under Foreign Secretary, stated that Sir Henry Elliot, British Ambassador at Vienna, in reply to an inquiry by telegraph as to his authority for the statement in his despatch to Lord Derby on the 23d ult. that he had been trustworthily informed that Prince Gortschakoff told the Roumanian agent at St. Petersburg that Russia would not allow the question of the cession of Bessarabia to be discussed by the Congress, said that the Roumanian agent at Vienna was his informant.

THREATENING ROUMANIA.

A special despatch from Bucharest to the Political Correspondence of Vienna reports that two Russian army corps stationed in Bulgaria have been ordered to return to Roumania and take up positions between Giurgevo and Bucharest. It is feared that the Russians may impose a state of siege throughout Roumania.

ENCOURAGED BY ENGLAND AND AUSTRIA.

At a secret sitting of the Roumanian Chambers yesterday MM. Ghika and Stourdza reported the result of their recent missions to London and Vienna respectively. The former said the English Cabinet had encouraged Roumania to hold out in regard to Bessarabia. The latter said Austria laid stress upon the necessity of the Bessarabian question being settled by the decision of Europe.

DOUBTS OF ROUMANIAN EARNESTNESS.

A special to the Times from Bucharest says:—"Despite a strong popular feeling against the cession of Bessarabia to Russia many doubt whether the Roumanian Cabinet is opposed to it."

OCCUPYING MACEDONIA.

A despatch from Constantinople says the Russians have occupied parts of Macedonia included in New Bulgaria. The Russian military authorities and transport officials yesterday held a council upon measures for the ultimate evacuation of Turkey.

RUSSIAN SICKNESS.

The Daily Telegraph's Vienna special says:—"Official returns show that last week the Russians had 53,000 sick in Europe alone."

THE BRITISH FLEET.

The Standard announces as a proof that there is no intention of complying with the reported demand for the withdrawal of the British fleet from the Sea of Marmora, but the iron-clad ram Rupert and iron-clad turret ship Devastation have been ordered to join the squadron there to replace the Sultan, which will return to England to refit.

PROTESTING AGAINST WAR.

A deputation of the National Liberal Federation, "to protest against the attitude of the government, express disapproval of the calling out of the reserves and to proclaim the desire of the liberal party to save Great Britain from the shame and misery of an unjust war," were met at the Westminster Palace Hotel yesterday afternoon by Lords Granville and Hartington. The deputation numbered about five hundred representatives from all parts of the Kingdom. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, member of the House of Commons from Birmingham, presided. Mr. John Bright introduced the deputation to Lords Granville and Hartington.

THE OPPOSITION POWERLESS.

Lord Granville, addressing the deputation, said he required no stimulus to adopt a course likely to prevent the country from being dragged into a war which neither its honorable engagements nor national interests demanded, but it would be deceiving themselves and Russia to conclude that the opposition could prevent the government from going to war if the government was bent on a warlike policy.

OPPOSING RASH ACTION.

Lord Hartington said the present duty of the opposition was to interpose by every means in its power obstacles to any rash and ill-considered action of the government, the result of which might be war.

COUNT VON BEUST STILL IN LONDON.

The report printed in Tuesday afternoon's Pall Mall Gazette that Count Von Beust, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador here, had suddenly left for Vienna, is untrue.

ENGAGING INTERPRETERS.

The Manchester Guardian has a despatch from Salonica, saying:—"The English Consul is engaging interpreters knowing the Greek, Turkish and English languages at a salary of $150 per month, commencing immediately."

SERVIAN MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

A despatch from Belgrade says a portion of the Servian army is advancing from Negotin to garrison Widdin, which the Russians are evacuating. It is stated that the Servians will also occupy Belgradschik and probably the line from there to Plevna.

SERVIA WILL CO-OPERATE TO THE END.

The Servian Cabinet Council have resolved that Servian troops shall occupy Belgradschik and Bulgaria as far as Plevna, in accordance with Russian commands, but only withdraws after a definitive settlement of the Eastern question. Prince Milan declared that Servia would co operate with Russia until Turkey was completely dismembered, Servia's policy being the formation of a kingdom comprising her present and former territory.

THE GREEK INSURRECTION.

A despatch from Athens states that the admiral commanding the United States squadron cruising in Greek waters has ordered a man-of-war from Smyrna to proceed to Volo, near which place, according to the latest accounts, massacres and pillaging by the Turks still continue. The Turkish squadron has left Volo. Its destination is unknown. Another despatch from Athens says the circular has aroused enthusiasm there.

GREEKS IN SORE STRAITS.

The Times' despatch from Athens says the American man-of-war ordered to Volo is the Marion. Such aid as she can render the suffering Greeks, however, is quite inadequate, and, perhaps, too late. The French and Austrian Consuls at Volo have telegraphed for men-of-war, as the Turks are quite demoralized and have threatened a French officer. An English man-of-war is expected. The Italian government has ordered Italian vessels to receive refugees.

TURKISH REFUGEES.

The Daily Telegraph's Pera despatch says that 20,000 refugees have been sent to Asia within the last few days.

PREPARING FOR THE EXHIBITION.

The HERALD correspondent in Paris telegraphs that Richard C. McCormick, American Commissioner General to the Paris Exposition, is pushing the work of preparation with great energy.

CONCILIATION IN FRANCE.

A Paris despatch says:—"Three measures introduced by the government—the Colportage bill, the Press Amnesty bill and the State of Siege bill—have all become law. The first prevents the recurrence of the most arbitrary proceedings of the De Broglie cabinet, the second cancels its 3,000 press prosecutions, though extended by the Senate to about a dozen earlier or later offenders, including Paul de Cassagnac, and the third is directed against an abuse of power, which, though not resorted to by the Duke de Broglie, was notoriously advocated by some of his colleagues and supporters. There are inundations in the Department of Indre-et-Loire. The Seine and other rivers are also very high. Snow is falling in the east. Frost has done some mischief in the south."

THE LATE PEDESTRIAN CONTEST.

The Sporting Life states that the trustees of the champion belt have decided that O'Leary, winner of the late six days' pedestrian match, is entitled to take it to America, and anybody challenging him must go to America, unless O'Leary agrees to compete in England, which he does not appear anxious to do at present. The prizes in the late match have been distributed. O'Leary received $3,750, Vaughan $1,300 and Brown $525. The other contestants got various smaller sums.

THE COMING REGATTA.

The Oxford crew arrived at Putney on the Thames yesterday. The interuniversity race is appointed for nine o'clock A. M., April 13.

IS IT FAIR TO AMERICANS?

The Pall Mall Gazette says:—"The stewards of the Henley regatta have given notice that all American crews contemplating entry must do so six weeks before the regatta. The stewards also reserve the right to refuse any entry without assigning a reason."

UNWISE ACTION.

The Pall Mall Gazette doubts the question of compelling the Americans to settle their crews and pay entrance fees a month earlier than the English crews. The intention, it says, is doubtless to make a full investigation of the status of American oarsmen, but it would suffice if the names of the American oarsmen were submitted to the stewards at the time specified, leaving to the Americans the option of selecting what prizes they would enter for and who should make up this or that crew out of the list submitted until the ordinary day of entry—that is, a fortnight before the regatta.

THE LEITRIM ASSASSINATION.

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE SLAUGHTER—NOT A WITNESS OF THE DEED LEFT ALIVE—THE BODIES DISCOVERED BY THE EARL'S VALET—AGRARIANISM THE UNDOUBTED CAUSE.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, April 4, 1878.

The following further details of the assassination of the Earl of Leitrim and his clerk and driver have been telegraphed from Dublin:—The Earl of Leitrim left his residence at Milford, county Donegal, shortly before eight o'clock, Tuesday morning, accompanied by his clerk, and was driving on an outside car to Derry to meet his solicitor. He always carried arms.

THE SCENE OF THE MURDER.

It is supposed that the assassins concealed themselves behind a low embankment between the road and plantation, and that having first shot the Earl of Leitrim they shot the clerk and the driver, so that there might be no witnesses. The driver was shot in the mouth, the ball ranging upward, and the clerk behind the ear, both probably at close quarters.

THE BODIES DISCOVERED.

His Lordship's valet was driving about a mile behind, and on coming up found his master and the clerk lying dead on the road. Life was still in the driver.

ESCAPE OF THE ASSASSINS.

The assassins meanwhile escaped in a boat across Mulroy Bay. The valet drove back to Milford and alarmed the police, who, coming to the place, found the driver still alive, but unconscious. He died shortly afterward.

UNDOUBTED AGRARIAN CHARACTER.

There is no doubt that the murder was agrarian. The relations between the Earl of Leitrim and his tenants were unfriendly. His Lordship was kind and liberal to the poor, but was very particular and exacting in his dealings with his tenantry, visiting with unsparing severity the slightest infraction of the rules of the estate. The Ribbon Society have a strong hold upon the neighboring country, owing, in a great measure, to his harshness. He had an iron will which disregarded alike appeals or menaces, and he possessed extraordinary courage and perseverance in the pursuit of his purposes.

EFFECT IN LONDON.

The London Times in an editorial article on the assassination says:—"It is no exaggeration to say that the news of the murder of the Earl of Leitrim, which caused a profound sensation in the House of Commons on Tuesday, when confirmed by the Irish Secretary, has struck this country with as much pain and amazement as an unprovoked declaration of war."

TWO MEN ARRESTED.

A later despatch reports that two men named McTaggart and Friel have been arrested on board a steamer going from Rathmullen to Londonderry, on suspicion of complicity in the murder of Lord Leitrim.

THE EARL OF LEITRIM'S EXCENTRICITIES.

To THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

It may be interesting to make known that the assassination of the Earl of Leitrim, which was yesterday recorded, was the result of a feeling entirely personal to himself and is not by any means the symbol of any organized system of agrarian outrage. Lord Leitrim was, for the last thirty years, more or less out of his mind, and at intervals committed acts which only make it wonderful that he did not earlier meet the dreadful fate which has befallen him. For some time as Lord Clements he represented Leitrim in the House of Commons on the liberal side as a follower of Mr. O'Connell, but he broke into wild acts and expressions which made necessary his retirement from the House. He subsequently was removed from the deputy lieutenancy and commission of the peace for similar outbreaks, and has acquired a notoriety in Leitrim, where his property is chiefly situated, for atrocities which would rival those of Bulgaria. At the same time, like men of such ungoverned and misdirected tempers, he was capable of kind and gentle acts when the better feeling seized him. He has frequently allowed his rents to go uncollected for two or three years, and then of a sudden would swoop down with some arbitrary edict and beset with eviction all who disputed his will. When Lord Carlisle, as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, so pleasantly remembered here as Lord Morpeth, was travelling through the western highlands of Galway, in which Lord Leitrim held considerable property, he issued a ukase to all the hotel proprietors on his estate not to receive him or any of his suite under pain of eviction. It was his habit to act as his own bailiff, and on horseback, alone and armed to the teeth, to carry out those processes of law which even under the severest necessity are so painful to a tender nature. His tenantry in Leitrim and Galway bore with his savage freaks with the greatest forbearance, believing him to be irresponsible for many of his acts. But to Derry, where this murder was committed, he was comparatively a stranger, his property there being very small, and it will doubtless be found he has committed some terrible act of tyranny to provoke such a crime in a region in which agrarian outrage has hitherto been wholly unknown. His brother, the Hon. Charles Clements, who died within the last year, was for many years member for Leitrim and held the position of Poor Law Commissioner in Ireland. His nephew, now Earl, visited this country some three years since in connection with the Emma mine, in company with Mr. Brydges Williams, member of Parliament for Cornwall, and Mr. Laurence, author of "Guy Livingstone." He will be a vast improvement on his uncle in the management of the Leitrim estates. For the rest the most pity will be felt for the innocent clerk and driver, who fell, as Scott pictures them and as most Celtic servants do, in devotion to their master to the last.

DUELL DISCHARGED.

FAILURE OF THE FRAUDULENT PENSION CASE AGAINST HIM.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 3, 1878.

The case of the United States government against R. Holland Duell for withholding pension money and ante-dating an application for a pension was closed to-day. The prosecution established three points—that James R. Carson, a soldier, died December 24, 1874; that the application for a pension for Mrs. Carson was made out by Duell and the date of Carson's death placed in the year 1870; that the widow's affidavit, drawn by Duell, placed the death of Carson in 1870. Mrs. Carson swears when Duell read the affidavit to her he read 1874 as the date of death; that the affidavit of a Mrs. Dickinson, drawn by Duell, placed the death in 1870; when Duell read the affidavit to her to secure her signature, she also states, he read it 1874; that the affidavit of the physician who attended the soldier at his death was filled out by Duell inserting 1870 as the date of death, sometime after it had been sworn to; that the two checks, one for $500 and the other for $158 93, were forwarded in an envelope from the Pension Department, addressed to Mrs. Martha J. Carson, the widow, at Cortlandt; that the letter was surreptitiously taken from the office, unknown to the widow, and the checks abstracted therefrom, and next appearing in the hands of Duell; that Duell obtained the money on the checks and kept it all save $98, which he paid the pensioner; that after Duell had retained the money over one year Mrs. Carson discovered the fraud, charged Duell with it, who first denied it, then said he had sent the money by mistake to a woman in Elmira, and finally admitted having it himself, and paid it over, with interest.

DUELL'S STATEMENTS.

Duell's defence was that the filling out of the application, wrongly fixing the date of the soldier's death, was a clerical error of his partner; that the two women were mistaken in saying he read the affidavits fixing the date of death in 1874. He admits filling out the physician's affidavit some time after it was made. He swore he did not abstract Mrs. Carson's letter from the Post office, but lays that to his dead partner, Foster. He avers he took the abstracted checks to New York, which the widow swears he did not show to her, got them cashed, and forwarded the balance due, by check, to his now dead partner. That check, he avers, has lain concealed among his dead partner's papers until after his arrest, when he searched and found it.

THE CASE ABANDONED.

Assistant District Attorney Pound advised the Commissioner that he feared to take the case before a jury, when the prisoner was discharged. Duell was warmly congratulated by his friends. Duell declares that the Interior Department at Washington hoped to make political capital by prosecuting him.

DEFRAUDING THE REVENUE.

BOSTON, April 3, 1878.

James Mackey, of Providence, will be brought before United States Commissioner Hallett to-morrow morning charged with defrauding the government by being concerned in the distillation of whiskey upon which the government tax was not paid. Some time last summer a partnership was formed for the manufacture and sale of liquor between Mackey, Louis Benway, Owen McEnany, of Providence, and an East Mansfield farmer. McEnany was to furnish and operate the still, Benway to provide the accommodations and Mackey to dispose of the whiskey. A quarrel led to an exposure, and an unsuccessful attempt was made to criminate them before United States Commissioner Douglass, of Fall River. Lately the case was taken in hand by Deputy Collector Hayes, who arrested Mackey and McEnany and brought them to this city. The latter, it is said, has confessed his guilt and will be used as a government witness.

MASSACHUSETTS LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

BOSTON, April 3, 1878.

The bill amending the existing Liquor law was debated at length in the House to-day. The bill was amended by adopting the Moffet register sections and limiting the number of licenses to be granted in any city or town to one for each 1,000 inhabitants.

BOSTON, April 3, 1878.

Negotiations, instituted by the Board of Land Commissioners, to secure payments from the Boston and Albany Railroad Company to the Commonwealth upon account of their agreement with the State in regard to the South Boston flats have resulted in payment by the company of $330,900. The Land Commissioners state that the amount due was $410,000, according to contract, but the company dispute the balance and have asked for a hearing, which will doubtless be granted.

THE BUSINESS REVIVAL.

[From the Buffalo Express, April 2.]

The NEW YORK HERALD of Sunday is issued in quintuple form again—the fifth issue of this kind in as many weeks. There are 120 columns in the paper, seventy-eight of which are given up to advertisements. The matter in this issue of the HERALD represents the type in two octavo volumes of 333 pages each, and the labor attending the various departments and their make-up is twice that which the volumes would require. When the time given the HERALD employés to get out this sheet is considered the enterprise assumes very large proportions. When the money the edition brings is reflected upon one is not surprised at the various expensive expeditions of the HERALD. The quintuple paper may be gratifying to the public at large as an evidence more or less pronounced of a revival of business.

RHODE ISLAND ELECTION.

LARGELY INCREASED MAJORITIES REPORTED FOR GOVERNOR VAN ZANDT.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEWPORT, April 3, 1878.

Governor Charles C. Van Zandt has been re-elected to-day by a handsome majority, estimated at 1,500 more than he got last year. Newport, the residence of both Mr. Lawrence, the democratic candidate, and of Mr. Van Zandt, gives the republican candidate a majority of 400, and naturally there is no little rejoicing here to-night and bonfires are visible in various sections of the city. Mr. Lawrence secured a creditable vote here and his campaign throughout the State has been conducted with energy.

Governor Van Zandt is in receipt of congratulatory telegrams from all sections of the State to-night and from Washington, the Rhode Island members of Congress being peculiarly interested in the result of the election.

GOVERNOR VAN ZANDT TO PRESIDENT HAYES.

The following is a copy of a despatch just sent to President Hayes:—

NEWPORT, April 3, 1878.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, President of the United States:—

Mitchell, Nobleite. It is generally a clean sweep for the Grahamites.

NEW YORK CITY DEMOCRACY.

A largely attended meeting of the New York city democracy was held last evening at No. 8 Union square. Mr. John B. Haskin presided. Representatives from the Assembly districts were present, among them ex-Senator O'Brien, Messrs. John J. Blair, Theodore E. Tomlinson, Dennis Burns, R. B. Nooney, ex-Alderman Fitzgerald and others.

It was announced by the Committee of Eight that arrangements had been completed for a mass meeting of the city democracy at Cooper Institute on Wednesday evening, April 10. The address as to this meeting was adopted. It calls upon "the democratic electors of New York and all other citizens who are willing to unite who favor a just reduction of the salaries of our city officials, the abolition of existing unnecessary offices and official employés, the funding of the city debt and the payment of not more than five per cent interest thereon, the repeal of the law creating the Board of Apportionment and in favor of a new city charter, with a resumption of local legislative powers, and the immediate passage by the Legislature of the concurrent resolution now before it, naming thirteen of our fellow citizens to report to them to reduce salaries and abolish sinecures, to assemble at Cooper Institute on Wednesday, the 10th of April, at eight o'clock, to memorialize the Legislature in favor of such objects and to assist in perfecting the organization of the city democracy."

After the adoption of this call ex-Judge Ackert spoke as to the importance of the proposed gathering at the Cooper Institute.

A resolution was adopted increasing the members of the General Committee to three from each election district. This will make the General Committee of the organization consist of about eighteen hundred.

Mr. Timothy Shea, from the Ninth district, offered a resolution recommending the Legislature to pass the bill making the Comptrollership of this city elective. After the resolution was amended so as to make it read that the sense of the meeting favored making the Comptrollership elective, it was passed in this shape.

The meeting then adjourned.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

A meeting of the Twelfth Ward Equal Suffrage Society was held last evening in Lincoln Hall, Third avenue and 116th street, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Whitney, its president, in the chair. The proceedings of the meeting were enlivened by a medley of recitations and musical selections. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Whitney, Benno Lowry, LL. D.; Mrs. Clara Neyman and Edmund King. Mrs. Whitney said, during her remarks that the pulpit and press gave women no quarter, and it was, therefore, women's right to strike back and hit if she can. Mr. Benno Lowry labored to show that modern society was in a state of moral decay, and in spite of public opinion and threatened ostracism, he proclaimed himself an advocate of equal rights for both sexes. The audience separated at a late hour.

NEW JERSEY POLITICS.

The republicans of Jersey City held their Convention yesterday afternoon in the Wigwam on Pavonia avenue. Flavel McGee was elected Chairman, and J. Herbert Potts, Secretary. Roderick B. Seymour, Chairman of the Executive Committee, said, after a call for nominations had been made, that the democrats in the Legislature had several new charters for Jersey City now before them, and until after Friday they would be unable to do anything definite. A committee of one from each district was appointed, consisting of R. B. Seymour, William Morgan, Dennis L. Spencer, R. P. Glenny, John Q Bird and Casper J. Speck to select names for nomination, and the Convention adjourned until Saturday, at three P. M.

The republicans of Hoboken yesterday held their city Convention and indorsed the German independent nominations as follows:—For Mayor, E. S. S. Besson; City Clerk, George J. Ducker; Treasurer, August Bente; Collector of Revenue, Andrew Kronman; Assessor, Thomas Fields; Councilman at Large, John R. Wiggins; Freeholders, John C. Dulukoo[illegible] and Ramon M. Cook; Water Commissioner, Leonard J. Stiastny. There is no opposition to Besson for Mayor, the democrats having nominated him at their Convention a week ago. The charter elections will be held in both cities on Tuesday next.

THE FRENCH FAIR.

The charity fair in aid of the poor and orphans, under the auspices of the ladies of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul and of the French Benevolent Society, of New York, closed last evening at twelve o'clock. This fair has been open about ten days at Kurtz's Hall, East Twenty-third street, and has been most generously patronized. The committee last evening expressed themselves as being very well satisfied with its success, and they thought that about $8,000 would be realized for the charitable purposes mentioned. The ladies of the committee, and in fact all concerned, worked very hard to make it a success, and deserve full credit for their charitable endeavors.

DIME ENTERTAINMENT.

The tenth of a series of dime entertainments drew a large audience to the Church of our Saviour, in West Fifty-seventh street, last evening. The performers were Miss Minnie Mason, who gave a number of humorous and dramatic readings in very good style; Miss Lily Eiche, violinist; Master William H. Lee, soprano; Mrs. F. Skinner, pianist and organist, and Señor Jose Godoy, tenor. The performance was very successful, the singing of Master Lee, the boy soprano, being particularly excellent and winning the heartiest applause.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The Stock Market Active and Strong.

GOLD STEADY AT 101 1-8.

Government Bonds Firm, States Dull and Railroads Quiet.

MONEY ON CALL ACTIVE AT 7 PER CENT.

WALL STREET, WEDNESDAY, April 3—6 P. M.

The stock market is fairly wound up and runs with the regularity of an eight day clock whose hands in traversing the dial continuously point to higher figures. Especially was this true to-day of the St. Paul property, which took the lead in speculative estimation and kept it. Present unexampled earnings and prospects of a continuance of the same for another twelvemonth (if the favorable promises of the next crop be borne out by practical results) are attracting buyers and advancing values. Consequently, the aggregate of transactions in the two classes of stock exceeded 41,000 shares, and the gain in market price surpassed any other stock upon the list. Close behind came the Northwestern and Lake Shore—still continuing to be first favorites in the betting; but for the day, at least, remarkable rather for steadiness of quotations than for an increase of values. Included in the same category was Western Union—strong at one time, weak at another, but in the end sufficiently firm to meet the desires of holders who had bought in under reports of an increased business. More than usual attention was given to Pacific Mail, over 10,000 shares changing hands at prices that ranged from 20¾ to 22⅜, although latest dealings were made at a decline of one per cent from best figures. A correspondent objects to our classifying the "major part" of the Pacific Mail fleet as "fourth rate hulks," and claims that at least two vessels, the City of Peking and City of Tokio, are "simply magnificent in all respects." They certainly came near being "magnificent" failures if the log of their first voyages as new ships is a criterion of their value, for on the arrival of the first named at San Francisco it was found necessary to dock her and tinker up iron plates and bolt heads, at the cost of many thousands of dollars, before the ship was again pronounced seaworthy. If we remember rightly the Tokio was subsequently submitted to the same process and for the same reasons. If these two crack ships of the line turned out to be cripples in their youth, what is to be said of the rest of the fleet, which have been invalids for many a year? Of the last "acquisition" of five steamers from the defunct Transit Company the less said the better. A white elephant on one's hands is an "acquisition" certainly, but it does not better one's credit to talk about the cost of its keep. As for the management of the concern, a sufficient commentary upon that is to be found in the market price of the stock. Fifteen years ago shares sold at 330—to-day they are selling at 20. The last brilliant financial coup of this "intelligent and capable" management was the purchase of the five steamers referred to for $1,350,000; actual value $400,000. Perhaps, however, we have used extravagant figures in rating the majority of the fleet as "fourth class hulks." We apologetically change the expression to "third class" hulks, and thus hope that this modification will meet the ideas of our correspondent. The business in the coal carriers was less than usual, the interest of the day being attracted to the more active railways. No lack of strength was shown in the market at the close, and in almost every instance the best prices of the day were nearly retained in final dealings.

HOW WAS SHE KILLED?

Coroner Nolan held an inquest in Judge Elliott's court room in Williamsburg yesterday in the case of Bridget Lewis, who was found dead on Union avenue on the 25th ult. The evidence went to show that the deceased, who had separated from her husband, lived, with a young son, in such extreme poverty at No. 292 Union avenue that she was obliged to beg for food. Her husband meanwhile, it was stated, pushed his claims as one of the contestants in the Lewis will case and did nothing for her support. Two married daughters, living in the vicinity of their mother also, it was alleged, did nothing for her. On the evening of March 25 last deceased started from the house to beg some bread from a baker on North Fourth street. She does not appear to have reached the baker's shop, but was picked up dead with a fractured skull in the roadway of Union avenue. The evidence was very conflicting, and as no wagon could be ascertained to have passed, the wheels of which might have caused the fracture, the jury returned the following verdict:—"Bridget Lewis came to her death from a fracture of the skull from some cause unknown to the jury." They also recommended that the avenue be graded, paved and lighted in the vicinity where the tragedy occurred.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

A PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY FILED AGAINST JOHN M'COOL—THE REGISTERS' RECORD.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against John McCool, the well known builder, formerly of No. 128 East Sixty-first street, by twelve of his creditors. His financial embarrassments are the result of the depreciation in real estate. Previous to the panic he controlled a large amount of capital, purchased great quantities of real estate and erected whole blocks of houses, and he had the reputation of building more houses for speculative purposes than any one man in this city. One of his latest enterprises was the erection of the block of dwelling houses on Sixtieth street, Madison and Fourth avenues. After the panic he found himself loaded with real estate mortgaged for its full value, and to save himself he transferred a large number of houses and lots on Fifty-sixth, Sixtieth and Sixty-fourth streets to the North American Life Insurance Company, which had advanced him a great deal of money. Numerous judgments, mainly for deficiency, are recorded against him, amounting to over $100,000, and in January last he gave a chattel mortgage on his furniture to B. Marks for $2,000. His finances have been gradually diminishing, until his embarrassments have culminated in the effort to throw him into bankruptcy. Mr. McCool held the office of Register and was defeated for Sheriff on the anti-Tammany ticket by William C. Conner; he was also interested in a theatrical venture at Niblo's Garden, which, however, did not pay. The claims of the petitioning creditors aggregate $38,387 11, mainly for lumber, work and loans, and are as follows:—Thomas Pearson, $2,000, on a promissory note; Thomas J. Crombie, $6,055 17, for lumber; Richard Kelly, $5,796, for loans and money paid out; James Hanlon, $3,302, for goods and merchandise; Patrick Golding, $4,500, for goods sold and labor performed; Fred. Zittel $4,410 34 for loans and services; John L. Egan, $1,155 for work done and materials furnished; Matthias Fullem, $420 for work and services; Hugh Quinn, $950 for money expended and labor performed; John Reid, $900 for work and materials; McBride & Whalen, $598 60 for work and materials. His liabilities, exclusive of his real estate indebtedness, are about $100,000, and he is believed to have no assets. The immediate act of bankruptcy on which the petition is based was the failure to pay a promissory note for $1,470 to Thomas J. Crombie. An order to show cause why he should not be adjudicated an involuntary bankrupt has been issued, returnable on Saturday next.

OTHER EMBARRASSMENTS.

Five creditors of Benjamin Leerburger, dealer in watches, at No. 25 John street, have filed a petition to have him adjudicated an involuntary bankrupt. Their claims aggregate $8,107 71, as follows:—John Gallet, $5,073 11; Strouse Brothers, of Baltimore, $1,920 36; Heule Brothers, $415; Block Brothers, $404; Hannah Leerburger, $295 24.

At a meeting of the creditors of Adam Carr, manufacturer of plumbers' supplies, at No. 43 Cortlandt street, and at Passaic, N. J., held yesterday, at the office of Register Dwight, the composition of thirty cents on the dollar was confirmed.

The creditors of John Alexandre, iron merchant, of Greenpoint, met at the office of Register Winslow and unanimously elected Mr. Albert C. Aubery, of No. 7 Beekman street, assignee in bankruptcy. The liabilities amount to about $30,000 and the assets are nominally valued at $34,000.

A meeting of the creditors of Burton & Watson, lumber dealers, at Mott avenue and 140th street, was held yesterday at the office of Register Fitch. Schedules were submitted showing liabilities amounting to about $30,000, and assets, consisting of lumber, valued at $3,700, and real estate, mills, machinery and nine houses at Cumberland, Ontario, valued at $20,000 and mortgaged for $10,500. Ten claims were proved for $4,309 99, and Benjamin Collins was elected assignee.

At a meeting of the creditors of Alexander R. Spencer, better known as Sandy Spencer, held yesterday at the office of Register Dayton, it was decided by the Register that it was for the best interests of all the creditors that the composition of two cents on the dollar be accepted and recorded.

The following schedules in matters of assignment for the benefit of creditors were filed yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas. Thomas Manahan to Alexander C. Robertson. The liabilities amount to $25,785 43; nominal assets to $18,113 35, and real assets to $11,000. Francis O. Boyd and Edgar P. Hill, comprising the firm of F. O. Boyd & Co., liquor dealers, to William A. N. Stewart. The liabilities are stated at $61,011 89; nominal assets at $68,017 70, and real assets at $4,356 56. John Senk to William Laidlau. The debts amount to $1,022 78; nominal assets to $802 39, and real assets to $579 47.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held yesterday afternoon, at which a great deal of routine business was transacted. Petitions were read from a number of teachers requesting that their salaries be raised to the original amounts.

Commissioner Bell offered a resolution that the maximum salaries of teachers fourteen years in service should be paid from January 1, 1878. Adopted.

The report of the Committee on the Course of Study that Talheimer's histories be stricken from the list of school books was adopted.

Mr. John Boyd was appointed trustee from the Sixth ward, and Mr. G. H. Wyncoop from the Fifteenth ward.

The case of Mr. A. Moorhouse, principal of Grammar School No. 20, was again discussed by the members of the Board. Mr. Watson made a lengthy speech, in which he said that it was time that this case had been settled by the dismissal of Mr. Moorhouse. To err is human, he said, had been quoted on the side of the principal, but to err for seven years was more than human.

Commissioner Dowd offered a resolution to discharge the Teachers' Committee from the consideration of the case, and to organize a new committee, consisting of the Committee on Teachers and three other Commissioners to be appointed by the Chair.

The resolution was adopted, and Commissioners Walker, Manierre and Dowd appointed as the new committee.

A SKYE TERRIER.

Arthur Conway, of No. 311 East Thirty-fourth street, found a Skye terrier dog some days ago and took it home. Yesterday he was called upon by a man who claimed to be the owner of the dog, but could not describe him. Conway refused to allow the terrier to be taken from the house and the man departed. Shortly afterward a man describing himself as Policeman Dennis Fogarty, of the Fifth precinct, called and claimed the animal, but he could not describe it either, and Conway again refused to give it up. Fogarty tried to take it by force and the disputants finally adjourned to Justice Otterbourg's Court. The Justice decided that the policeman was in collusion with the first bogus claimant and ordered that Conway should keep the dog until the rightful owner was found.

THE DOG WAR.

A little boy named Peter Kehoe, aged fourteen years, called at the First precinct police station in Jersey City on Sunday evening and complained that he had been bitten by a dog, which tore his right jaw in a fearful manner. The dog belonged to Alderman Mackey, and was kept in the type foundry in Greene street, between Bay and First streets. The boy was in the habit of serving papers at the office of the foundry, and when he complained to Sergeant Mann an officer was sent to kill the dog, but the owner refused to deliver him up. Chief of Police Nathan expresses his determination to have the dog killed to-day.

Seven dogs were killed in Greenville yesterday. Fourteen witnesses were at the Hudson County Court House in Jersey City to appear before the Grand Jury in the charges of disorderly conduct in killing dogs in Bergen Point, Bayonne, Centreville and Pamrapo. A prominent lawyer of Jersey City stated to a HERALD reporter that the indiscriminate slaughter of dogs constituted a violation of law, but he was not prepared to say whether the Grand Jury would find indictments.

COUNTY CLERK BRANN.

The financial difficulties of County Clerk Brann were adjusted yesterday at the Hudson County Court House in Jersey City. Three-fourths of the money due to creditors was paid in, and the counsel on both sides signed the necessary papers. The balance will be paid within three weeks.

FACTORY TROUBLES.

OUTRAGES BY OPERATIVES AT A RHODE ISLAND MILL.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 3, 1878.

The strike of mill operatives, which began in Fall River, has reached the Rhode Island mills in the northern section of the State, and reports of trouble at Arctic, Quidnick and Natick have prevailed here to-day. The reports, however, were exaggerated. The mills at Arctic were closed yesterday. It appears that 150 of the help from Natick went to Arctic to induce the help there to leave their looms; but the superintendent, anticipating trouble, shut down the mills before their arrival. A large number of the operatives from Quidnick also endeavored to persuade them to leave their work the previous day. Not succeeding they broke considerable of the glass in the mill. All was quiet at noon to-day. None of the striking operatives will be allowed to resume work and many of them were refused work on application this afternoon. The mills at Natick will start up to-morrow. A posse of policemen from this city were on hand this morning, but no arrests were made.

THE MUZZY HOMICIDE.

LOUISA BOWEN'S TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER—HER TESTIMONY.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NORWICH, Conn., April 3, 1878.

The trial of Louisa Bowen for manslaughter, in taking the life of Benjamin C. Muzzy, at Norwich Falls, last October, was begun in the Superior Court of this county yesterday, and to-day the accused herself took the witness stand for the first time and told her extraordinary and hardly credible story. She testified to striking four blows upon the head of her victim, three of which took effect, the last one bringing him down. Her original story, as given by half a dozen witnesses, was that she supposed Muzzy to be a burglar at the first blow, but that she then recognized his voice, yet continued to deal heavy blows in self-defence. To-day she testified that she did not recognize him till the work was completed and her father had come in and identified him.

STRANGE STATEMENTS.

She endured the cross questioning yesterday well, save in one or two cases; but her tale is certainly contradictory at some points. She denied, for instance, any special friendliness with Muzzy, and asserted that a key to secret correspondence, found in the wrapper she wore on the night in question, and which was similar to one in Muzzy's possession, was but a scrap of paper she picked up one evening on the sidewalk. When asked why she did not arouse her father, sleeping in an adjoining room, her reply was that father and daughter had not been on speaking terms for several months. The only reason she could give for not arousing other members of the family was that the "thought did not occur to her."

PUBLIC OPINION.

The case is a very peculiar one and many still believe that the father, James H. Bowen, although the Grand Jury failed to find a true bill against him, was the wielder of the fatal club. It is doubtful if the jury will agree to convict the girl. There is much less likelihood of such a result because of her sex as well as her age, which is only nineteen years.

SWALLOWING OXALIC ACID.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEWARK, N. J., April 3, 1878.

Clara Louisa Dougherty, nineteen years of age, a servant girl in the family of County Physician Dr. Ward, swallowed an ounce of oxalic acid at ten o'clock to-night and fled from the house. She has not been found up to twelve o'clock, and it is supposed she jumped into the river.

MISS DOUGHERTY FOUND.

At midnight Miss Dougherty was found by a HERALD reporter wandering through Orchard street. She was in her stocking feet, without hat and shawl, and carried in her hand the same tea cup that she took the poison from. When accosted she fled, and after a long chase was captured by the reporter and taken to Dr. Ward's residence. There remained in the cup about half a teaspoonful of the acid. Miss Dougherty refused to take any emetic and said that she felt no effects of the poison. This she stated was the third time that she has attempted to end her life in this manner, she being subject to spells of despondency. Miss Dougherty is a niece of Mrs. Bedell, at whose house Officer Brock was shot over a year ago.

A STRANGE STORY.

A case of poisoning has occurred in Newark which has attracted the public attention by the statement of the victim. She is a young married woman, named Louisa Mueller, living at No. 183 Court street. The woman's ante-mortem statement was to the effect that on Monday night she was taken sick after taking a dose of cough medicine, and her husband gave her some schnapps. She then went out and was followed by some men, who chased her through the streets and overtook her at the corner of Springfield avenue and Howard street. They put a cloth over her face and then threw into her mouth some drug that rendered her unconscious. When she revived she went home and was taken sick and commenced vomiting blood. To this statement she would not swear. It is believed to be a case of suicide caused by family difficulties. The police have investigated the case, but have failed to find any evidence to substantiate the woman's story. It is the opinion of the physicians that she will die.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

POTTSTOWN, Pa., April 3, 1878.

Francis W. Engle, a baggage master in the employ of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad at this place, attended the triple execution at Bloomsburg and assisted in cutting down the bodies of the hanged men. While searching for relics of the hanging Mr. Engle discovered a gold ring on the finger of Hester, which he appropriated as a memento. The ring had been bequeathed by the dead Molly to his daughter, and its apparent loss created considerable indignation among Hester's friends. To-day Engle was arrested for the larceny of the ring on complaint of Mrs. Hester, and entered bail for his appearance at court.

A MERCHANT'S SUICIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NORFOLK, Va., April 3, 1878.

J. H. Gardner, a highly respectable merchant of Suffolk, committed suicide to-day by shooting himself through the head with an old fashioned horse pistol. A few minutes before the shooting he was conversing pleasantly with some friends in his store, and leaving them suddenly he went into a rear room, and in an instant almost the report of a pistol was heard. Friends going into the room immediately found Gardner stretched on a bed with the whole top of his head blown off and his brains scattered over the bedclothing and walls. The deceased had failed in business and was in poor health. He was about thirty years of age and leaves a family.

GENERAL MOTT EXONERATED.

THE CONDUCT OF THE KEEPER OF THE NEW JERSEY STATE PRISON COMMENDED—THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT ADOPTED BY A VOTE OF TWENTY-TWO TO FIVE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

TRENTON, N. J., April 3, 1878.

This has been another exciting day in the Legislature. In the House the whole afternoon was occupied in debate over the report of the State Prison Investigating Committee, which exonerates General Mott and others. Robinson's speech is characterized as forcible, eloquent, humorous and sarcastic. He said Mott was a good army general, but very bad prison keeper; that there was nothing within the region of perdition like the punishment of the State prisons. He denounced the "alcohol test" in scathing language, and satirized the committee by saying they were "amiable, mild and forgiving," as their report proved. Kates said there had been unjustifiable punishments, contrary to this civilized age. In this magnified and glorified nineteenth century he couldn't vote for such a report. Deacon dwelt on the testimony relating to the "stretcher" and Snooks' death, contending that the law was violated by Mott every day; that Snooks was killed on the "stretcher," "and then the committee whitewashed Mott." Egan lavished praise on the committee, on Mott and on Phillips. He said Snooks deserved the punishment he received. The management of the prison deserves praise instead of censure. A vote was taken and the report adopted by twenty-two yeas and five nays.

SETTLERS FOR KANSAS.

JAMES GRAHAM.

Ex-Auditor James Graham, late Register of the Louisiana State Land Office, died yesterday in New Orleans at the age of sixty-seven. He was Surveyor of the port of New Orleans under President Polk and United States Marshal for Louisiana under President Lincoln.

QUEENS COUNTY HUNT.

THE MEET AT NEW CASSEL—AN EXCITING RUN TO WHEATLY HILL.

The meet of the Queens County Hunt yesterday was at New Cassel, the magnificent weather and the anticipation of an exciting run bringing out a creditable field, including two ladies and numerous spectators. The Garden City delegation of huntsmen arrived almost simultaneously with the master of the hounds and the pack, so there was no time lost, particularly as the hounds arrived uncoupled. Promptly at the hour appointed the field jogged across the track of the Long Island Railroad in a northerly direction, when with a turn to the westward an acre or two of thick brush was passed through, upon the edge of which the scent was found. The line led through a thin belt of timber and then over a farming country well fenced, giving the riders three or four jumps, which thus early tried the quality of their steeds. After nearly half a mile had been run toward the west the hounds whirled to the north, when they increased their pace, and it gave the best mounted of the field much difficulty to keep them in sight. A brilliant gallop of ten minutes, during which several obstacles were successfully taken, brought all hands to the Jericho turnpike, across which road helter skelter went hounds and horsemen. The music of the pack caused the inmates of two handsome farm houses to quickly rush to their doors, where they remained until the last huntsman had long been hidden from view by a thick cover to the northward.

OVER A ROLLING COUNTRY.

Beyond the Jericho turnpike the country was of a rolling character and contained many fences of almost insurmountable height, but so far as ascertained no accident occurred, and this portion of the chase, literally "over the hills," proved very exciting. The road leading to Wheatly was reached in about twenty-five minutes, and here the barriers were of a nature to require a portion of the field to gallop up the road to the westward, the remainder not stopping in their course, but riding straight after the pack. In this district there was another turnout of the farming people, who seemed delighted at the appearance of the horsemen, and numerous questions were asked of the carriage delegation as to the extent of the run. The hounds were not baffled for want of scent, and at times they made the pace of almost racing speed along the line. Fence after fence was taken by the boldest of the field, and a road being reached by the few who had been thrown out leading to the north they succeeded in joining the body of the horsemen about five minutes before the finish. This took place on Wheatly Hill at a point three miles southeast of Roslyn.

The brilliant run occupied three-quarters of an hour, and the severe country over which it extended will make it memorable to the participants. It was late when the field separated at the kennel, but it seemed to be the unanimous expression that the occasion was one of the most enjoyable in the history of the many pleasurable re-unions of the Queens County Hunt.

The meet on Saturday will be at Hempstead, at two P. M.

PIGEON SHOOTING.

THE CLOSING MEETING OF THE YEAR OF THE FOUNTAIN GUN CLUB.

The members of the Fountain Gun Club, of Brooklyn, L. I., assembled yesterday afternoon at the well known half mile track, Brooklyn Driving Park, Parkville, Long Island, for the purpose of contesting in their last regular monthly handicap shooting of the year at pigeons and for a splendid gold medal. The weather was delightful, and the members were out in full force, besides a number of gentlemen who were present to witness the shooting. The medal has to be shot for every month during the year. It was first shot for twelve months ago. The marksman winning the medal three times in a year becomes the owner. The shooting commenced at three o'clock, and twenty-five members took part in the sport, and tried their skill at seven birds each. Mr. E. H. Madison killed all of his birds, winning the medal and becoming him the owner of it, as he had won it twice before, in the monthly shoots of August and September. For next month's shooting there will be a new medal contested for.

The following is a

HARRY HILL'S UNKNOWN—THE MAN WHO IS BACKED TO BEAT O'LEARY'S WALKING TIME.

The challenge issued by Harry Hill on Monday last that he would produce "an unknown" who, for a stake of from $500 to $1,000, would beat O'Leary's unequalled record of 520 miles in less than six days, at the recent walking match at the Agricultural Hall, London, has created no little excitement in sporting circles in this city. W. B. Curtis replied that he was willing to back "Time" against "the unknown," but before this answer was received by Mr. Hill a match had been made, a manufacturer of boots and shoes in Chambers street, who is well known as an amateur athlete, backing "Time" for $500, a deposit of $200 being staked on the spot, the balance to be made good on the selecting by the editors of the various sporting papers of a referee and final stakeholder. Central Park Garden has been secured for the purposes of the match, and the track, as measured by a city surveyor, gives thirteen laps to the mile. The Central Park Garden was selected by Mr. Hill on account of the Turkish baths and furnished bedrooms in the building, which will afford the walker a better opportunity to rest when he occasionally retires from the track.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Hill made public the name of the "unknown." The man who will essay such a severe trial proves to be John Hughes, known in sporting circles as "The Greenhorn." He is a native of Thurles, county Tipperary, Ireland, and is twenty-eight years of age. He was a champion wrestler and football player in Ireland, and came to this country in 1869. He stands five feet eleven inches in his stocking feet and is built in proportion. His record as a pedestrian here is little known except that he beat Martin one mile and a half in a ten mile walk on the Fashion track. Hughes defeated James Fitzgerald in a similar match and beat Harry Munson in a six mile walk last year. Hughes, who is a modest, unassuming fellow, said that Mr. Hill thought he could perform the feat and he meant to try. On Monday he walked to Tarrytown and back; on Tuesday he walked to Sing Sing and back, and yesterday he again walked to Tarrytown and back. He seems to be satisfied with his training and shows no signs of breaking down.

A TEN-MILE WALK.

A ten-mile walking match came off in Baltimore on Tuesday last at the armory of the Fifth regiment, on North Howard street, between ten members of that regiment. The track was around the floor of the armory, and was marked by flags at each corner and at the starting point, the southern centre of the hall. Soon after nine A. M. the contestants were started, and they finished in the following order:—Edward Bell, member of the drum corps—Time, 2h. 30s.; Taylor Gregg, private Company C, 2h. 10m. 30s.; Lee Goldsborough, 2h. 18m. 30s.; E. Pennington, 2h. 19m. 30s.; Charles McPherson, Company B, 2h. 21m. 12s.; Weston Lilley, 2h. 27m.; Joseph Fiter, Company B, 2h. 28m.; Edward Henry, Company B, 2h. 28m. 30s., and Charles Bradenbaugh, Company C, 2h. 34m. 30s. C. E. McComas, of Company C, withdrew after walking 8 miles and 1 lap. Considerable rivalry existed between Gregg and Bell, as the former won the five-mile race the day before at the same place. The time made by Bell is very fast, he averaging 10m. 3s. to the mile, but he walked in very bad form. The walking of Lilley was excellent, being the square heel and toe style, which he maintained throughout the contest.

FOOT RACING.

A number of spectators assembled at the New York Athletic Club grounds yesterday to witness a 100-yards race. The contestants were M. La Montagne and E. J. Wendell, amateurs, of the L. S. P. Society, for a silver cup, the former having three yards start.

La Montagne jumped away with the lead, and at fifty yards away he was one yard in front of Wendell. The latter then put on the steam and won the race very cleverly by two yards in 11½ seconds. Then came the sweepstakes of 100 yards between M. La Montagne, W. Stebbings and T. Burton. The former won easily by three yards in 13 seconds. George Law, the well known amateur, who is matched to walk fifty miles inside of ten hours for a bet of $150 to $100, the backers of time laying the odds, walked five miles in his preparation for his coming match in very fast time. This race comes off on the 15th inst., good day and good track.

THE TELEPHONE.

The telephone was tried yesterday between the Brooklyn Police Headquarters and the Headquarters in this city with varied results.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE MONOCACY AT BANGKOK AND COCHIN CHINA—COURTESY EXTENDED BY HIS MAJESTY OF SIAM TO THE AMERICAN OFFICERS—FRENCH CIVILITIES—ORDERS.

WASHINGTON, April 3, 1878.

The Navy Department has despatches from Commander Sumner, commanding the United States steamer Monocacy, of the United States Asiatic station, giving an account of his reception and entertainment at Bangkok, Siam. He had an audience of His Majesty the Second King, in the throne room of his palace, and was received very courteously; and also receptions by the various Ministers of State, who expressed kind and friendly sentiments toward the United States and extended to him various complimentary and interesting entertainments. A special lacon (theatrical entertainment) was given Commander Sumner and the officers of the Monocacy by one of the State dignitaries, which excited much astonishment and delight among all. It was the first ever given to American officers. During its progress a bountiful supply of refreshments of a varied nature was served.

A VISIT TO THE MONOCACY.

On January 21 His Royal Highness Prince Chow Fa Mala and suite visited the Monocacy and were received with royal honors. Commander Sumner and a party of officers made a visit to Ayuthea, the ancient capital of Siam, the Second King having kindly provided them with a large steam launch and barge, and they were luxuriously quartered and entertained for two days at the First King's summer palace at Barog-pa-in. An excursion was made from this place in the steam launch to the palace, ruins and elephant stockade of Ayuthea. His Excellency the Foreign Minister entertained Commander Sumner and officers in an elegant style on their return to Bangkok. Altogether the visit of the Monocacy was marked by many evidences of kind and considerate interest on the part of officials and civilians toward the representatives of the United States.

Commander Sumner also reports that on January 16 His Majesty the First King, with a large escort, left the capital to visit distant portions of his kingdom which he had not before seen, but in consequence of sickness among his retainers he was to return to the capital.

HEALTH OF OFFICERS AND CREW.

The health of the officers and crew of the Monocacy while at Bangkok was generally good.

AT COCHIN CHINA.

Proceeding from Bangkok the Monocacy reached Saigon, Cochin China, February 1, and exchanged the customary salutes and courtesies with the French authorities ashore and afloat. The Governor General, Rear Admiral Lafont, invited Commander Sumner and his officers to a grand ball at the palace, which was beautifully decorated and illuminated inside and out, at which a large number of French officers of the army and navy were present. Other entertainments were also offered. The Admiral flies his flag on the Tilsitt, an old line-of-battle ship, the Captain of which is the commandant of the arsenal. The other French naval vessels there are the Antelope, a small paddle steamer; the troop ship l'Indre, and about a dozen river gunboats of peculiar construction, being cut down at the bow, where they mount a six-inch breech-loading rifle. They are constructed of iron, are sixty feet long, draw three feet of water, steam ten knots an hour and are very handy for river use. The Siamese have some like them, but of considerably larger size.

THE ARSENAL.

The arsenal, which is projected on an immense scale, is not yet completed. It consists of an ordnance yard, coal depot and dock yard. In the latter they have completed six or eight large buildings, the foundry, forging and machine shops being in operation. There is an iron dry dock (floating) capable of raising a frigate with her guns.

ORDERS.

Captain George Brown is ordered to command the Alaska, at New York; Lieutenant Commander Benjamin P. Lamberton is ordered to the Alaska as executive; Boatswain John Burrows, Gunner John W. Walsh and Carpenter Gould Northup are ordered to the Alaska; Sailmaker C. C. Freeman is ordered to the receiving ship Colorado; Sailmaker John C. Chevalier is detached from the receiving ship Colorado and ordered to the Alaska.

PROBABLE HOMICIDE.

Officer McLoughlin, on Grand street, Jersey City, found a woman and child suffering from wounds. He took them to the First precinct police station. The woman's face was covered with blood, her nose was partially cut off and one side of the upper lip hung by a mere shred. On her forehead were deep cuts and her head was terribly battered. The appearance of the child was a sickening spectacle. She said her name was Eliza McCombs, and the girl was her daughter Maggie. They lived at No. 271 Grand street, and with them was stopping her son Thomas. He came home after having spent the day among the politicians at the primaries, and was in a fighting mood, having drank to a considerable extent. He had scarcely entered the house before he created a row. He first applied vile epithets to his mother and sister, which they resented. He struck his mother a heavy blow on the head. The girl ran to protect her mother, when she received a blow with the glass which felled her. The officers arrested and lodged the father and son, who resisted them, in a cell. The wounds of the girl Maggie, who is but fourteen years old, are pronounced fatal.

THE KIDD BURGLARY.

William Redmond, of No. 329 West Twenty-ninth street, who is charged with having burglariously entered the residence of Mrs. Anna Estelle Kidd and threatening her with a revolver, was again produced in court yesterday by his captor, Detective Murphy. The evidence against him was completed and he was committed by Judge Kilbreth in $3,000 to answer for his offence.
